NEW YORK state Democratic convention, waiting for Gov. Smith returning to select candidates, waited wisely.

Gov. Smith chose as candidate for governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, liked and respected by all that know him. For lieutenant-governor, Gov. Smith chose Col. Herbert H. Lehman, very able business man, whose unlimited capacity for hard work would enable him, if necessary, to relieve Mr. Roosevelt, whose health is bad.

These nominations add strength to the Democratic ticket, Republicans will realize it and work the harder.

NEW YORK CITY has 6,917,500 population, a good-sized city that, in a short time, will change to 20,000,000.

Experts show that before this century ends New York and 50 miles of territory around it will have 50,000,000 population, more than all of Great Britain or France.

Machinery, science and intensive cultivation eliminate worry about over-population.

SOME day, New York, where the United States spends its money, will have a real estate boom worth talking about. Land that now sells for $300 a square foot, will sell for $1,000, and be cheap at that price.

GERMANY celebrated yesterday the eighty-first birthday of Paul von Hindenburg, a great leader and fighter in the war, although he had retired as an old man when the war started.

Von Hindenburg has shown himself a capable, powerful, loyal president of the German Republic. A nation is to be envied that can produce such statesmen and fighters as Von Stein, Frederick the Great and Hindenburg.

TROTZKY, dying of malaria and consumption in Turkestan, exiled by his Soviet associates, is too proud to ask for mercy of those that got rid of him.

Stalin, now ruling Russia, will not let Trotzky return.

Fortunate Lenin, who died in time and lies embalmed under glass, for Russia to revere him.

If he were living he might be with Trotzky, philosophizing on the gratitude of revolution.

ALCOHOLIC drinks under prohibition are various. In the South, "white mule," powerful alcohol made of corn, is popular.

In the Middle West, "needled" beer is drunk by workmen. It is "legal" beer, originally containing no alcohol, but brought up to a highly alcoholic percentage by "needling" it with alcohol, procured by redistilling denatured alcohol bought at gasoline stations.

New York speakeasies, surrounding newspaper and other plants, sell "smoke," a deadly alcohol with a little ether added to give the cloudy, "smoke" effect. This drink is well described as follows: "Three shots and you know nothing until next day."

DOCTORS in New York discuss "How to Fight Old Age."

Dr. Vincent says doctors "concentrate on old people after they are ill, instead of keeping them well."

Luigi Cornaro solved his problem, starting at 40, when given up to die by doctors. He lived to 102, mounting his horse without assistance at 95, and wrote to the Pope: "I had to live to be 90 years old to know that the world is beautiful."

He limited his diet to 12 ounces of solid food and 14 ounces of light Italian wine per day. Think how long he might have lived if he had eliminated the 14 ounces of wine and substituted 14 ounces of good, pure, healthy, sparkling ice water.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE and Postmaster General New deserve public thanks for constant development of the air mail.

On Monday morning a Fairchild mail plane left Hadley Field, N. J., DRIVEN BY A 400 HORSE-POWER WASP MOTOR. Stopping at Albany on the way, it delivered mail in Montreal before noon the same day.

Thus the air mail started between this country and our good Canadian neighbors.

P. J. Veniot, Canadian postmaster general, congratulating the American airmen, said Canada would catch up with the United States in aerial postal service. That is the competition that should exist between nations, friendly and constructive.

T. R. PRESTON, president of the American Bankers' Association, suggests: "A world-wide association of bankers, to promote fuller comprehension of difficulties that beset every country."

Bankers might start with difficulties besetting Americans paying 7½ to 10 per cent interest.

If New York banks would combine with banks in Paris, where the call money rate is 2½ per cent, that would bring the average down considerably, and thousands of blessings would fall on Mr. Preston's head.

Who Is She?

If you recognize this girl, call the City Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Grant 6500, at once.

"MYSTERY GIRL"

Unable to tell her name and crying constantly, this young girl, aged about 16, lies in Pittsburgh Hospital, apparently suffering a nervous breakdown, while police and detectives seek to identify her. She was found wandering dazedly in Lincoln avenue, East Liberty, early this morning.

Probe Police Brutality

A gesture toward a Councilmanic investigation of charges of police brutality to prisoners was made last night when the Public Safety Committee of Council called upon James M. Clark, director of public safety, to return a written report of his findings anent allegations made by John J. Verona, deposed Hill district police magistrate, in a letter to Mayor Charles H. Kline after the latter had removed Verona from his magisterial seat.

A copy of the letter was sent to City Council Monday, and that body did not indicate what action it might take, if any, referring it to the Public Safety Committee without comment. The action of the Public Safety Committee last night left no room for doubt as to that body's desire to know what the Safety Director intends to do in verifying or disproving Verona's charges.

Councilman Robert Garland, who acted as chairman at last night's meeting, in commenting on the committee's action in calling on the director for a report said:

"Let's get what the Director has to say in writing for once."

Verona's letter to Kline was an aftermath of Verona's declaration that vice runs rampant in the city with the full knowledge, and to the profit, of city officials and police. The ousting of Verona resulted from his attack on the Mayor, which was precipitated by the activities of Inspector James N. Hoey in raiding alleged vice joints in Verona's Third Ward bailiwick.

Director Clark said today that the letter from the councilmanic safety committee had not reached him, and gave no indications what his reply would be.

Verona charged that Inspector Hoey struck Oliver Lewis, of the Fifth Ward, as he stood outside the Center Avenue Police Statoin, September 15; that Lieut. John Schnurr beat John Burkowski and James Carney; that Hoey put Mrs. Regina Friedman, mother of seven children, and ill, in a cell over night without a charge against her, just to "teach her a lesson," and that Officers Florence Watt and Howard Caldwell beat Abe Modell with a rubber hose.

Mystery Girl in Hospital

Her mind a blank, an unidentified girl, about 16, is a patient in Pittsburgh Hospital, awaiting identification. She was found wandering in Lincoln avenue last midnight.

Hospital authorities, after watching the girl eat heartily at breakfast this morning, said the case is unusual. Apparently in the best of physical health, a condition hospital authorities say is rare in amnesia cases, the girl is conscious of her present surroundings.

She told police that she rode into East Liberty on a No. 69 car. She said that after boarding the car she asked directions for the police station, but cannot remember the answer nor anything else until she was picked up by police, except that the car descended a hill.

The girl is of heavy build, weighs about 130 pounds, and has black bobbed hair. She wears a white gold wrist watch, of octagon shape, the wrist band having four rows of pearls. A blue stone is set in top of the stem. On her right hand she wears a white gold ring with a large diamond.

"PLAY BALL!"

The moment the umpire-in-chief bellows that command in the opening game of the World Series in the Yankee Stadium, New York, tomorrow, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will begin to flash the tidings in Pittsburgh via its huge magnetic scoreboard in front of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Building and its World Series extras.

James J. Long and Charles J. (Chilly) Doyle, members of the star sports staff, will be in the press box sending the plays and other features as they occur. Read their stories and see the game reenacted on the scoreboard and you'll be as well informed on the series as if you were able to attend the games in person.

As soon as the games are over, watch for the newsboys with the complete box score.

OHIO RIVER CANALIZED, PGH. NOT READY

The Ohio Valley Improvement Association met in the Chamber of Commerce today in its thirty-fourth annual convention to arrange for celebration of the completion of the canalization of the stream next year.

As the delegates assembled and discussed plans for a steamboat parade from Pittsburgh "on to Cairo," a distance of 968 miles, it became known that Pittsburgh would not be ready for the opening of the Ohio to continuous navigation, because it would not have suitable wharves.

The existing levees, almost the same now as they were before the Civil War, are entirely lacking in modern devices for loading and unloading barges. There is no municipal wharf at which freight can be exchanged between steamboats and railroad trains.

The Department of Public Works announced that if everything went well its plan for modern river terminals—a plan on which it has been working for two years, and for which Council has appropriated $80,000—might be ready by next summer. No estimate was offered as to when the terminals themselves would be built.

CITY HELD AT FAULT

Thus, thanks to the dilatory policy of the city administration, Pittsburgh is confronted with the sardonic situation of not being ready to make full use of an improvement for which it has been supplicating Congress for 50 years.

Pressure brought to bear on Council by the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh led to the granting of an appropriation of $30,000 to the Department of Public Works on September 21, 1926, for the preparation of a plan for river improvements. Another appropriation of $50,000 for the same purpose was granted last July 24.

In explanation of the delay, Ross M. Riegel, department engineer in charge of the work, said that the department desired to submit to Council a plan that would be practical, and with it an accurate estimate of the cost. Accordingly, much time was being spent in collecting traffic data.

Shippers, he said, were being asked how much freight they would have available for river carriage, and the railroads were being sounded out as to what their attitude would be. To determine the effect of flood water seepage bore holes were drilled a year ago and numerous observations made.

The city could not proceed more rapidly, Mr. Riegel thought, and he would hold out no hope that the plan would be ready before next summer at the earliest.

St. Louis, Memphis and other down-river cities have already es-

Jail Girl In Purse Thefts

Three months in the workhouse for "snitching sleepers" was the punishment meted out to Miss Anna Elmer, 35, of 115 Gist street, by Judge James B. Drew in Criminal Court today.

She pleaded guilty to the theft of five pocketbooks. "Sleepers," it was explained, are pocketbooks which shoppers lay upon counters.

She was arrested in a downtown department store September 18, five purses being found on her. Nine more, with contents gone, were found in her home, police testified. In court this morning five women, Misses Lillian Crumrine, 2615 Jane street; D. Early, of 5309 Keystone street; R. J. Ries, of 703 Stanton avenue, Millvale, and E. Stitts, of 715 Fourth avenue, New Kensington, and Mrs. Charles Clouser, Vandergrift, identified their purses, which the prisoner had taken, collecting a total of $29.30.

Mace Wielded on Payrollers Who Fail to Donate 3 Per Cent

HARRISBURG, Oct. 3. — State employes who have failed to "kick in" with 3 per cent of their yearly salary to the Republican campaign fund in Pennsylvania are having their contribution checks returned to them with a certain crisp notation telling what their full contribution should be.

The return of a number of contributions as too small to state employes was causing considerable conversation about Capitol Hill today. Gov. Fisher conferred with W. L. Mellon, Joseph R. Grundy and State Chairman Edward Martin and when asked whether he sanctioned the action of the Republican finance committee in returning contributions which did not amount to 3 per cent of the donors' salaries, his only comment was:

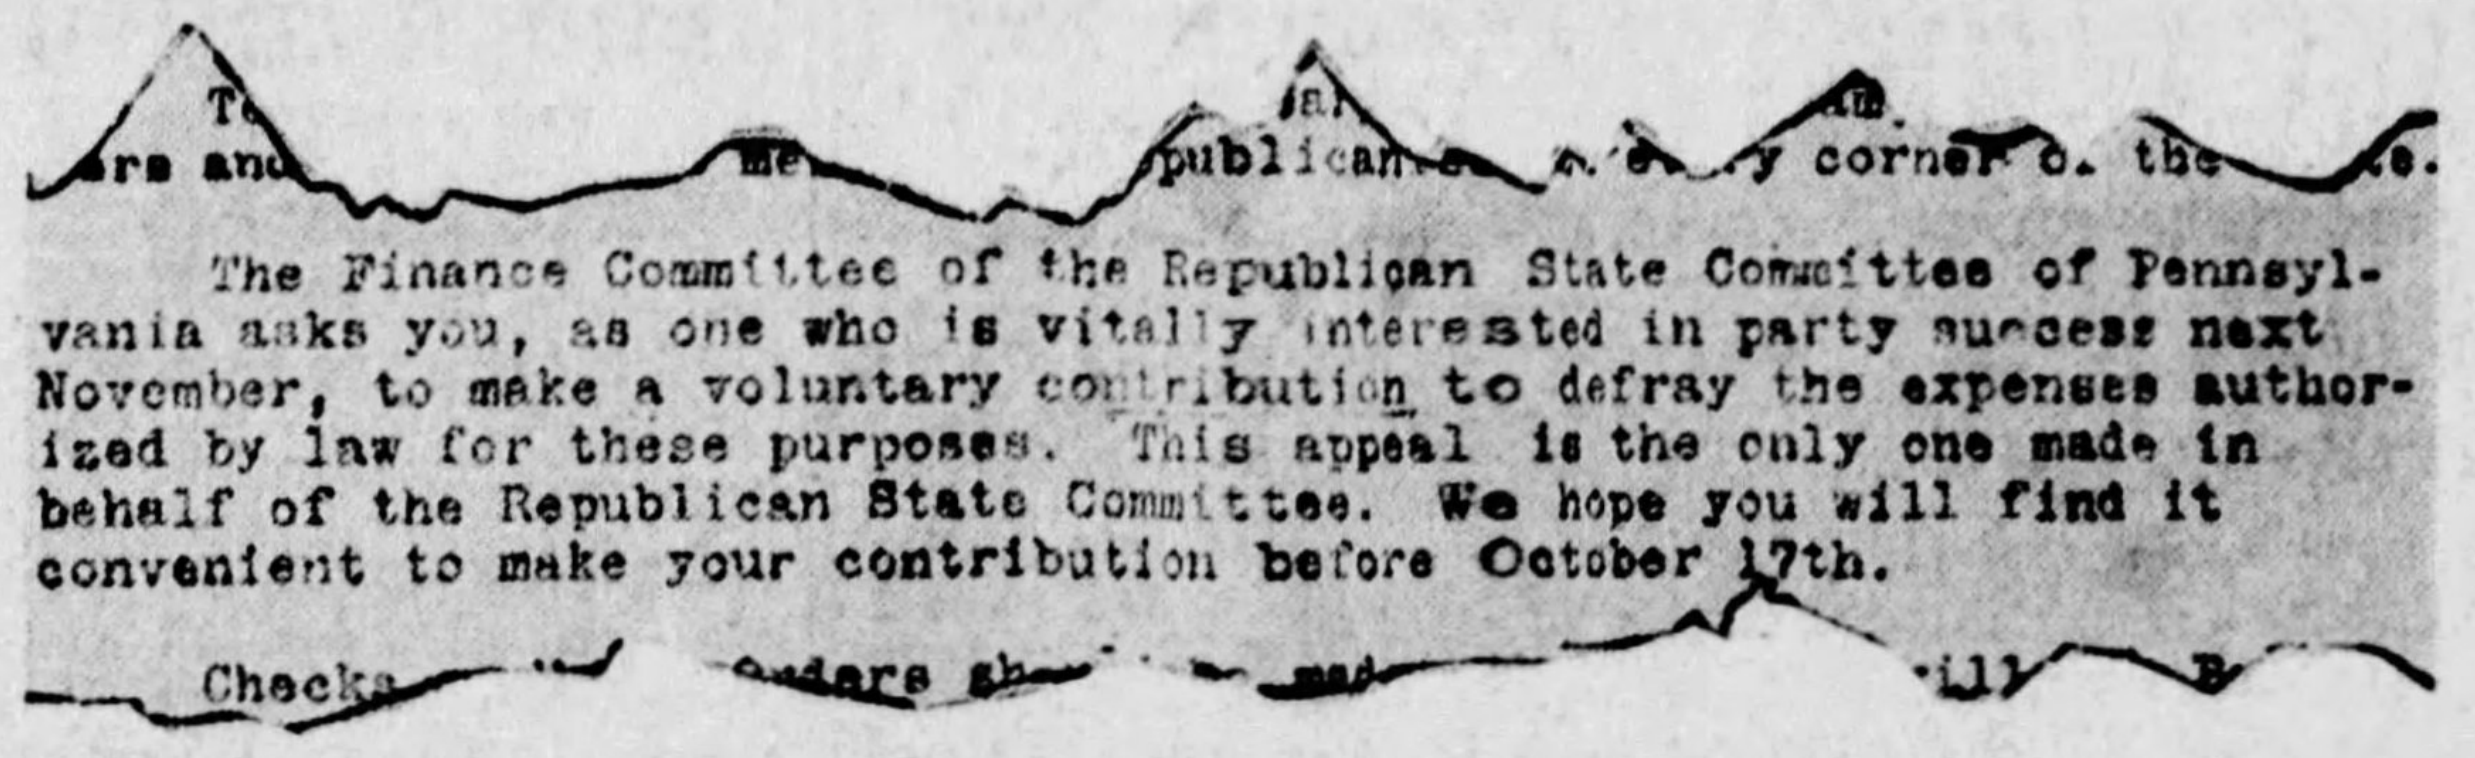
"I can't keep track of these politicians all the time."

It was admitted by members of the finance committee that checks for less than 3 per cent had been returned. In the letter sent to all state employes, except state police and highway patrolmen, "voluntary contributions" were solicited and no mention was made of specific amounts.

During the preceding administration, Gov. Pinchot refused to permit such solicitations and in previous years many office-holders, especially educational and scientific experts, were not solicited. Teachers in state normal schools were among those asked for contributions this year.

The state's payroll, exclusive of highway patrolmen and state police, amounts to approximately $12,000,000, of which 3 per cent is about $360,000.

Form letters similar to those sent out to all state employes have also been addressed to members of the party generally throughout the state asking them for voluntary contributions.



The Finance Committee of the Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania asks you, as one who is vitally interested in party success next November, to make a voluntary contribution to defray the expenses authorized by law for these purposes. This appeal is the only one made in behalf of the Republican State Committee. We hope you will find it convenient to make your contribution before October 17th.

ZEPPELIN FLIES OVER BRITAIN

(Karl H. von Wiegand famous correspondent, filed the accompanying story from the new German air-liner, Graf Zeppelin, on its "dress rehearsal" for the coming trans-Atlantic flight. Wiegand thus becomes the first newspaper writer to send a story from aboard an actual passenger and mail airship in trans-ocean service.

(Within the next two or three days the Graf Zeppelin will leave its hangar in Friedrichshafen for Lakehurst and again Wiegand will be aboard. From the great 763-foot airship, as it sails majestically across the Atlantic, carrying nearly 100 souls, he will flash the epic story of the journey as the ship fights the gales that sent to death so many brave fliers in the smaller craft which have attempted the fatal east-to-west flight.

(In this story Wiegand tells how the great airship last crossed the English coast line, the first of its kind to fly over England from Germany since the war.)

OCT. 2.—Aboard the Graf Zeppelin, over the North Sea. —The new German air liner, Graf Zeppelin, gave a full dress rehearsal for its trans-Atlantic flight today. The airship weathered a storm, bucked turbulent head winds for hours, demonstrating efficiency and stability in dirty weather as well as in sunshine.

For the first time since the World War, England had a glimpse of a German Zeppelin when just before 9 o'clock this evening we crossed the English coast at Yarmouth, before turning back to the North Sea.

With 73 persons aboard, the Graf Zeppelin left Friedrichsafen at 7

Odds Swing To Cards

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Many of the boys, myself among them, have been so busy telling why the St. Louis Cardinals should win the world series, starting tomorrow, that they haven't had time for mature consideration of the several and devious ways in which this ball club can lose without having to get downright versatile about it.

Indications, I admit, point the finger at a probable St. Louis victory. The Cards have three of those high-test pitchers, who can get 20 miles to the gallon. One of them, in fact, not only will go 20 miles to the gallon but also for it. The total of Yankee pitchers, who can pitch you a ball game upon demand is understood to be approximately one.

CARDINALS IN SHAPE

The Cards have exactly no injuries, the Yanks so many as to cause some very ugly whispers in connection with the second battle of Arras. Almost everything, in fact, seems to say that the Cards are due and even some of the local handicapers, naturally biased, are picking them to win before the seventh game.

For my part, I think the Yankees might be a fair bet at the prevailing odds, which are presumed to be 7 to 5 on the Cards. Even money and the Cards are a stand-out. Lay $7 upon the old take-off and possibly you can have my five—almost directly after you win it. If John Bananas, next door, wants to give you odds, take them and maybe you will take him. The Yanks have a reasonable chance—at the odds.

In fact, I don't see how you can say much less about a club that will have a couple of hammer throwers like Ruth and Gehrig in there swinging for them every day. Those kind of guys don't even care whether they hit one off a good pitcher. And we happen to be dealing with one of the most uncertain of speculations, a few ball games

HOOVER, SMITH RUN NECK AND NECK IN READING POLL

Initial returns from Reading, fourth city of Pennsylvania, in the straw vote canvass of the state by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph are divided nearly equally between Herbert Hoover and Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Canvass of Berks county, including Reading, to which the poll has now been extended, is expected to prove one of the most interesting features of the poll of Pennsylvania.

Reading in past elections has contributed many votes to the Democratic column. There is a considerable anti-prohibition sentiment in that city. It is the center of a large area where the traditional "Pennsylvania Dutch" is spoken.

Both parties have been claiming the county, which contains a large vote, and unquestionably it will be one of the battlegrounds in Pennsylvania this year.

The latest totals in the Pennsylvania poll, conducted as a part of the nation-wide canvass by the Hearst papers, are: Hoover 36,773, including 29,271 men and 7,502 women; Smith 24,817, including 19,084 men and 5,733 women.

These voters in 1924 divided their ballots as follows: Coolidge 42,172, including 33,684 men and 8,738 women; Davis 6,698, including 5,623 men and 1,075 women; La Follette, 3,951; not voting, 8,469.

Late Vote Tax Rush Looms

A last minute rush to qualify for voting at the general election on November 6 is anticipated. Saturday is the last day to register and pay taxes.

To care for the rush, County Delinquent Tax Collector Walter J. Christy announces that his force will remain on duty until late Saturday night. His office will be kept open until 6 p. m. on Thursday, and on the last two days, Friday and Saturday, the office will be open until 10 p. m.

Boys Face Jury in Holdup

Five boys went on trial this afternoon for the Ward Baking Company payroll robbery of last April. Two of them had previously been convicted in the Castle Shannon street car holdup.

John Otis, 136 Long way; Sylvester Mantz, 253 Forty-third street, and Rudy Swiderski, are charged with robbery and conspiracy, and George Schreiber, 1310 Arch street, and William A. Murphy, 145 Thirtieth street, are charged with being accessories before and after the robbery and with conspiracy.

Edward LeGoullin, paymaster, was held up April 2, last, and robbed of $14,520.19 at the bakery, 3100 Liberty avenue. Otis and Mantz last week were found guilty of stealing $2,401 from William Murray, collector for the Pittsburgh Railways Company. Schreiber and Murphy were acquitted.

Assistant District Attorney Roy Klunk is prosecuting the case before Judge Elder W. Marshall.

JURY LINKS POLICE TO RACKET GANG

The charges of John J. Verona, anti-administration boss of the Hill district, that the city police are in collusion with the racketeers, are at least partly correct!

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, directing the grand jury investigation of Verona's charges, reported today he had uncovered enough evidence to show that certain policemen had protected slot machines in their districts.

The district attorney said that thus far the probe had not revealed any organized system of graft, that the damaging evidence dealt only with isolated cases. However, he promised, he is now simply building a foundation for revelations that may reach overwhelming proportions.

GETS ANONYMOUS TIP

Meanwhile District Attorney Gardner today struck what promised to be pay dirt in his grand jury probe. He received an anonymous letter which gave names and gave addresses, from a "Citizen." Two gambling houses and a club were named, and light was shed on the process by which sale of beer on the North Side has been kept the exclusive right of one brewing company.

As a result, there will be more faces from the North Side in the grand jury room tomorrow. Which of the persons named in the letter he would call, Gardner could not say definitely, but he had decided to call Fritz Roehler, Lowrie street saloonkeeper.

Roehler yesterday declared himself an "independent." He could operate his saloon, with all the appurtenances of the racket, whether he had police protection or not, said Roehler, and he preferred to do without it.

Believing the outspoken Roehler might prove a key witness in the grand jury's search for collusion between police and racketeers on the North Side, Mr. Gardner announced he would ask him to clear up some points which "Citizen" left vague.

The inquisition of Roehler will involve activities of an alderman, a ward chairman, two police lieutenants and several lesser lights.

Mr. Gardner denied today that he had characterized the city administration as "a rotten mess."

"Someone has misquoted me," he said. "What I did say was that this whole grand jury investigation is a tough mess, meaning that it's a hard proposition to wade through."

Mr. Gardner said he did not know whether any indictments would result from the investigation.

"You can't tell much about this thing until it's finished," he said.

"It was the most satisfactory day we have had since the investigation started." Mr. Gardner said of yesterday's session.

"I do not see any reason to predict that more evidence of a highly sensational character will not

THREE HELD FOR COURT IN GANG MURDER

Three men were held for court today by Magistrate John J. Orie as accessories to the gang murder of Tony Landolina, 25, in front of a store at 1619 Penn avenue on September 27. Lieut David Corbett, of the homicide squad, testified the three had been seen loitering near the store just before the shooting.

The three, arrested the day after the killing, are Tony Naso, of Carnegie; Patsy Menagul, of North Side, and Mike Acquara, of Brentwood Three lawyers represented them in the Central Police Court hearing.

After the hearing, Corbett said he had evidence to support this theory of the murder: That Landolina, finally discovering who had slain his uncle, Nick Landolina, 73, last July, had set out to "get" the killers. Instead the killers "got" him.

One of the three, Acquara, also is being held for the murder of a taxicab driver in Fayette county, Corbett asked for a warrant for Acquara's detention on this charge.

There were three other suspects arraingned in the Landlolina murder today, but detectives were unable to link them with the shooting.

o'clock sharp this morning, for an endurance run. The 22 passengers included the "Zeppelin Girl," as friends are now dubbing Lady Drummond Hay, and Katherine von Kardorff, "Katenka," Germany's feminist leader.

After breaking her own speed record by making 84 miles an hour for two hours, the air liner ran into a squall at the edge of a thunderstorm near Nuremburg.

Reports from Berlin of bad weather caused Dr. Eckener to change his course for Wuerzburg and Frankfort, and down the picturesque Rhine over Cologne, Duesseldorf and Essen in the heart of the German industrial district, and thence to Rotterdam, bucking the headwinds all the way. The winds varied from 20 to 35 miles an hour.

Extraordinary enthusiasm greeted the airship at every city and town. Along the Rhine two French military planes encircled the ship and accompanied us for many miles, waving enthusiastically and coming close enough to take photographs of the great liner in flight.

Out over the North Sea we went where Dr. Eckener wished to make some navigation tests and also, I suspect, give the crew and those of us who are booked for America, the feel of seeing nothing but water below.

Rotterdam by night presented a gorgeous picture, as all the ships in the harbor greeted us with sirens. The North Sea, 300 feet down, looks cold.

BACK TO BERLIN

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—Aloft 26 hours after its start from Friedrichshafen at 7 a. m. yesterday, the new German superdirigible, Count Zeppelin, soared above this city at 9 a. m. today while thousands cheered from the streets and roof tops.

The huge airship gave London its first "Zep" thrill since 1918 last night, then headed eastward again. It cruised over the North Sea part of the night and passed over Rotterdam early this morning. At 6:45 this morning it passed Hamburg, making excellent time towards Berlin.

While above this city, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the ship, exchanged greeting with the Lord Mayor by radio. He then pointed the ship's nose southward and it proceeded towards its hangar at Friedrichshafen.

In this last test preparatory to starting across the Atlantic to the United States, the dirigible demonstrated its durability by weathering a severe squall near Nuremburg and severe headwinds westward to England, according to radio advices received here.

Lindy Supports Hoover for President

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today came out strongly for the election of Herbert Hoover.

Wiring from New York, Lindbergh said:

"I have recently flown to St. Louis to register. The more I see of this campaign the more strongly I feel that your election is of supreme importance to the country.

"Your qualities as a man and what you stand for regardless of party, make me feel that the problem which will come before our country during the next four years will be best solved under your leadership."

HEAT BIDS FOR COUNTY PARKS

County comissioners, today, opened bids for installing heating systems in county park buildings and for reconstructing a trailer for the road department. Bids will be tabulated by the purchasing department and awards likely will be made Friday.

Proposals for a heating plant in the adminstration building at South Park follow: American Heating Company, $1,607; F. E. Geisler, $1,445; Ryan Heating Company, $1,780.

For a heating plant in Kirsch Building, South Park, American Heating Company, $2,407; F. E. Geisler, $1,450; Ryan Heating Company, $2,165.

Rodgers Brothers submitted a lone bid of $1,570 for rebuilding a trailer used in hauling heavy contracting equipment from job to job.

ODDS AGAINST YANKEES

and what may happen to them; also in them.

CAN'T PICK BREAKS

You can go ahead and concede everything, except hitting, to the Cardinals. Give them infield defense, give them superior catching, grant them the better pitching. The latter is extremely important in a short series of any kind, for that matter. But there is one factor of equal importance and I am talking now about the breaks. They are one thing you can't concede the Cardinals in advance.

Perhaps the fact that the writer sees no sense in odds on a short series has prompted him to argue matters from the wrong side of the fence. It is admitted that the Cards look the part of the better ball club. They should win, on form, but the law that will compel them to do so is still in committee or something. I, therefore, will proceed to argue them down, largely because their chances most certainly do not deserve all the attention they are getting.

First of all, neither of the contenders, as they stand, are great ball clubs and even the great ones can go wrong. The Cards undoubtedly are the best club in the National League over a full season or they wouldn't have won the pennant. I doubt if they are as sound a world series bet as the Giants might have been. Their record through the season supports this contention, a record that shows the cards to be steady and consistent, but not a big series club. Their strongest contention, of course, came from the Giants, Cubs, Reds and Pirates. Against the first three, they won 29 and lost 37, a nice second division average if the league schedule went no further. They won a lot of games from the Pirates, mostly when the latter were shot full of ventilators, but actually they won the pennant because they could beat the three comics, the Dodgers, Braves and Phillies, from whom they won 51 games out of a possible 66. In brief, 50 per cent of their victories for the year were gained in minor series.

There will be nothing comic about the Yanks even in their current condition. They seem to have mastered the matter of playing a maximum amount of baseball in the big moments, as evidenced by their three out of four from the Athletics when they, the Yanks, were pretty much of a six and seven-eighths ball club. The Browns were the only American League entry to make the season's series close, winning 10 from the Yanks and losing 12.

It, consequently, is possible that the Cards won't succeed in doing 100 per cent of the things that misleading statistics say they should do. These statistics even go all the way back to the 1926 series for some reason, in order to prove their point. The writer is satisfied to stick with the present, for these are not the same ball clubs that played each other two years ago. In addition to those who have departed, Alexander and Haines aren't quite the pitchers they were then. Sherdel seems to be just as good and he figures to get better breaks this time. But let us not lose sight of the fact that it was Alexander and Haines who supplied the four victories that won the series in question.

This time, the burden of proof will be shifted to Sherdel, which means that, if he doesn't win the first game, the Cards will be in something of a jam. Of course, the same thing applies to the Yanks in connection with the possible defeat of Hoyt in the opening game. However, he ought to win at least one game and he might make it two, thanks to the rest he will get between starts on those all-day rides between the two cities. It wouldn't surprise me greatly, either, if Pipgras, refreshed from a full week's rest, got away with a victory. That would make it close enough for my 7 to 5 money.

Yes, of course, the Yanks are in a bad way, with the keyman of the pitching staff, Pennock, and the keyman of the outfield defense, Combs, out of action; also the keyman of the infield, Lazzeri, unable to pivot on double plays and balls hit over second base. But, on the whole, I think the call for volunteer pallbearers is premature.

Indian 130 Years Old Dies; Sons Past 90

VALLEVISTA, Cal., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—An Indian chief whose age was given in tribal records as 130 years, was mourned here today by four sons, each of whom is over 90 years old. The aged leader was Manuel Portes, chief of the Santa Rosa Indians.

Portes died yesterday. Besides his sons, 13 grandchildren and 40 great grandchildren survive him.

The tribal records relate that Portes was born in 1798. His last days were marked by an elaborate farewell ceremony provided by kinsfolk at the home of Raphael, one of the sons, where he was taken to die after he became ill.

continue to be poured into the ears of the grand jury."

FORNEY ESCAPES QUIZ

The grand jury probably will not hear from Albert Forney the story of slot-machine politics.

Gardner today indicated that he would not call before the jury the man who rose swiftly from a novelty salesman to a racketeer throne by selling suckers an uneven break. Forney's confinement in the county jail as a Federal prisoner will not be punctuated by a subpena.

"That would require a Federal Court order," Mr. Gardner said. "He is a Federal prisoner. But, I don't think it will be necessary."

Deprived of enlightenment by Forney on the alleged maze of graft built upon his slot machine concession, the jurors today will continue to seek light from other sources.

These sources will comprise an array of witnesses drawn from saloons, soft drinkeries, road houses, clubs and the like in the city and county.

Three new witnesses were lined up in the waiting room this afternoon. One of them was Harry Martinelli, described as a partner of a place at 704 Wylie avenue—just a few doors below Verona's aldermanic office. The others also were from the Hill district—Tom Burke, 57 Fullerton street, and Andrew Pacuconis, 2332 Tustin street.

Other witnesses summoned today were Frank Ersen, 308 Chestnut street; John P. Dolinski, 1552 Madison avenue; Ivan Dolinski, 1119 Spring Garden avenue; Charles Bishop, 243 Wylie avenue; Samuel Cooper, 215 Center avenue; M. J. Ray, 220 Center avenue; J. Morris, 927 Liberty avenue; Martin Kilkeary, 1424 Fifth avenue; Peter Yurich, 2703 James street; Harry Moore, 1575 Spring Garden road; Jacob Tressel, 512 Homewood avenue; Joseph A. Schneirer, 1601 Spring Garden avenue; John Damas, 1215 Wylie avenue; John R. Fries, 1710 East Ohio street, and Joe Rimondi, 1812 East Ohio street.

NEW YORK YOUNG MEN CALL ON HOOVER

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Success of democracy in America requires the participation of young men in the responsibilities of government, Herbert Hoover declared today in a speech to members of the New York Young Republican Club at his headquarters.

Hoover praised commercial aviation as helping to develop our national defense, in commenting on the flight of the members from New York to Washington.

SAYS NEW YORK SAFE

John Stratton, spokesman for the club, assured Hoover he would carry New York state and that it was their purpose to safeguard the registration and the balloting on November 6.

"We have many national problems pressing upon us," said Hoover. "The aim of the party is to meet these problems with a policy which comes of open-mindedness and human sympathy. A party to maintain itself in vigor must be constantly replenished not alone in members, but in spirit and in ideals. To carry on great political parties it is essential that the ranks be filled with youth bringing new vigor and eager idealism to our cause."

Hoover declared "democracy cannot be truly fulfilled until our young people are courageous enough to take part in the responsibilities of government."

With hopes of insuring a Republican victory in the Empire State by one tremendous political effort, Hoover today approved tentative plans for the monster Republican rally in Madison Square Garden, New York City, on October 22.

Charles Evans Hughes, standard-bearer in 1916, will share the spotlight with Hoover at the nominee's personal invitation.

REED'S REPORT PLEASES

The nominee was pleased today with two reports. First, he was told by Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, that the Keystone state was "safely" Republican. Second, he was told by western managers over the telephone that Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, has been a "sensational success" in stumping the Middle West for him in the wake of Gov. Alfred E. Smith's tour.

Senator Reed meanwhile told newspapermen that Hoover's election was a "certainty."

"There is work needed, and hard work, along the eastern coast and in Wisconsin," said Reed. "Mr. Hoover though can win even if he loses all the doubtful states. I expect his majority to be greater even than that given President Coolidge."

"Is Pennsylvania safely Republican?" he was asked.

"Absolutely," Reed replied.

BEVERAGE FIRM SEEKS PERMIT

The Monogahela Beverage Company of Monogahela, seeking to have its cereal beverage making permit restored, today filed a petition in Federal Court asking for a review of the action of Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, in revoking the 1928 permit.

It is contended that the stock in the company is widely distributed and the closing of the plant works a hardship on stockholders. It is averred that the hearer in the revocation proceedings permitted many errors of law to creep into the case to the detriment of the company.

The plant was raided last July, when, agents said, illegal beer was seized. Padlock proceeding are now pending.

VICE PAID $11,000 WEEK TO RUN IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Payments of $11,000 a week by disorderly houses in one police district have been uncovered by District Attorney Monaghan, who is conducting a grand jury investigation of rum runners' and gangsters' activities.

The revelations came with the arrest of four detectives, charged with extorting money from the proprietor of a disorderly house.

They were alleged to have collected $220 a week from a single disorderly house in a police district in which 50 such establishments were reported by the district commander to have been operating.

Olga Barton, proprietor of one of these places, in testifying against the detectives, John Casey, Warren Robinson, James Kelly and William Dixey, declared that her payments for protection, starting at $45 a week, had been raised on demand to $220 weekly.

"$11,000 A WEEK"

Assistant District Attorney Hermes told Judge Edwin O. Lewis, before whom the prisoners were arraigned, that each of the 50 establishments had paid similar amounts for protection, or a total of approximately $11,000 a week in a single police district.

Mr. Monaghan said one police captain had accumulated nearly $250,000 in the last two and a half years.

"I examined a captain of police last Friday in the grand jury room," the prosecutor said today. "Yesterday I investigated and obtained an account in a stock broker's concern showing that Monday this same captain closed his account and withdrew more than $24,000 in currency, together with securities aggregating $18,000 in value—a total of more than $42,000 in this one man's account.

"My investigators also found that one captain of police, during a period of two and half years he has held that position, deposited more than $81,000 in bank and had secreted in his home $20,000 in cash.

"In addition, in the last two and a half years, he has purchased several parcels of real estate in which the equities are between $35,000 and $40,000. This captain also had a saving fund account of $8,500 and he had a safe deposit box for the storage of his valuable papers.

"The investigation has shown inordinate police wealth. It has shown immense sums paid to police officials by bootleggers and saloonkeepers, and yesterday we uncovered the most horrible form of police protection—disorderly houses—in a case which gives indications of vast sums paid over to men sworn to enforce the laws."

Fires Set By Foiled Convicts

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Tubercular convicts, irate because prison officials had discovered a tunnel under the building in which they were housed on the Wynne state prison farm, near here, set fire to the building yesterday and the flames destroyed it, as well as four other structures.

None of the convicts escaped prison and none was injured. The 56 prisoners were hearded together in a yard by eight guards when the blaze was discovered.

The fire started when one of the tubercular prisoners touched a match to paper which had been stuffed in the walls of the building. Before the guards and other convicts could interfere, flames had spread to the building for blind prisoners, the laundry, the power house and the water tower. Undermined, the water tower collapsed, leaving firemen without water with which to combat the blaze.

Capt. J. H. Spates, manager of the prison farm, said convicts had dug a tunnel five feet underground and 20 feet long.

Seven previous attempts had been made in the last year to burn the tubercular building.

BANDITS TAKE VICTIM'S AUTO

Crowding the automobile of Charles F. Calaski, of Woodrow avenue, Mt. Oliver, to the curb at Josephine and South Twenty-first streets, last night, three bandits leaped out of another machine and at pistol point ordered Calaski out of his car and drove the machine away.

The same trio is believed to have held up Konstantine Kruszewski, of 7517 Bennett street, a week ago in Second avenue and Bates street. In a similar manner, Kruszewski was robbed of his car. A hijacking element was introduced into this case when police asserted the Kruszewski automobile was loaded with corn sugar.

The Bennett street dwelling was visited by prohibition agents last night who reported finding a 100-gallon still, 36 barrels of mash and 28 gallons of moonshine. Zygmunt Kruszewski, 35, was arrested.

Magistrate John W. Orie pronounced $10 or 30 days to the "works" to Harry Deisel, 41, of 728 Municipal street, in Central Police Court this morning. And then Deisel made his request:

"Judge, now that you've fined me, the least you can do is to give me a shot of that buttermilk. My pipes are sure hot."

Cell Sergeant Flaccus, leading Deisel back to his cell, showed him the water fount.

Attorney John F. Gloeckner represented Kirkwood.

Nab Thief In Train Holdup

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 3.—John Gibbs, 20, of Los Angeles, was held today on a charge of robbing the mail car of Canadian National Railway train No. 11, as it neared Windsor, Ont., last night.

Less than three hours after the robbery, which netted the bandit $25,000 in cash, Gibbs was captured as he attempted to smuggle himself into Detroit. Loot amounting to $22,000 was reported found on his person.

Police said he confessed the robbery—one of the most daring single-handed train holdups in the annals of Ontario police history.

The bandit entered the car just as the train was drawing out of the Chatham station. He ordered the three men to "stick em up and leave 'em up." They complied. Then he ordered them to cut open the money bags, twirling his gun menacingly. After this had been done he lined up the three men making them face the wall and threatened them with death if they lowered their hands.

Police believe he dropped off as the train slowed down to a stop and caught a ride on the rods under one of the cars in the train.

"NIGHT RIDER" VICTIM WEDS

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Miss Anna Gallagher, 21, of Barton, O., one of two young women with Lester Berry, 22, one night three weeks ago, when their automobile was surrounded, near Barton, by a band of "night riders" who threatened to lynch the three, was married here yesterday to Edward J. Conrad, 22, a Wheeling carpenter.

Asked by reporters if she had jilted Berry because of the night riding episode, Miss Gallagher said she had been keeping company with both young men and had decided to marry Conrad.

Miss Gallagher escaped from the "night riders," but Berry and Mrs. Goldie Wheeler, 28, also of Barton, reported they were taken to a tree, ropes placed about their necks and that they had been pulled off the ground for a few seconds.

SMITH MAPS TOUR OF BORDER STATES

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The new brown derby which Gov. Al Smith bought in Rochester to replace the one he "swapped" for a new dog in Milwaukee was parked today on the familiar hall rack of the executive mansion in Albany.

It will remain there until next Monday when, barring upsets by the national committee, the Democratic nominee will take to the road again—going this time into the border states that are considered doubtful, if not inimicable to his candidacy.

FINISHED WITH WEST

Gov. Smith has finished with the West. Win, lose or draw in November, he has made his last appearance in the corn and wheat country during this campaign. The 6,000-mile trip which the Governor completed here last night represents the Smith bid for the electoral votes west of the Mississippi River. Hereafter the Democratic campaign is to be concentrated in the East and border states.

Although Gov. Smith's second itinerary is still in the process of formulation, it has been virtually determined that when he leaves Albany again next week, it will be to go into the so-called border states, some of which he must carry in November if his candidacy is to be successful.

A tentative schedule has been arranged which will take him to Baltimore, Raleigh, Chattanooga, Louisville, Sedalia, Mo., possibly Indianapolis, and winding up in Chicago in mid-October. Several other points are under consideration, particularly one in Ohio on the same trip. Three Ohio sites also are under consideration — Cincinnati, Columbus and Cleveland.

DECISION THIS WEEK

The ultimate decision will be made by Gov. Smith himself sometime during the present week. He is running his own campaign, subject to a certain amount of guidance by the national committee experts sitting in New York. They prepare the tentative dates. The Governor turns thumbs up or thumbs down on their work.

"I'll do the deciding," he said today when questioned about future plans. "Right now nothing has been definitely decided."

It is known, however, that the Governor is determined to go into North Carolina. At least he is determined to do so now. It is in North Carolina that the opposition to his candidacy has been more pronounced probably than in any other southern state. It is there that the Republicans are striving their utmost to break into the Solid South. And, with characteristic courage, Gov. Smith is determined to make an appearance there to fight the opposition on its chosen ground.

There has been some difference between the schedule-makers over the Missouri date. Originally it was intended that Gov. Smith should speak in St. Louis, normally a Republican city, and in other years a famous brewing center.

Democratic hopes of carrying Missouri are predicated upon Gov. Smith's rolling up a large St. Louis vote. Lately the Democratic managers have decided that things are so favorable in St. Louis to the Smith candidacy that a personal appearance by Gov. Smith is not necessary there, and that the Missouri date should be spotted in rural Missouri. Sedalia has been only tentatively selected.

Meanwhile, the Democratic nominee plans to get a faw days of solid rest. Sixteen days on the road in the West tired the Governor, notwithstanding his vigorous assertion that he "never felt better" in his life.

He returned to Albany last night tired but very happy over the result of the Rochester convention, which nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt for the governorship.

WILL PROBE CLASS BAN

M. E. CONFERENCE WILL SIFT CLOSING OF DOORS

Methodism of Western Pennsylvania, today centered its attention on the one hundred and fifth session of the Pittsburgh conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, in the first church of that denomination in McKeesport.

The South Avenue (Wilkinsburg) Church fight, which resulted in the Callender Men's Bible Class being locked out of the edifice last Sunday and the holding of the class service on the street, is expected to be brought before the conference, either in the form of a committee investigation or through the action of the bishop's cabinet in making the appointments of ministers.

At the opening session, the Rev. W. L. Wilkenson, assistant editor of the Christian Advocate, was elected secretary; the Rev. C. W. Campbell, treasurer, and the Rev. E. H. Miller, statistician. Routine matters were handled during the morning and following a luncheon in the church dining room, committee reports were read at the afternoon session. There was a special session devoted to the work of the hospitals, homes and deaconesses and at 4 o'clock the Rev. Dr. Henry H. Crane, of Malden, Mass., delivered a lecture.

It is said Bishop Herbert Welch, presiding for the first time in his home area, has been petitioned not to return the Rev. S. W. Bell as pastor of the church. Appointments will be handed down Monday.

More than 300 members of the conference were present when Bishop Welch opened the conference with a communion service today. After roll call and organization, the Rev. J. E. Morrison, of Charleroi, presided at the memorial services for minister and their wives who died during the conference year. The eulogy was by the Rev. W. K. Anderson, of Butler.

HOLD REALTOR IN FRAUD

A sealed verdict of guilty was returned this morning in Criminal Court in the case of high officers of the On Leon Tong, or Chinese Merchants' Protective Association, against J. S. Armstrong, 222 Findley street, North Side real estate dealer, charged with the defraudulent conversion of $450 in a transaction over a laundry site.

That the cash had been paid to Harry Lee, national secretary of the tong, in a deserted farmhouse in Butler county, with no witnesses present and no receipt taken, was the contention of Armstrong when on the witness stand before Judge Charles M. Culver, of Bradford county, who tried the case.

King Li, national president of the On Leon tong, testified he had paid Armstrong $250 to procure a lease on 108 West Ohio street, which a member of the tong wanted for a laundry. After a long period of waiting and not getting the lease, the Chinese demanded their money back.

High Blood Pressure Shortens Life

Relief for high blood pressure and other health-destroying ailments that have kept thousands of sufferers in misery and doubt for years—is now seen in the modern discovery—BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUM.

The importance cannot be denied when the life insurance companies refuse to issue policies to applicants with high blood pressure—because it tends to shorten the span of life.

High blood pressure gives little warning and until certain symptoms appear you are not aware of it. You may have head pains, flushed face, hot flashes, dizzy spells, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, nervousness and palpitation of the heart. Remember, that High Blood Pressure is a symptom and not a disease in itself—IT IS NATURE'S WARNING to take notice.

Why drug the stomach when your blood cells control High Blood Pressure and most all Chronic Diseases?

Blood Cell Protein Serums
(Copyrighted 1908)

This institution specializes in blood troubles, making a correct diagnosis and laboratory analysis of each case, and administering the proper serum to remove the cause.

One serum often brings immediate relief. Cases which have long resisted treatment respond quickly. Check the uncertainty of High Blood Pressure by beginning treatment at once.

Patients pay only for serums administered. Everybody pays the same price for the same serum. Come in—talk to the patients.

Laboratory Examination of Blood or Urine, Free

We are successfully treating High Blood Pressure, Rheumatism, Asthma, Diabetes, Anemia, Neuritis, Nervous or Stomach Troubles, Debility, Kidney Trouble, Heart Trouble, Blood and Skin Diseases, and other ailments affecting the blood stream.

TONIGHT LAST CHANCE FOR FIRST ZAIN PRIZE

WRITES ZAIN AD

ROBERT G. WOODSIDE

The controller of Allegheny county tries his hand at writing a Zain ad—something for you to try if you are interested in the $15,000 that will be given away in prizes. Read the ads and the rules thoroughly—then write.

ENOUGH TIME REMAINING TO WIN $100 IN AD-TEST

Amateur advertisements, to be eligible for the first of the six $100 prizes offered by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in the Zain Ad-Test, must be in this office by midnight tonight.

If this is the first time you have heard of the Zain Ad-Test, do not turn away impatiently to something else in the paper, in the thought that you have no chance to win that first $100 prize. You have. You have a chance to win it, and to win the grand prize of $1,000, and to win others of the prizes totaling $15,000 in cash and merchandise that will be awarded in the test. Be patient. Read on.

To be a first-class advertisement, under the terms of the Zain test, your contribution need not be an elaborate work of art, with carefully designed layout and fine distinctions in the kinds of type used. It is the idea that counts. And it is far from impossible that you may get a winning idea, put it down on paper, and have it on its way to the Zain Ad-Writing Test, care of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Gazette Square, Pittsburgh, Pa., within half an hour—or at any rate in sufficient time to assure its reaching this office before midnight tonight.

If your ad comes in after midnight, it will automatically be entered for the second period.

To be eligible for the $1,000 prize you must write an ad some time during the campaign about each of the 39 participating concerns, whose names, addresses and products will be found elsewhere on this page.

One of these concerns is the Palmer Match Company, who make Palmer's Strikalite Matches. One of the valuable points to remember in writing about the matches is that there is no afterglow. The sticks are chemically treated to prevent it. Another important point is that the matches are made of well seasoned pine and will not break or splinter when struck. Try them.

The Graham-Paige motor cars, which are to form the subject of an advertisement, are comfortable, well designed automobiles suitable for many uses. Study the different models. The business coupe is an attractive model. It has a wide single seat upholstered in leather fabric and ample luggage capacity in its rear compartment. The engine you can recommend without stint. These cars are being featured by E. S. Carpenter, Inc., 4015 Baum boulevard, and associated dealers.

An opportunity for striking ideas may be found, as well, in your knowledge of the Mausoleum, the Westminster Abbey of Pittsburgh. One writer has called it the "Cathedral of Rest," and many thoughtful citizens have purchased crypts and private rooms in it. It is a classic structure, beautiful and dignified, and about its advantages, its beauty, much that is instructive and useful toward its very necessary purpose may be visioned.

When you see the white tag, in your daily visit to the meat shop, you may know that Dunlevy's brand of sausage is in season. For fall mornings and noon are most conductive to these appetizing bits. The chill in the air stimulates your appetite, and you can be assured that these sausages are made of young pork, spiced and seasoned just right. Another fragrant topic, a spicy thought or two.

So, study the stores and the rules. Read them both carefully, then write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, at least as large as a postal card, and preferably commercial letter size. Write your name and address on the back of each sheet and also on the back of the flap of the envelope in which you enclose your ads. SEND THE ADS TO THE ZAIN AD-WRITING TEST, CARE OF THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, PITSBURGH, PA.

HIGH CITY TAX IN METRO PLAN, MAGEE VIEW

Former Mayor William A. Magee, sees danger ahead in the Metropolitan Plan for Greater Pittsburgh.

Speaking before the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board at the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday, he declared that the owner of downtown real estate is menaced by the danger of having to care for the undeveloped districts of the county.

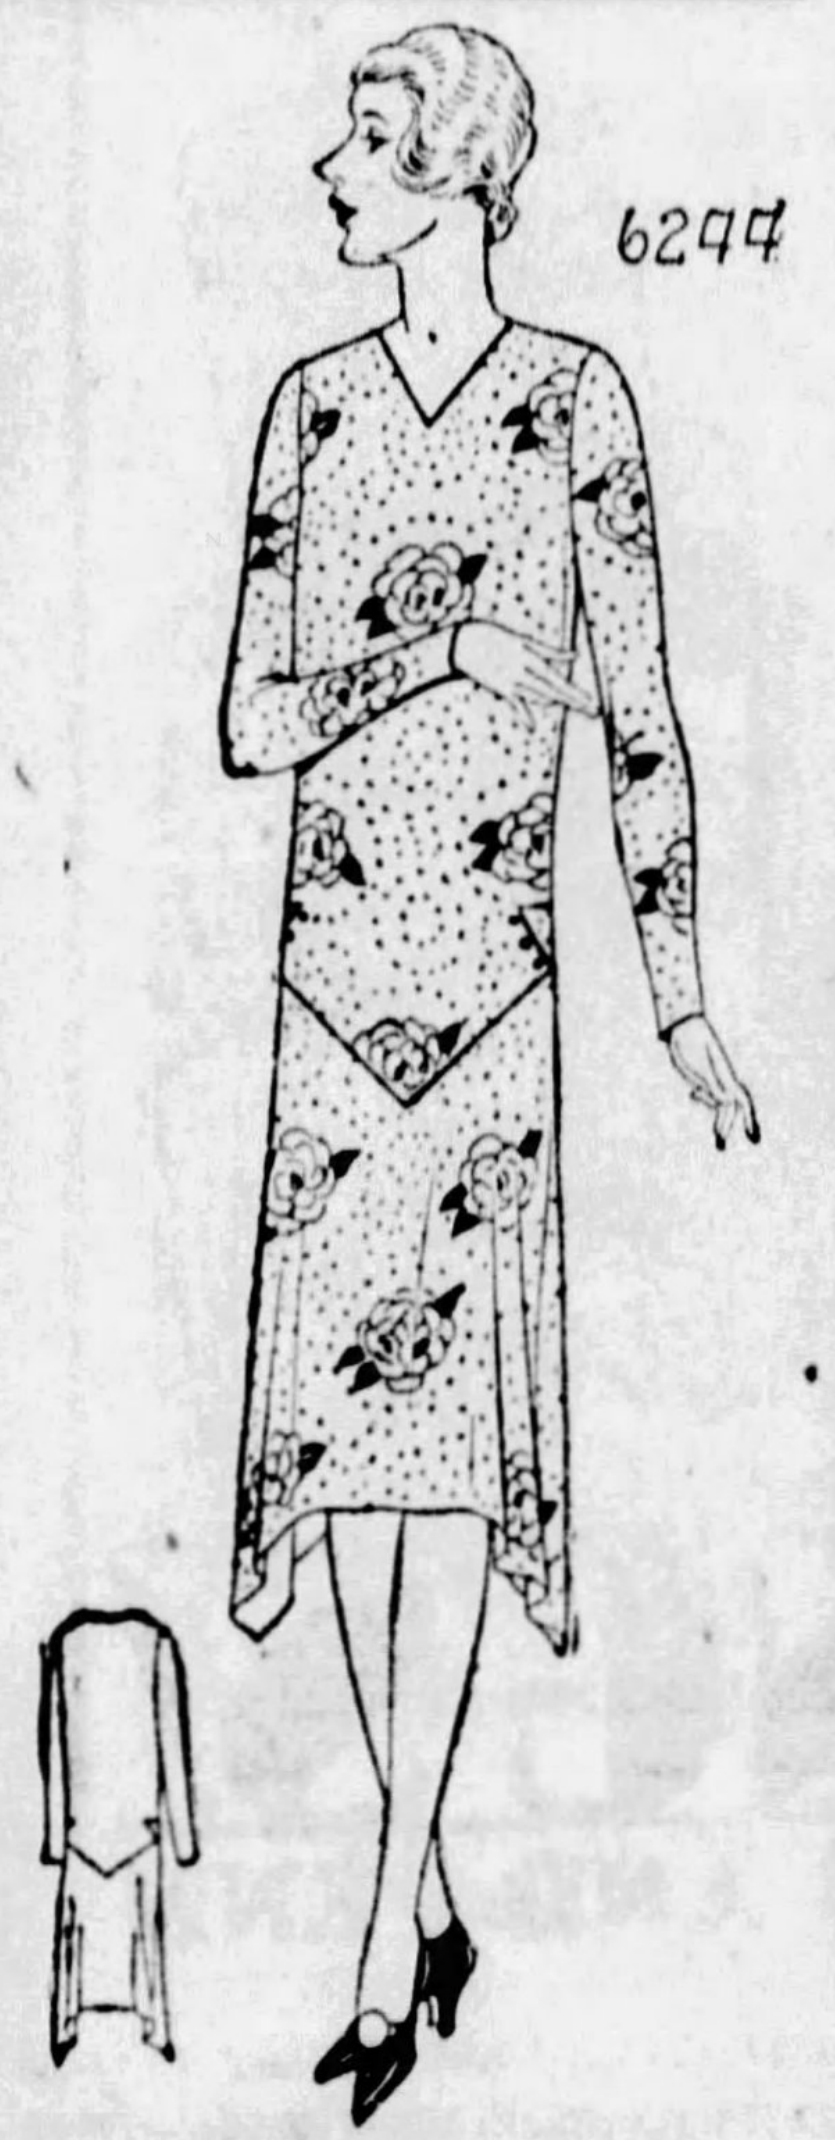
Three downtown wards of the city pay more than 40 per cent of the taxes in Pittsburgh, according to Mr. Magee, who declared that the cost of extending even a few of the general functions of city government to the thinly populated districts of the county would be very large.

The assessment of special taxes to provide funds for public improvements was favored by Mr. Magee. He declared that both abutting and non-abutting properties should be assessed benefits. He said that such a method is the only practical way of providing funds for a subway for Pittsburgh.

CARNIVAL NETS MILK AND ICE FUND $27.76

A carnival held on Kenwood avenue, North Side, netted $27.76 for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund. Four young girls sponsored the carnival. They are Ruth Cowles, Dorothy Graham, Dorothy Kimmel and Vera Weber.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern



A DISTINCTIVE STYLE.

Brocades, velvet, figured silk as well as crepe in silk or wool georgette and satin are all suitable for this design. It features the higher waistline in the unique shaping at the lower edges of the waist portions. The uneven hem line is also pleasingly expressed, in the side dips of the skirt sections. The V shaping of the neck is youthful and becoming. A close fitting sleeve completes this stylish frock.

The pattern is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38-inch size will require 4¾ yards of 35-inch material. To underface the skirt portions as illustrated, (with contrasting material), requires ¾ yard. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fulness extended is 2½ yards. For bias binding at neck and lower edge of waist portions 2⅞ yards will be required.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Sportswear Shop, the assembling point of all our finer, smarter jersey dresses, makes a specialty of featuring models for women and misses, which are out of the ordinary.

One example is the two-piece dress pictured, which is a copy of a model by Patou.

Another is the Helen Wills Frock, a simple one-piece model with all-over vertical tucks.

Tri-color combinations in jersey frocks is still another point of smartness and interest which is featured in this collection.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

APPLIED PSYCHOLOGY

By ELDA BERRI

MARIAN BROMPTON never did anything by halves. When she went into a thing, adopted any sort of a fad or hobby, she worked at it deep and far and strenuously.

That was why her friends and relatives hated to see her take up the study of psychology. Especially was this true of Wellington Aimes, her fiance. Wellington knew exactly, from experience, how things affected Marian and he didn't in the least relish the battle with complexes, suppressed desires and what not, which he saw all too plainly in the offing —for himself.

However, Marian was adamant. Take up psychology she would and did. This much can be said for her; during the first few weeks she seemed to be kindlier and more considerate; in fact, everything might have gone on in perfect harmony had it not been for the girl who moved in across the hall from the Bromptons.

She was tall and slender and dark," with melting brown eyes—the exact opposite in type of Marian who was slight, azure eyes and very blonde.

Wellington Aimes never did know just what suggested to his fiancee that he might be even slightly interested in Miss Persis Winfield, the girl across the hall. He only knew that he was almost struck dumb when she fired her missile of suspicion at him.

"Wellie, just what is there about Persis Winfield that appeals to you so terribly?" she asked him one evening, appropos to absolutely nothing.

"What?" the astounded young man howled. "Now, what in the name of sense made you think that up? It's the most absurd thing I ever heard of!"

"Now I know I'm right!" his fiancee returned in tremulous tones. "When a person is accused of a fact his first instinct is to deny and ridicule the idea. If is isn't true, he remains quite calm and composed. I learned that just today in my psychology lesson. You grow excited. And very red in the face at once and nothing you may say can counteract those signs."

"Are you crazy?" the young man insisted vehemently. "I never even think of Persis Winfield unless I happen to meet her."

"Ah! Then you've been meeting her, have you?" cried Miss Brompton tragically. "And you never told me!"

She began to sob, and nothing Aimes could do or say seemed to have any affect upon her. Finally he resolved to say or do nothing more. He merely settled himself comfortably and sat quietly upon the davenport, holding the weeping maiden tenderly in his arms, waiting for the tornado to subside. At last she sat up and faced him, smiling through tears to give his cheek a maternal pat.

"I'm not of a jealous nature at all," she said wistfully, "and it isn't that I should expect you to go through life without looking at any other girl, but I want you to know that if ever you should find anybody you like better than you do me it will be quite all right. Your happiness is my first concern, Wellington. I can give you up freely, no matter how much I may suffer at the sight of Persis Winfield snuggled down beside you in the ducky gray roadster I helped to select!"

She began to sniffle again. This time Aimes did not take her in his arms. Instead, he edged a little farther away from her and sat up very stiff and straight, glowering at his boots.

"That girl's never been in my roadster!" he growled. "Any fellow would get excited over being accused of an interest in some one who's less than nothing to him."

"Another sure sign!" Marian retorted. "Whenever a man begins to get interested in somebody else he invariably declares she is nothing to him. It is because he is trying to convince himself that nothing is happening that shouldn't—the book says so. If the idea of Persis Winfield was new to you, you'd be interested and want to talk about it instead of evading. Won't you tell me just when and where and how you met her, Wellie?"

"For the love of Socrates!" Wellington Aimes almost screamed. "Of course I'll tell you! I never met that dame but once in my life when you weren't with me, and that was on DeMong's the other day while I was lunching. She was at one table and I at another. We merely bowed."

"Of course you were dying to ask her to lunch with you—don't deny it, Wellie, and the next time you might as well, because there's no use fighting a thing like that. Sooner or later you will cease to resist, and that will be the end. Prof. Borth says I interpret perfectly. Everything you have said gives you away and confirms what I've learned in psychology. I've no doubt Persis will be glad to see you, and I wouldn't for worlds detain a man against his will. Psychologically it would be most disastrous; so you just run along and I'll get at my reading right away. I—I—I've got to heal my broken heart some way!"

This time Marian's sobs became veritable wails of grief. Wellington arose to pace the floor muttering bitterly to himself.

"Look here!" he finally cried out, frowning formidably at the weeping girl upon the davenport as he stopped in front of her. "Does this darned psychology you're quoting so freely say what it means when a guy begins to smash up the furniture and actually shake the girl he cares about. That's what I'm going to do. I won't stand for one word of this tommyrot about that Persis person. I won't! Do you get me? She isn't, never has been and never will be any more to me than a last year's bird's nest and if you don't stop blubbering and tell me you know it, I'm going to stampede out of here. You won't see me for the dust! Now! What about it?"

He reached down suddenly, grabbing the girl by the arms and yanked her to her feet, glaring into her eyes from which all traces of weeping had miraculously disappeared. He looked and acted as though he were some monster about to devour a helpless victim. "Answer me!" he demanded again, giving her a little shake.

"I—I haven't got that far in the book, I guess," she whispered, "but I think I understand you better than I ever did before, Wellie. That's one thing you'll have to give psychology credit for, isn't it, dear?"

"Psychology — raspberries!" scoffed the unbelieving Aimes, sweeping the girl more firmly into his embrace. "Here's where we're going to forget psychology and everything else except that you and I belong to each other!"

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

Antonio Moreno Crowds Out Young Player Selected to Be Colleen Moore's Male Lead

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.

THE best laid plans of stars and movie executives miscarry much like those of mice and men. John McCormick and Colleen Moore and the other nabobs of First National agreed that young James Ford was just the laddybuck to play opposite Colleen in her new picture, "Synthetic Sin." He was given a contract for the photoplay.

But apparently someone, or perhaps everyone, changed his mind. James, it is agreed, is a fine, upstanding youth, and an excellent actor, but, nevertheless, it has been finally determined that Antonio Moreno shall play Colleen's masculine lead. Ford is to be retained in the cast, and will enjoy a prominent part in the picture. A little more experience before he steps definitely into the glaring limelight of leads, or standing roles, will prove of benefit to him in the long run. Many a promising player has been permanently injured by premature promotion.

Jack Warner and A. Rockett are back from New York following the transaction of one of the most stupendous deals in the history of the industry. The valiant Warner Brothers are the miracle men of the movies, and no one knows just what magic they will next perform. First in the field with their Vitaphone singing screen, they have thoroughly revolutionized the industry, and at present have a long lead on all competitors in the production of the amazingly popular talking pictures. Warners now control First National. In Hollywood they are saying that Jack Warner will take charge of all production with Rockett as his lieutenant, and that the product will soon be known as Warner-First National pictures.

"It never rains but it pours" is held a very true saying by Virginia Bradford, who recently surprised Hollywood with a Tia Juana elopement with Cedric Belfrage, a screen writer. Virginia postponed a honeymoon to go far into the mountains on location for a picture in which she is starred. There were calls for her services from Warner Brothers and two other companies, and her absence cost her three roles.

Ben Bard, the Fox "Menace," is very much engaged to Ruth Roland. And Louise Fazenda is Mrs. Hal Wallis when she's busy making her celebrated preserves. But nevertheless Louise received a fan letter congratulating her upon her en-engagement to Ben. She sent it to Ben with the notation, "Fly; all is known!" Which, if you remember the amusing story, proves that Louise knows her Mark Twain.

Romola Nijinski, wife of the famous dancer, Vasloff Nijinsky, has not renewed her contract with Metro. It is the belief of this talented artist that she can gain a greater measure of success in the cinema by entering the free-lance field. While the movies is to some extent a new medium for Nijinsky, she has demonstrated remarkable ability as a dramatic actress in several Metro pictures, notably with Greta Garbo.

It seems sure that Myrna Loy will be cast as the Oriental vamp in Warner Brothers Vitaphone production of "The Desert Song." There is, to be sure, another girl under consideration. She is Marie Bekefi. But with Myrna under contract she should get the breaks.

When Ruby Keeler—pardon, I mean Mrs. Al Jolson—returns from her honeymoon she and Al are coming to Hollywood, where a film career awaits Ruby. With proper parts there is no reason why Ruby shouldn't have her share of success in the screen world.

Leila Hyams, daughter of the Vode team McIntyre and Hyams, is to be featured in Metro photoplays. Leila has her contract all signed, sealed and delivered. Henry Clive, the artist, proclaimed Leila the most beautiful blonde in America. She was married some months ago to Phil Berg.

MOLNAR PLAY NEXT WEEK

A satire on married relations among actors and actresses, "The Guardsman," by Ferenc Molnar, is the third Theater Guild production to be presented in the Nixon this season. It will follow "Volpone," opening on Monday night. Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontainne head the company.

"The Skull," a mystery thriller, will reopen the Pitt next Monday night. The house has undergone extensive repairs and patrons who attend will see practically a new theater. Seats for "The Skull" go on sale tomorrow.

Seats go on sale in the Alvin box office tomorrow for the one-week engagement of the operetta, "Blossom Time," beginning next Monday night, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Everything in the production is new.

Headlining the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis next week, will be Paxton, the Mental Marvel, in a series of astonishing mind gymnastics. Paxton can retain in his memory intricate combinations of figures and letters.

KREISLER WILL PLAY HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Fritz Kreisler will give a concert Friday night, October 5, in Carnegie Music Hall. The opening number on the program is Grieg's Sonata in C-minor, followed by Lalo's Symphonie Espagnole. Two works by Ravel will be featured, including "Havanaise" and "Piece on forme de Havanaise." "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and two Slavonic dances, by Dvorak-Kreisler, and Russian airs by Wieniawski-Kreisler will close the program.

DANCING AT SANDERS LAST OF THE WEEK

Hereafter there will be dancing Friday and Saturday nights only in Sanders Inn, Freeport highway, Aspinwall. The Terrace Garden ballroom is being entirely redecorated. Friday night Gordon Kibbler and his orchestra will play for the dancers.

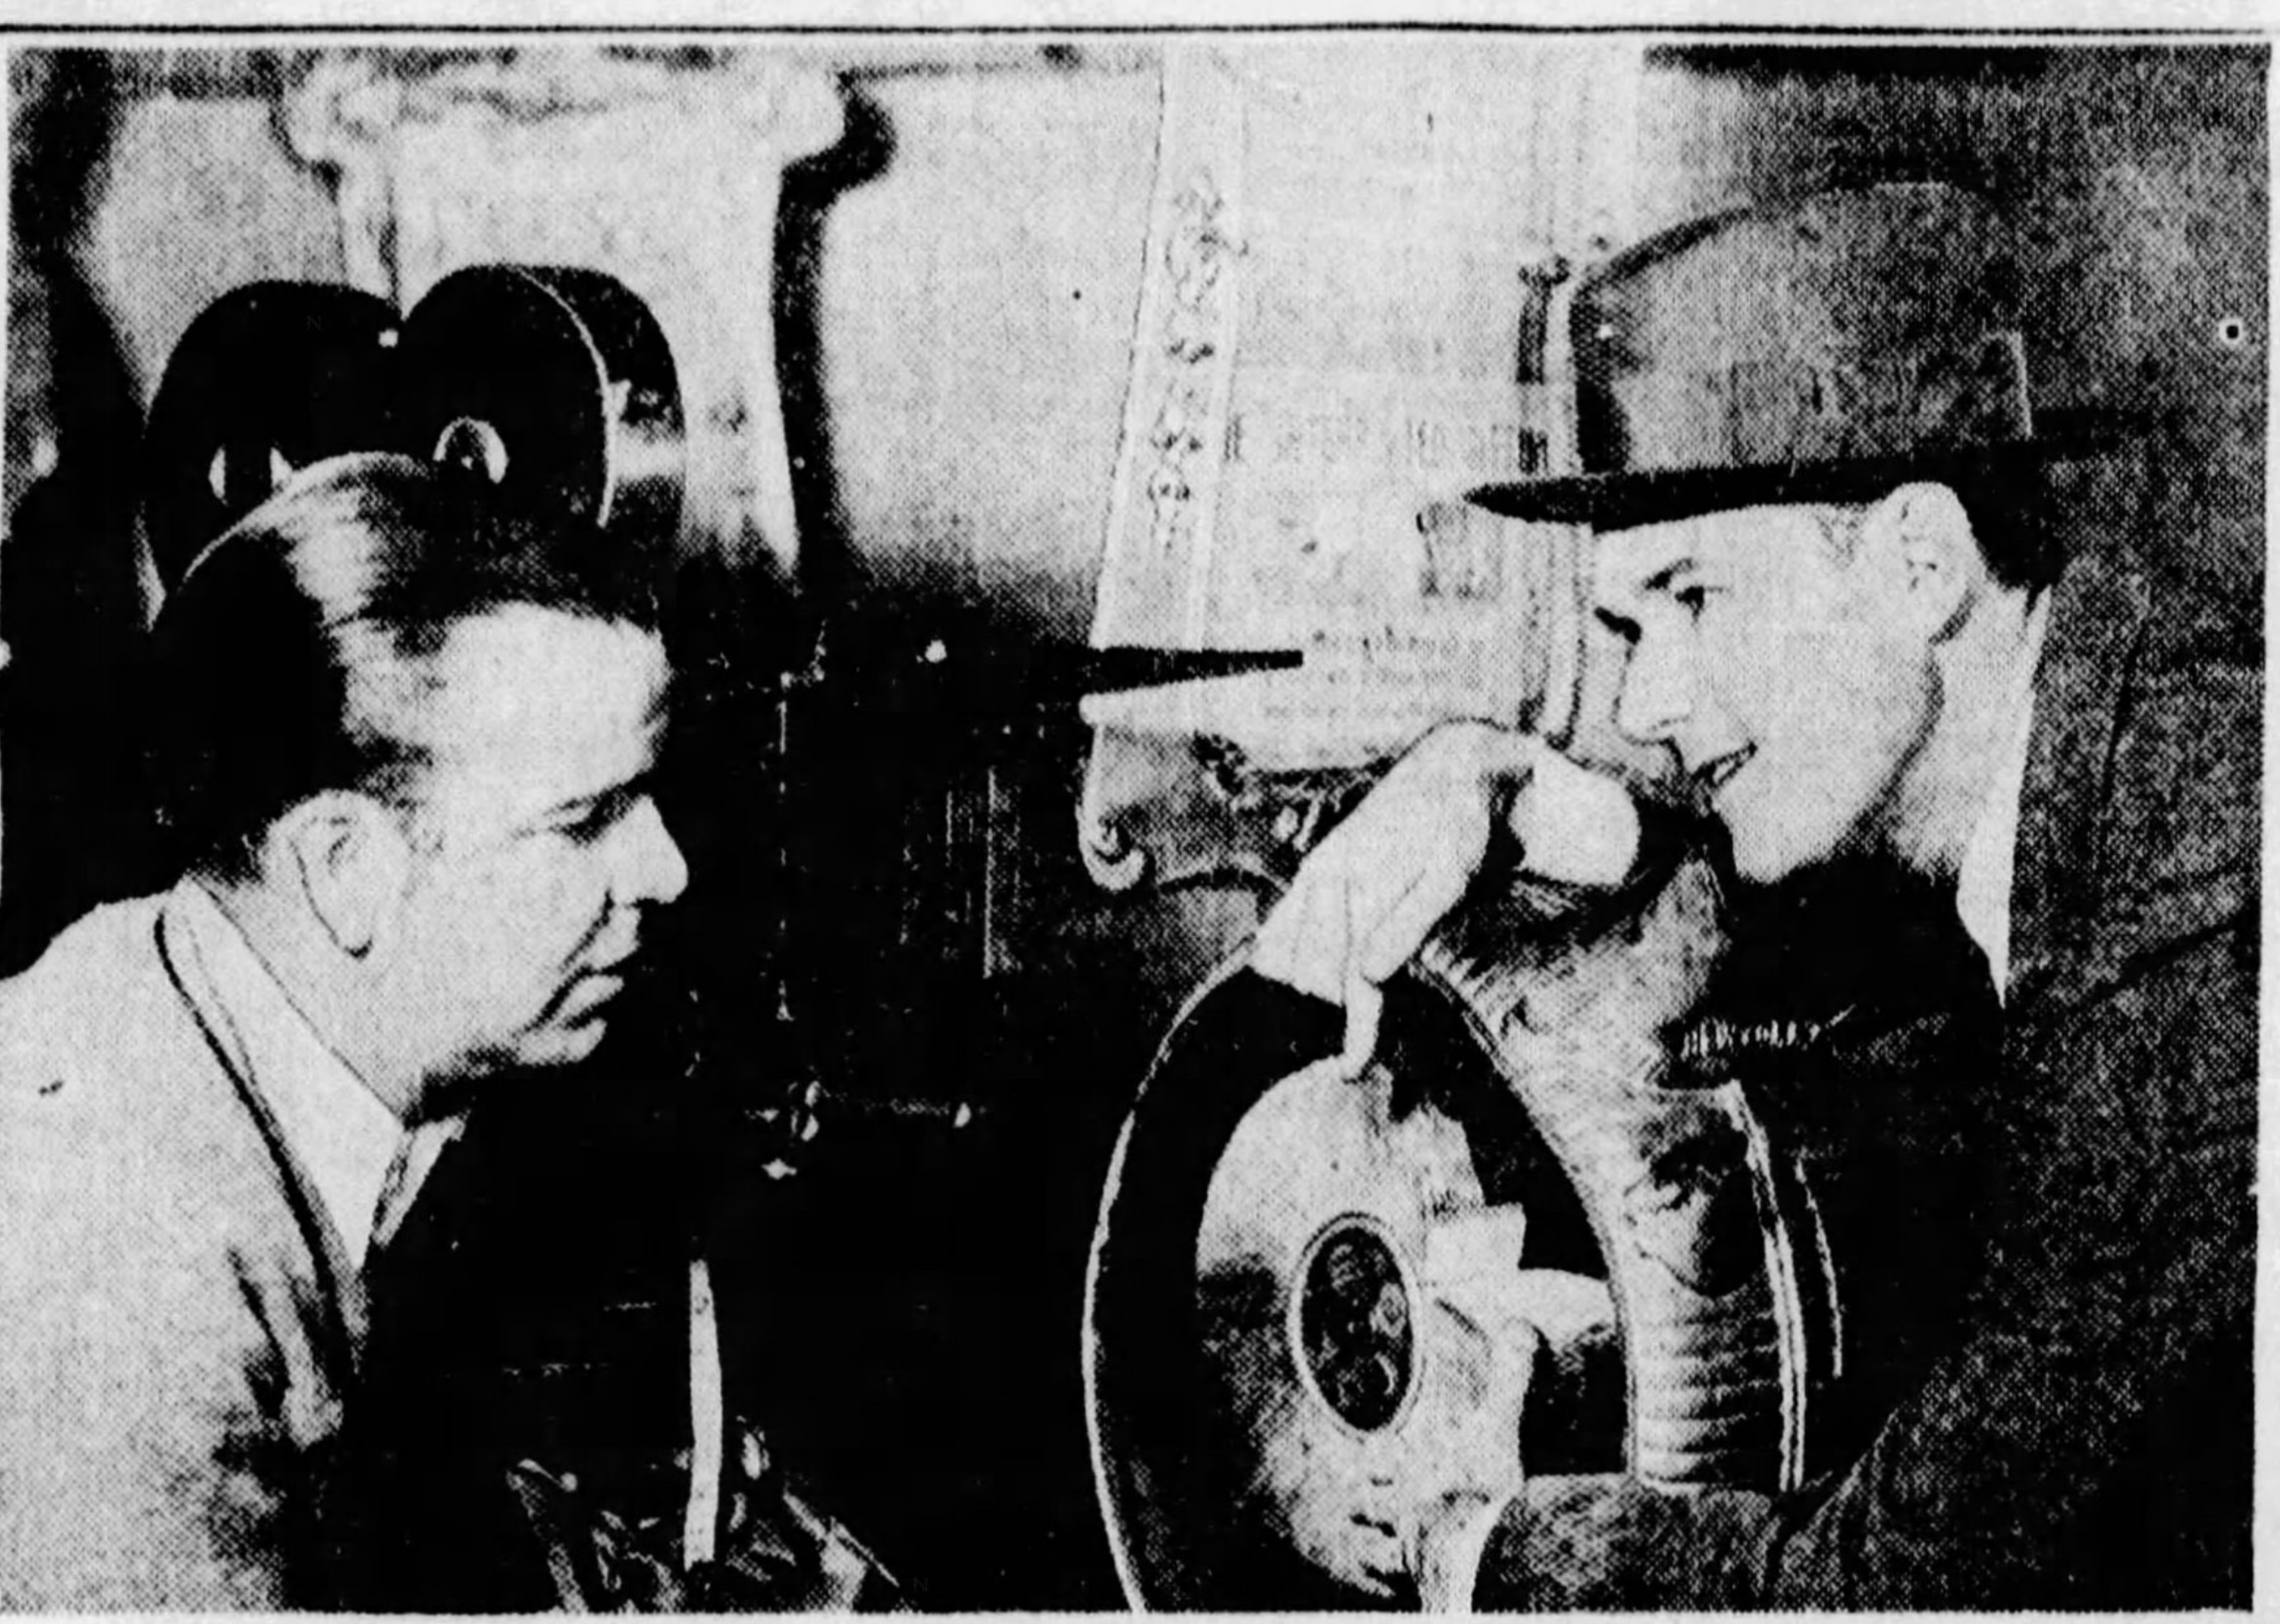
SOUTH AMERICA CALLED LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

South America is a land of opportunity, declared Dr. N. A. N. Craven, professor of history of the University of Pittsburgh, in the first of four lectures to the Credo Club of the Credit Association of Western Pennsylvania.

Dr. Craven has made frequent trips south to study the country. He said yesterday that South America is capable of raising foodstuffs sufficient to feed 2,000,000 persons. He lived there under 30 governments.

HERE AND THERE :-: WITH ACTORS :-: FILM AND FOOTLIGHT

Joan Crawford's fox terrier is the mother of these pups, which Miss Crawford named after her comrades of the cast of "Our Dancing Daughters," now showing in the Penn.



William Haines and his cameraman, Merritt Gersted, look over an old "Mutoscope," first commercial motion picture machine. The movies were in the form of pictures attached to a revolving shaft. For a penny in the slot a customer could see one "subject." Compare that with the present "talkies."

Jane Thurston, daughter of Howard Thurston, magician, is appearing with her father in his production this season, doing a song and dance and magic.

STORM RELIEF TRIO LEAVES

Three women Red Cross workers of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the organization left here last night for Florida to assist in the relief work among the hurricane sufferers.

They are Miss Mary Hughes, of 800½ Heberton avenue; Miss Agnes Hartman, of 238 Darragh street, and Miss Dorothy Griswold, of 814 Taylor street.

Cash amounting to $3,222.50 was received at headquarters here yesterday. The total contribution here so far has been $83,521.38.

HIT BY LOAD OF LUMBER, PLUMBER ASKS $10,000

Joseph McCue, a plumber's laborer, has brought suit against the Keystone Lumber Company for $10,000 damages for injuries received, he says, when lumber was dumped on him while he was at work in Perryview avenue. He said planks struck him as they were being unloaded.

LINCOLN GAVEL STOLEN FROM OHIO COURT ROOM

WHAT CHANCE HAS THE JAZZ-GIRL GOT?

THIS picture is powerful. Its story was written by one who dared to penetrate behind the gilded scenes where wealth lives and plays. There are some in that happy group of flaming youth who pause while the cup is brimming with life's pleasures and ask whither are they drifting.

SELDOM has a more exotic panorama of luxury passed before the screen, rich with beauty of clothes and setting, bright with the handsome countenance of youth. A gorgeous entertainment—eye-filling, soul-stirring. Don't miss it!

WELFARE DRIVE ORGANIZATION PERFECTED

The organization structure for the greatest money-rasing campaign carried on here since the war-time drives was completed last night by the Welfare fund of Pittsburgh. In the community movement to secure the annual maintenance budgets for 25 philanthropies of the city and suburbs several hundred men and women groups and district leaders are now enlisted in the work, and in organizing for the county-wide canvass 10,000 volunteers will take part.

"The eyes of the entire country are upon Pittsburgh and every other important city is watching the progress of our undertaking," said A. K. Oliver, president of the Welfare fund.

Howard Heinz and J. Rogers Flannery joined Mr. Oliver in urging prompt handling of the work from the standpoint of community pride. George P. Rhodes was named chairman of the trades groups committee, heading nearly 100 sub-committees embracing every industrial classification in the district. The vice chairmen are: L. F. Affelder, Horace F. Baker, J. J. Brooks, John F. Casey, Joseph Dilworth, Irvin F. Lehman, Dr. Harold A. Miller, Lawrence E. Sands and Edwin W. Smith.

Plans for the preliminary canvas are carried on by W. B. Schiller, William S. Moorhead and Col. J. Frank Drake, vice chairmen. The Rev. Dr. Percy G. Kammerer, dean of Trinity Cathedral, is chairman of the church committee. A. W. Robertson is chairman of the establishments committee, and G. G. Coolidge heads the committee on prospects' cards.

Mrs. William Frew is general chairman of the women's committee. In the city canvas Mrs. W. B. Schiller is vice chairman of the large group of which Louis E. Reineman is chairman, and Mrs. John M. Phillips is vice chairman of the county committee headed by Clark Hammond. Others in the women's organization are: Miss Eleanor Hanson, Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, chairman of the Carnegie Music Hall rally; Mrs. John W. Lawrence, chairman of home meetings; Miss Augusta G. Leovy, chairman of volunteer headquarters; Mrs. Harry J. Miller, chairman of special women's teams; Mrs. William Thaw, chairman of the question bureau.

RADIO SHOW GOES ON AIR AGAIN TONIGHT

ROXY AT GARDEN EXHIBIT; TOASTMASTER AT BANQUET

S. L. Rothafel is just another name to most of us, but when the same individual who answers to that cognomen goes on the air as "Roxy," radio fans tune their sets for the best possible reception and sit back and prepare to enjoy a real program. And that is exactly what Roxy and Gang will present as the entertainment feature at tonight's session of the Radio Show at Duquesne Garden.

The program starts at 9 o'clock and will be continued from Hotel Schenley, where the members and friends of the Pittsburgh Radio Trade Association, which is sponsoring the exhibition, will banquet. All the artists appearing on the show programs will entertain at the banquet, at which Roxy will be master of ceremonies. WCAE and KQV will broadcast the program.

Another entertainment feature at tonight's session will be a concert by Meade Stephen Moore's Radio Fund Orchestra and Alice Holmes, contralto, and a quartet composed of Margaret Davis, soprano; Mary Earl Allen, contralto; J. Brindley Jones, basso, and Anthony Jones, tenor. Beatrice M. Jones will accompany the soloists and quartet.

One of the features enjoying the general approval of the spectators is the radiophoto apparatus being exhibited by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The apparatus broadcasts photographs, picks up the electrical impulses and redevelops the picture in less than a minute. The operators are broadcasting free any photographs submitted by spectators.

Tomorrow afternoon's program, which will start at 2 o'clock, includes the broadcast of the play-by-play account of the world series baseball game between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals at New York. The DeLuxe Petite Symphony Dance Orchestra will play from 4:30 to 5:30 o'clock, the program being broadcast by WCAE.

SEDITION CASES IN SUPREME COURT

Questions involving the constitutionality of Pennsylvania's sedition act were argued before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court yesterday, in the appeals of three members of the Workers Party, convicted under the act of 1927 for distributing Communist literature.

The defendants, Peter Muselin, Tom Tima and Milan Rester, were arrested by police when a Workers Party meeting was raided at Woodlawn. Each was sentenced to five years' imprisonment and fined $500. The case has been bitterly fought, the American Civil Liberties Union assisting in the appeal.

The present question involves the request of the plaintiffs for a new trial, refused by the lower court.

This case also was viewed by the Superior Court which dismissed it, whereupon it was carried to the Supreme Court which is asked to decide several constitutional points not decided by the Superior Court.

OHIO RIVER CANALIZED

tablished modern terminals. Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, accompanied by several of the department engineers, inspected them last year. Subsequently a party of more than 300 Pittsburgh business leaders covered the same ground in the Chamber of Commerce tour to the Gulf of Mexico.

The status of the Ohio River project, which was begun in 1878 with the starting of work on Davis Island dam, was given today as follows:

Of the 50 locks and dams necessary to establish a nine-foot stage of water between Pittsburgh and the mouth of the river at Cairo, Ill., throughout the year, 46 have been completed, and the four still under construction, all at the extreme lower end of the river, are more than half completed and will be finished next year.

The Ohio Valley Improvement Association's convention was opened with an address of welcome by T. P. Gaylord, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Oscar F. Barrett, president of the association, responded.

In his annual report Mr. Barrett stated that while the amount of freight carried by the Ohio in 1927 was 143 per cent greater than the 1923 tonnage, the average length of the haul had decreased during the five-year period from 86.5 miles to 60.5 miles, the ton-mileage accordingly showing an increase of just 71 per cent. "The decrease in average haul mileage," he said, "is probably caused by increasing use of the river around the Pittsburgh district for inter-mill shipments." Nevertheless the average haul of iron, steel and metals last year was 300 miles.

"The facts," continued Mr. Barrett, "unmistakably indicate that we do not yet have a river capable of handling regular trade in cargos going from one section of the country to the other. While it serves a local need, it is not carrying regularly the products of the Ohio valley to tidewater or to distant markets. Local traffic is very desirable and doubtless will increase substantially, but it was not for this traffic that the people of the United States invested so heavily in the improvement of the river. In 1929 this improvement will have been completed and the people will expct returns from the investment."

WOMEN ENTERTAINED

Wives and daughters of the delegates were entertained by the H. J. Heinz Company this morning by a tour of the Heinz plant followed by a luncheon.

At midday the delegates were the guests of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation in a tour of the South Hills in motor coaches and a luncheon at the Chartiers Heights Country Club.

The afternoon program included addresss by William B. Rodgers, president of the Rodgers Sand Company, on "European Waterways;" Walter F. Schulz, engineer and architect, of Memphis, on "Terminals;" D. M. Hoover, supervising inspector general, United States Steamboat Inspection Service; George H. Campbell, assistant to the President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; Maj. Jarvis J. Bain, United States district engineer at Huntington, W. Va., Maj. R. G. Powell, United States district engineer at Cincinnati, and Lieut. Col. G. R. Spalding, United States district engineer at Louisville.

BANQUET TONIGHT

The annual banquet will be held in the Italian room of the William Penn Hotel at 7 o'clock tonight. Councilman Robert Garland will be toastmaster in place of ex-Congressman James Francis Burke, who was to have officiated but who will be unable to attend. These addresses are scheduled: William T. Mossman, of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, on "Distribution and the Completed Ohio;" Maj. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of United States Engineers; Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, chairman and executive of the Inland Waterways Corporation, and Riley J. Wilson, president of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress. Motion pictures of steamboat and steel barge construction and launching will be shown.

There will be a business session tomorrow morning. In the afternoon the delegates will be guests of the Carnegie Steel Company on a tour of the local rivers in the steamer William G. Clyde.

POWER DAMS URGED

Now that canalization of the Ohio is about finished, development of its tributaries is next in order, Col. Harley B. Ferguson, United States division engineer at Cincinnati, told the association. It is practical on some of the tributaries, notably the Kanawha and Green rivers, he declared, to build dams 30 feet high, and thereby develop, as a by-product of navigation, water power. This power, sold to industrial concerns, will help pay for the maintenance of the rivers, he said.

Col. Ferguson presented these figures as to the cost of improving and maintaining the Ohio and its navigable tributaries: There has been spent in the construction of the Ohio River movable dams $103,000,000, and $6,000,000 more must be spent to complete the four dams as yet unfinished. The fixed dams, one at Emsworth and one at Dead Man's Island, replacing movable dams Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, call for an additional expenditure of $7,000,000.

"We may roughly figure the cost of improving the Ohio," Col. Ferguson said, "at about $115,000 a mile. The annual maintenance cost is about $2,500,000.

"The cost of improving not only the Ohio but also its navigable tributaries, involving a total of 2,000 miles of waterway, has been about $150,000,000, and the annual maintenance cost is $4,000,000."

HIGHWAYS AID

Col. Ferguson spoke of the highways as important traffic feeders of the rivers, and urged the association to carry on a campaign for the extension of important roads to the banks of the Ohio and its affluents.

Norman F. Titus, chief of the transportation division of the United States Department of Commerce, warned the delegates that an important attack was to be made on the improvement of the inland waterways in a forthcoming publication by one of the biggest economic organizations in the country, which he did not name. This organization would take the stand, he said, that the government was not warranted in spending money on the development of the rivers.

Mr. Titus said the organization's argument was based on error. He took the position that river improvement was necessary to relieve the railroads of their steadily increasing burden. Here in Pittsburgh, he said, the rail gateways and terminals were congested close to the saturation point. It was proved, he said, during the war. Mr. Titus said the Department of Commerce estimated very conservatively that if traffic continued to increase at the present rate the country would have to double its railroad facilities during the next 25 years to handle it.

Longest Parade To Mark River Opening

What probably will be the longest parade, in point of distance traveled, in the world's history is being planned by the Ohio Valley Improvement Association today, to signalize the opening of the stream to year-round navigation.

Oscar F. Barrett, president of the association, proposed in his annual report that a steamboat parade proceed from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill., where the Ohio empties into the Missisippi, next year, to celebrate the completion of the last of the 50 locks and dams. Cairo is 968.5 miles from Pittsburgh. The President of the United States and other notable persons will be asked to make the trip.

Pittsburgh would contribute many vessels to the pageant, for 78 steamboats have their headquarters here. The largest is the Homer Smith, 721 tons, and the next largest is the Vesta Coal Company towboat Sailor, 445 tons.

Capt. Klein Here With Cairo Delegates

Cairo, Ill., has sent a large delegation to Pittsburgh for the annual convention of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association. Mayor August Bode and the principal business men of the city are attending the sessions. Who should turn up in their delegation but an old Pittsburgher, Capt. John F. Klein! Capt. Klein, once not only one of the most prominent rivermen of Pittsburgh but also a Pittsburgh councilman and prominent in local civic affairs of all kinds, is now a citizen of the city at the mouth of the Ohio. He was cordially greeted by a multitude of Pittsburgh friends.

TUNNEY WEDS POLLY IN ROME HOTEL SALON

ROME, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion, and Miss Mary Josephine Lauder, of Greenwich, Conn., were married this morning in the Hotel Russie.

Two salons of the hotel were used, one for the civil and the other for the religious ceremony. The floral decorations were gorgeous white roses with tuberoses predominating.

Monsignor Joseph A. Breslin, vice rector of the American College and Tunney's former parish priest, performed the religious ceremony. Monsignor Eugene S. Burke, rector of the college, was present at both ceremonies.

Signor Brofferio, one of the leading Fascists, conducted the civil ceremony, which preceded the religious one. He delivered a short address expressing his good wishes for the happiness of the couple.

In performing the civil ceremony Brofferio read the articles of the Italian civil code establishing the rights and duties of married people.

Marriage imposes, he said, reading from the' code, that the couple must live together, be faithful to each other and assist each other. "The husband is head of the family," says the Italian law, he continued.

The wife, Brofferio said, follows the "civil condition of the husband," takes his name and is obliged to accompany him wherever he chose to fix his residence.

Then Brofferio turned to the bride and said: "The wife must contribute to the maintenance of the husband if the later does not have the means."

It was by as pecial dispensation that the religious ceremony was performed in the hotel and not in the sacristy of a church or in an ecclesiastic building such as a rectory.

Only worthy institutions gain public confidence and so grow and flourish. The splendid success of McCreery's 24th Anniversary dramatically demonstrates that Pittsburghers continue to heartily approve of McCreery's. These are the 4 facts about McCreery's that made the Anniversary a great success—and are true of this institution every day of the year.

FACT 1
McCreery's . . . Dependable As Your Own Bank!

You believe in your bank. You trust it. That's why you bank where you do. You can have as much confidence in this store as in your bank. Be confident that all McCreery merchandise is of dependable quality. Anything you buy from McCreery is quality-right. And that is true every day in the year.

FACT 2
McCreery's . . . Modern As Flying!

The symbol of 1928 is flying. This store has not adopted all modern ideas. It is not modern in a tricky, bizarre sense. It has, however, exercised good taste and adopted the best of modern ideas, merchandise and equipment. This store is as modern as flying . . . absolutely.

FACT 3
McCreery's . . . Price-Right As a Government Bond!

Some bonds are cheaper than government bonds! None are better. Government bonds are a symbol of good, honest value. And style for style and quality for quality McCreery merchandise is priced right. You can be sure McCreery merchandise is price-right as a government bond . . . always!

FACT 4
McCreery's . . . Style-Right As a Chanel Dress!

"Coco" Chanel is famous for her dresses of subtle smartness. She is internationally recognized as a fashion authority. Just so is McCreery's recognized as a style-right store in Pittsburgh. Everything here from a $98.50 gown to a simple $15 dress is fashion-right . . . always!

Ready Now For Fall 1928
For Modern-Minded People

This Anniversary just completed stands as a demonstration of the readiness of McCreery's to serve the discriminating people of Pittsburgh with the new—with the fashion-right—with the dependable—with the modern things you want—at fair prices. Now comes the Fall season in full, vigorous swing. You're all ready for it. So are we. Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of the McCreery quality things you want are all ready. Now on to the full Fall season 1928 in the modern store for modern-minded people.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Martha Brooks to Become Bride of Alexander Laughlin Robinson at One of Fall's Larger Weddings

SO many of the weddings this fall have been small home events, haven't you noticed? And in the spring, to go back farther, there were few large weddings. Well, this autumn I know of at least one large wedding which will be notable this year not only for the distinctive ceremony, but for the prominence of the bride and bridegroom-to-be.

Martha Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Faber Brooks, of Shields, and Alexander Laughlin Robinson, son of the William Christopher Robinsons, of whom I am speaking, will be married, as I mentioned a few days ago, on Monday, October 15.

The ceremony will take place at 5 o'clock in the Shields Presbyterian Church. And before the wedding there will be many entertainments, as one might expect in the case of such prominent and popular young folks.

Mrs. B. F. Jones, III, the former Katharine Holdship, will be matron of honor and there will be eight bridesmaids. Mary Robinson, Mary Oliver, Clodagh McCune, Eleanor McCargo and Lillian Rose are the Pittsburgh and Sewickley members, and Mrs. Esther Cochran, of Youngstown, O.; Mrs. Theodore Romayne, of New York, and Mrs. Henry Rowley, of Chicago, will complete Martha's attendants.

I HAD heard that Priscilla Barnes, who came out season before last, would name a winter wedding date, but the date will be in the spring, I was told yesterday. Her engagement to William W. Whitcomb was announced in July, you know.

Tonight she and her father, G. Webber Barnes, of Howe street, will leave for the East to attend the wedding of Mr. Barnes' niece, Helen Rhodes, of West Manchester, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes and Priscilla returned several days ago from Oil City.

MRS. JAMES LYALL STUART and her daughter, Emily, have been at Bass Rocks for the summer, I mentioned before. They are expected back, I believe, in another week. Emily, by the way, was listed this summer with the prospective debutantes of this season.

THE wedding of Jessie Marianne Thorp, daughter of the Charles Monro Thorps, of Maple avenue, Edgewood, and Edwin Williams Fiske, Jr., son of Mrs. Edwin Williams Fiske, of Mount Vernon, New York, will take place on Monday at 5:30 o'clock in the family home with the Rev. Ralph Waldo Lloyd, of the Edgewood Presbyterian Church, as the officiant.

Mrs. William Forker Whitla, of Sharon, formerly Eleanor Thorp, and a sister of the bride-to-be, will be matron of honor and Eugene S. Fiske will be his brother's best man. A small reception will follow the ceremony.

THE Edward J. Schellentragers, of the Schenley Apartments, will leave today for a two-weeks' motor trip through Virginia and North Carolina. They will go to Old Point Comfort, Va.; Rocky Mount, N. C., and Charlotte, N. C., returning to Washington, where they will spend a few days at the Congressional Country Club before coming back to Pittsburgh.

They carried baskets of rosebuds. William Matlack Conner, of Erie, was best man. Mrs. Campbell wore blue chiffon taffeta, while Mrs. Allen appeared in purple velvet and crepe. Mr. and Mrs. Allen have left for a southern motor trip. The bride is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1927, and Mr. Allen was graduated from Pennsylvania State College in 1926.

THE marriage of Miss Dorothy Mae Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royal Ellsworth Cook, of Wilkinsburg, and Chester Leroy Wentz, of Elizabeth, N. J., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Wentz, of Franklin, Pa., was solemnized last night in the Cook home by the Rev. Joseph L. Fisher, of the Central Christian Church. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a period gown of white satin trimmed with pearls, with a veil of lace and tulle held with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Mrs. Donald Ford Alexander, also a recent bride, was matron of honor, and wore her wedding gown of white satin and duchesse lace. She carried pink and orchid dahlias. The bridesmaids were also her sisters, Miss Maude A. Cook, in pink chiffon and lace with a bouquet of orchid dahlias, and Miss Helen Cook, in orchid chiffon and lace with a bouquet of pink dahlias. George G. Main was best man and the ushers included Donald Ford Alexander and Kenneth Whitekettle. Mrs. Fred Hughes, of Detroit, as matron of honor, appeared in sapphire blue velvet and carried sunset dahlias. The flower girls, Clementine and Mary Balch, wore frocks of white crepe and carried pink rosebuds. Robert W. Haley was his brother's best man. A dinner for the families and a few friends followed the ceremony. After a month's trip to the Pacific coast, Mr. and Mrs. Haley will be at home in the Park View apartments, Beaver.

The quiet, courteous reserve in the atmosphere of this store makes for pleasure and satisfaction in shopping. In selecting a gift for someone, or a piece of jewelry for one's self, there must be a place to concentrate, and to consider. Here a special effort is made to see that there are no unnecessary disturbances to disconcert the patron, or to change the habitual peace and refinement of the store.

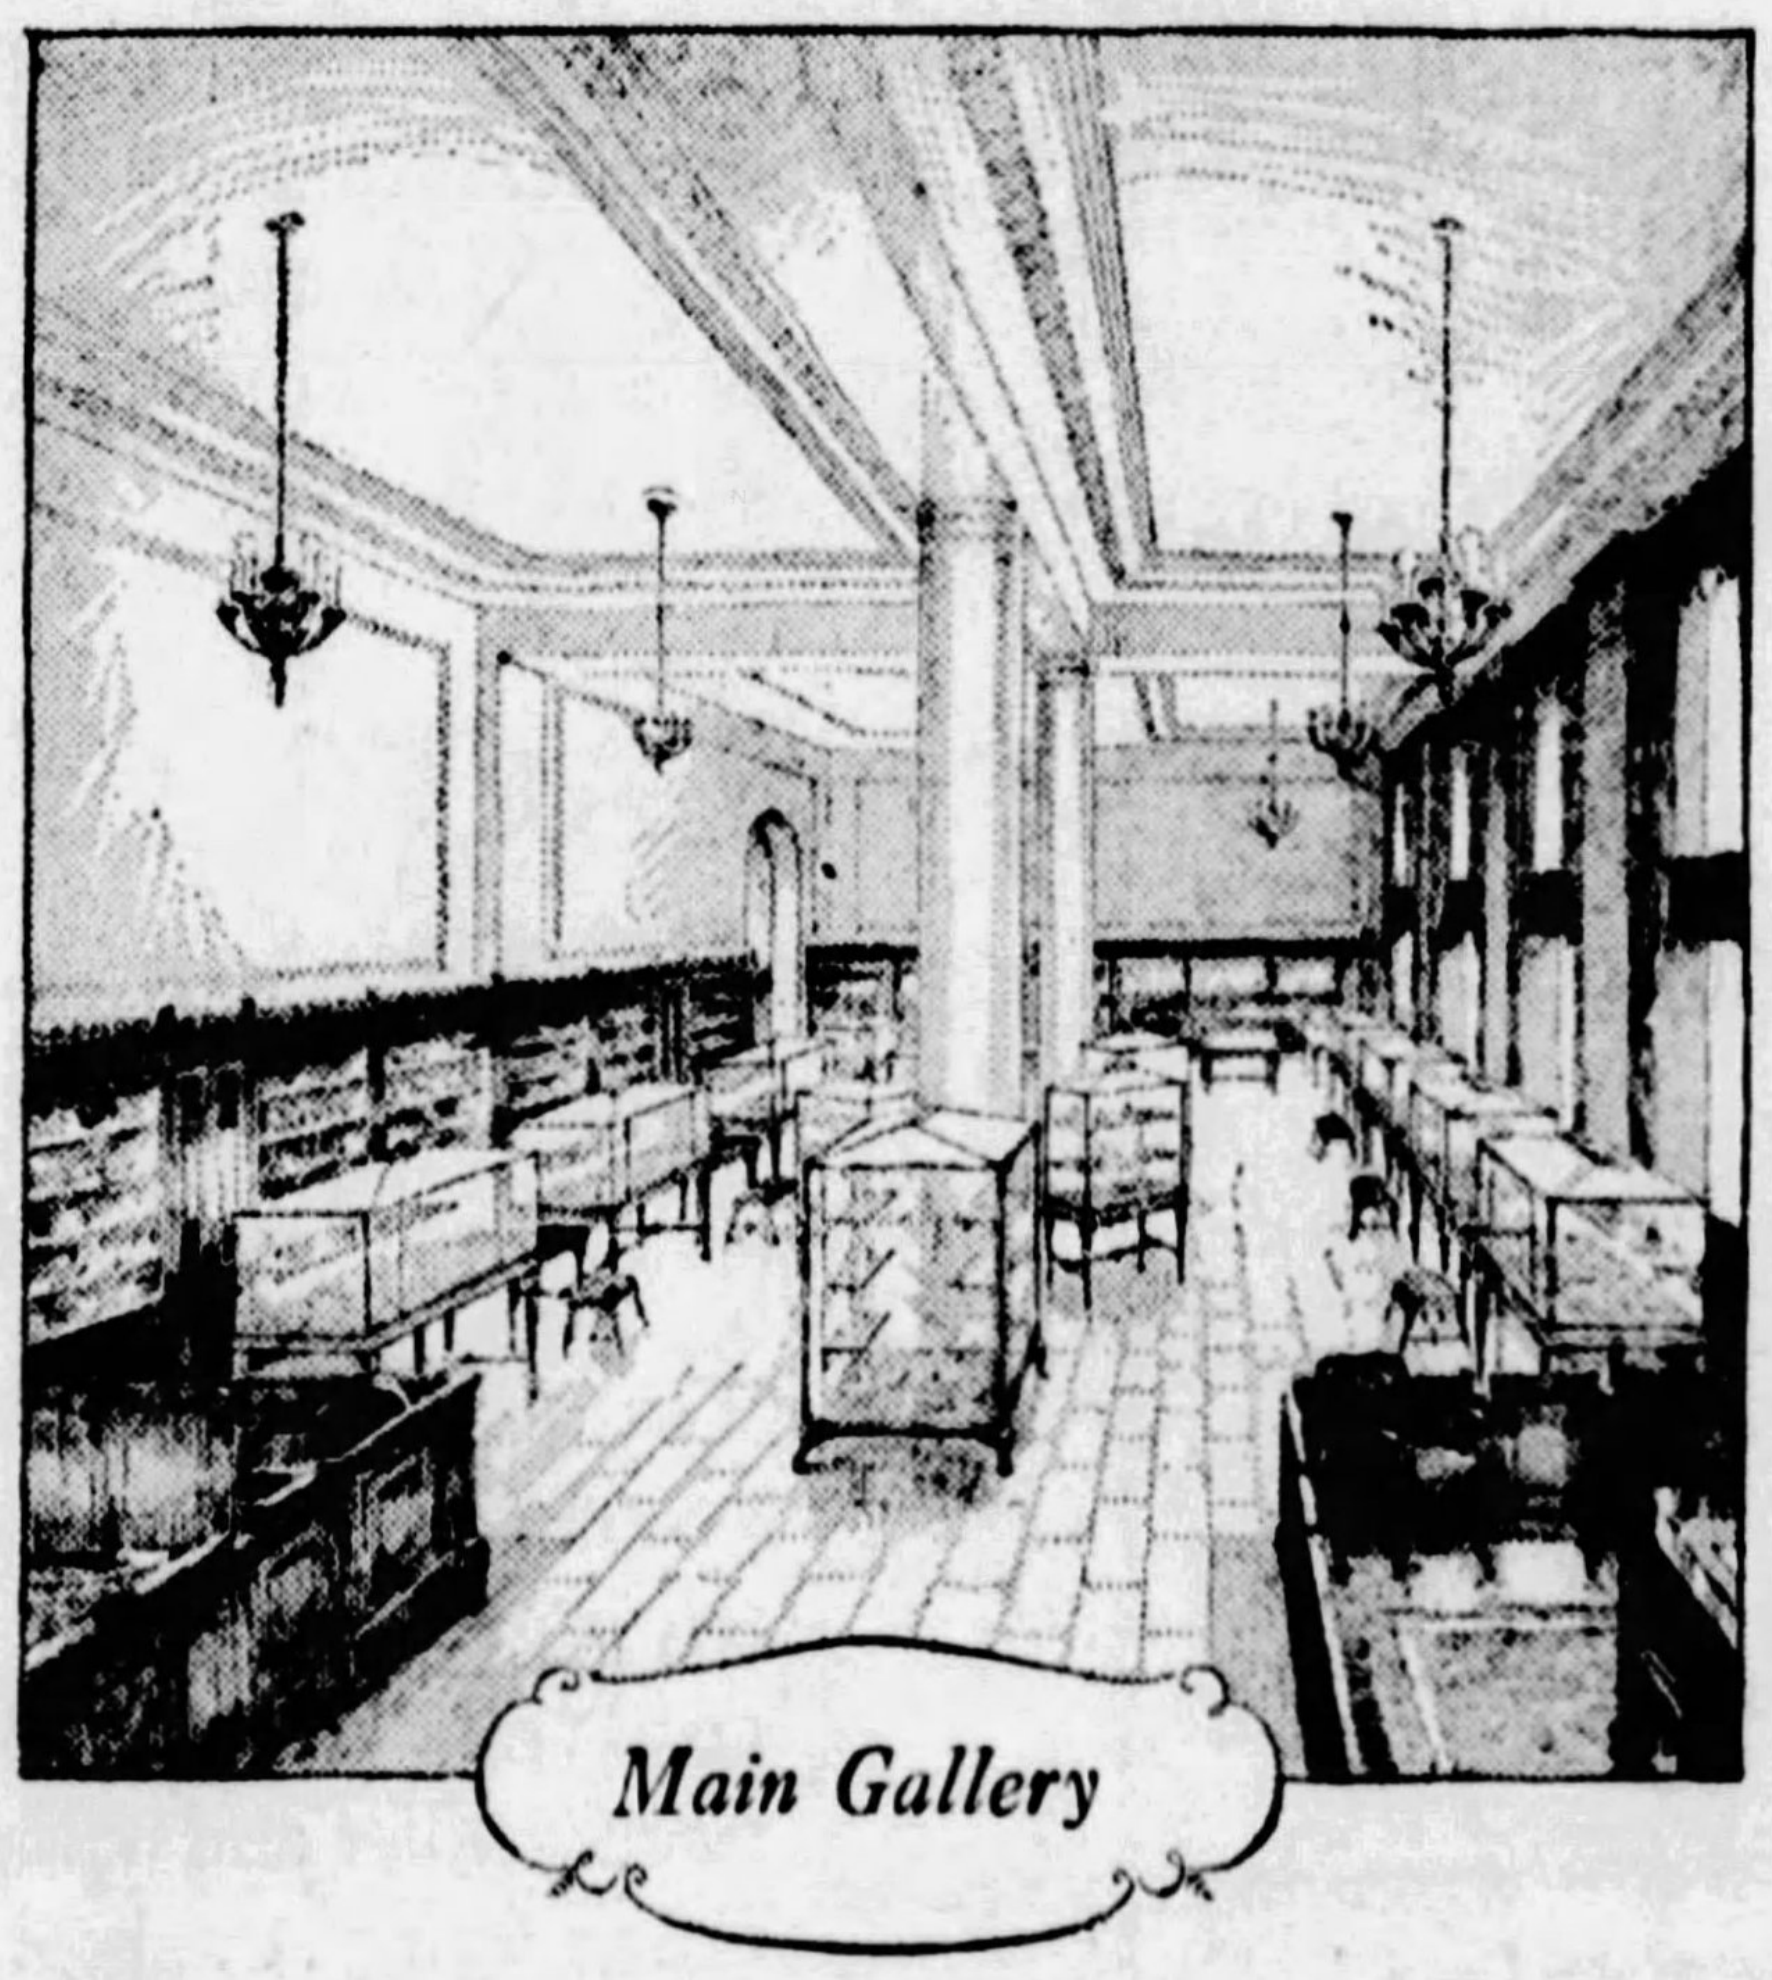
Grogan Building
Wood Street at Sixth Avenue



Main Gallery

THE new Grogan Galleries display rare jewels and objects of art in a new kind of setting—a setting which provides for comfort and leisurely selection, and recaptures the old romance of the jewelers in a modern way.

Counters and old fashioned methods of exhibiting wares have been discarded for newer and better ways, and the "store" atmosphere has given place to an atmosphere of quiet dignity that is both inviting and impressive.

In planning these improvements we have endeavored to express anew our faith in Pittsburgh's future. And in making our galleries as modern and as beautiful as possible we are but doing what is natural and appropriate for a jewel and silver-smithing house, rich with associations of ninety years of service in this great city of industry, commerce and culture.

BUGS BAER Says

SPORT fans are optimistic. Even though Gene Tunney does get married he will always be the champion to us.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Same with the Yanks and Cards. This is the week when politics is as homeless as a rare beetle looking for its museum.

Babe Ruth's leg is rounding into shape nicely. It will never be a very beautiful shape. But all we ask is that it props him up at the plate while he swings those shoulders and follows through with his ears.

St. Louis has been an important town ever since the early French explorers discovered it hiding back of the Annhauser-Busch brewery.

It has not won many pennants. But what's a pennant or two? We have seen dozens of those things hanging off the fenders of touring flivvers.

Whether the Yanks or Cards win we will still be fans. The big thing is getting the ticket which entitles you to spread yourself over six inches of pine board in the bleachers.

The Yanks' park will seat 86,000 uncomfortably and profitably. There should surely be one ticket around that a commuter could grasp for himself.

But we have failed to discover one. We have looked in mail chutes, revolving doors, under equestrian statues and setting hens. But those 86,000 ducats seem to be held together by some mysterious centrifugal force.

How we envy the police on these stupendous festas. Every big event in the arena is police and firemen's field day. The boys march in to preserve law and order, but all of them carry opera glasses.

We would like to borrow a blue uniform and enjoy the rest of the world's spectacles. It's better than a raccoon coat in a fraternity dance or a saxophone in June.

One thing we can say is that the police and firemen are all loyal rooters for the home team. They set a good example for the malcontent who goes out to the park hoping the foreign team will win because he has laid two bits on the opposition. And crowds of 86,000 mean that baseball will make money even though half of the 86,000 is wearing badges.

No Money

ROSZIKA DOLLY

There will be no money for Roszika Dolly, dancing sister, from the estate of the late Sir Mortimer Davis, Canadian distiller, it is apparent today in his will, filed in court. Half of his estate goes to his son, Mortimer, with the stipulation that none of the money is to pass to Roszika, young Mortimer's wife, nor any of their children.

Edgewood Row in Court

The sequel to a neighborhood row in exclusive Edgewood came last night in the little office of Justice of the Peace George Craig, of that borough, when he imposed a fine of $45 and $5 costs on Mrs. James McFall, of Edgewood avenue, charged with disorderly conduct. The office was packed with a throng of citizens, many of whom were summoned as witnesses.

Mrs. McFall had been arrested by Constable John Nye on charges preferred by William Hain, of Gordon street, Edgewood, in behalf of his wife. The latter charged that when she refused to allow a truckload of coal for Mrs. McFall to pass over a private concrete walk unless planks were paid to protect the pavement, she was verbally assailed by Mrs. McFall.

"Profane and abusive language," used by Mrs. McFall, it was testified, could be heard 100 feet. She denied the charge, and announced she would appeal from the decision of Justice of the Peace Craig.

SURVEY OF TRANSIT TO BEGIN

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

The formulation of a definite plan of action for the traction committee of the Allied Boards of Trade will take place after the return of C. V. Shoup, chairman of the committee, to Pittsburgh Saturday.

George P. Kountz, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, stated yesterday that the line of action to be taken in investigating the 25-cent bus fare, the one-man car and other factors in the transit situation would be left entirely in the hands of Mr. Shoup and the committee.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, when asked today if any action was contemplated by the municipal government on the 25-cent bus fare, the injustice of which has been exposed by The Sun-Telegraph, said the matter had not been brought up and that it rested entirely with the Traction Conference Board.

Charles A. Finley, chairman of the board, said bus operators were not under its jurisdiction. He pointed out that the board was formed to oversee the operators of the Pittsburgh Railways Company and to insure harmonious relationships between the street car company and the city.

The bus line is a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, but the board can take no action on it unless it pays dividends to the parent company. In this event the dividends would be included in the railway company earnings and the board could inquire into the use of the funds.

Indicted To Parade Oct. 10

The "Parade of the Indicted" in the Federal grand jury liquor conspiracy probe will be staged next Wednesday, October 10.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker today signed an order fixing October 10 at 10 a. m., as the time when the scores of police officials, politicians, racketeers and others will be arraigned in Federal Court to plead guilty or not guilty to charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. The court acted on motion of Assistant United States Attorney Joseph A. Richardson, representing Federal Attorney John D. Meyer.

Of the 167 indicted by the grand jury in June, it was disclosed today, 30 are missing, one is dead, and Al Forney, slot machine baron, is in jail. He was sentenced to serve six months and to pay $3,000 fine after pleading no defense.

With the setting of the date for arraignment, it is expected counsel for some of the defendants will start filing motions attacking the indictments on technical grounds. In addition to the blanket indictments against the 167, five supplemental indictments were returned naming the defendants by districts.

Those accounted for are at liberty in $5,000 bond each. Among the indicted are Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh, two police magistrates, three inspectors, 10 lieutenants, four patrolmen, two members of the Legislature, four ward chairmen and one constable.

The check was for expenses incurred in cleanup operations of corn-borer eradication. He said he believed himself entitled to the compensation as he had done the work while in the employ of Northcote.

HEALED, SAYS PARALYTIC; 70 HIT GLORY BARN TRAIL

Seventy persons professed conversion last night to the Rev. John W. Sproul, conducting services in the "Glory Barn," West Carson street.

Preaching on the "Seven Steps in Healing," Sproul prayed with several persons who had come to the platform to be healed. All left saying they had obtained relief.

The crowd last night was estimated at 2,500 persons.

Stating that he believed in divine healing because "since the days of Christ divine healing has been going on," Evangelist Sproul prayed for the sick and tired to come forward and renew their faith.

Mrs. Anna Higgins, 70, gray haired, was helped to the platform, leaning on the arm of her daughter, Mrs. C. B. Randolph, of Center street, Blawnox. Mrs. Higgins been unable to move without assistance from others since she suffered a stroke several months ago.

At the close of the prayer, Mrs. Higgins insisted on walking down from the platform alone. Then to show those present she was sure of herself she retraced her steps to the platform and back again to her seat without help from anyone.

2 WOMEN, 2 MEN DEAD

Four persons, two women and two men, are dead in a suicide wave in Allegheny county in the last 24 hours.

Battering down the door of his two-room apartment at 1317 Reddour street, last night, Fred Tregresser found his wife, Julia Tregresser, 26, dead on the floor with a bullet in her right temple and an automatic pistol nearby. Tregresser returned home from work last night, found the door locked and broke in. He told North Side police that six weeks ago his wife and their two children, Fred, 8, and Mary, 5, moved here from Jeannette. She was displeased with local surroundings and longed to return to Jeannette, Tregresser said.

Mrs. G. Marie Baughman, 32, of 6216 Station street, died in the West Penn Hospital last night from poison which she drank in her home a short time before, morgue report states. No motive could be learned for her act.

TRUCKMAN HANGS SELF

Believed despondent at losing his old home through debt, Albert E. Hayes, 65, known throughout the Oakland district as an ice peddler and truckman for the last 20 years, hanged himself in the cellar of the house he had vacated, rear 3415 Terrace street. The body was found this morning by his son, William 189 Miami street, to whose home the father had gone to live after being forced to leave his Terrace street dwelling this week. He had tried to end his life, two weeks ago, police were told when he built an improvised gibbet in the cellar and declared he was going to hang himself. His soon destroyed the apparatus.

The fourth suicide reported to the coroner was that of Michael Murdoch, 38, an inmate of the Dixmont Hospital for the Insane. He was found by employes this morning hanging in an outbuilding of the hospital. His home was in Argentine, Butler county.

Because, he says, his wife turned him out of their home, Nick Zyrek, 50, late of 7 Lumberman way, walked down Warfield street to the Allegheny River today—and jumped in. He was rescued by Frank Heble and Jacob Bick, employes of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, at work nearby. Zyrek was taken to North Side Police Station where police described him as a regular visitor.

Weather Conditions.

The Atlantic coast high shifted southward, diminishing in pressure. Highest barometer is 30.24, at Philadelphia. The disturbance that was centered over Arkansas yesterday morning has disappeared entirely, but the one that appeared over Alberta developed southward rapidly. It is now centered over Wyoming with a secondary center over North Dakota. The lowest barometer reported is 29.30, at Lander, and 29.38 at Bismarck. It is raining west of the center of the disturbance; but, while it is cloudy over the northern plains, rain has not as yet set in.

Cloudy and rainy weather prevails over the states between the Mississippi River and the Appalachian Mountains, but, as yet, there was not sufficient to break the drought in the Ohio Valley states.

The temperatures are generally normal or above.

River Conditions.

The rains yesterday were very light. The rivers are still at low stages with practically no change since yesterday morning. Stage at Pittsburgh is 9.7 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.4, and Dam No. 6, 7.4 feet. The dams are up.

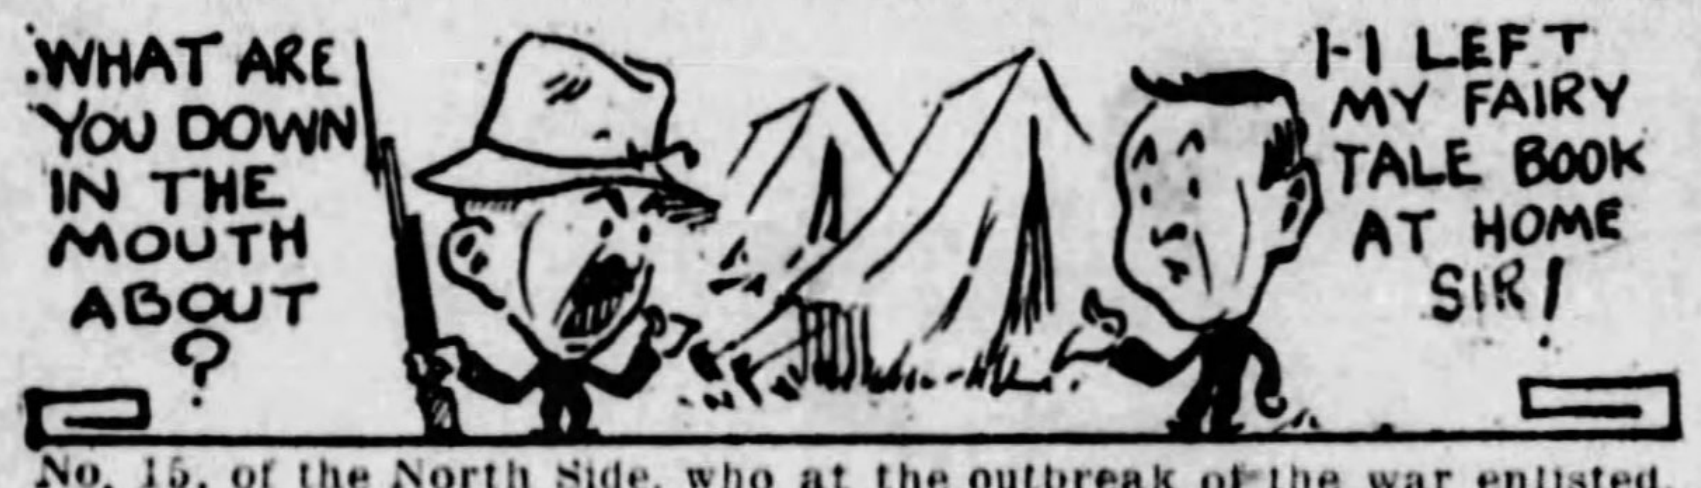
SIDE-WALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

WHEN 180 Pittsburgh veterans of the Spanish-American War leave this week to attend in Cuba the national convention of the veterans as guests of the Cuban government there will entrain with the group, Frederick M. Hohmann, a member of Allen Camp No. 15, of the North Side, who at the outbreak of the war enlisted. At that time Frederick Hohmann was just 14 and he probably was the youngest soldier in that war.



WHAT ARE YOU DOWN IN THE MOUTH ABOUT?
I-I LEFT MY FAIRY TALE BOOK AT HOME SIR!

James Garrity, a North Sider, tells of the coming convention in Cuba. "There will be from 10,000 to 25,000 veterans in Cuba when the convention comes to order," says Mr. Garrity. "We of the Allen Camp claim that Mr. Hohmann is the youngest man in the whole organization. He served seven years in the army—three years of which were in the Philippines and China.

* * *

"THAT a youth so immature was accepted in the army will bring home to all the seriousness with which the Spanish-American War was undertaken and will allow all to realize why these men who survived its hardships of battle and pestilence now like to gather at these yearly conventions. The ties of sacred memories and of dangers shared will be made tighter with re-enactment of stirring scenes after 30 long years' absence from the old battlefields. A special train will run the boys up historic San Juan Hill."

Of the stirring times incident to that war, or of the local excitement, we remember little. At the age of four one doesn't bother so much about such trifles as wars when the more important affairs of getting sufficient candy, bread and jelly, or evading a too-early time for retiring occupy the mind.

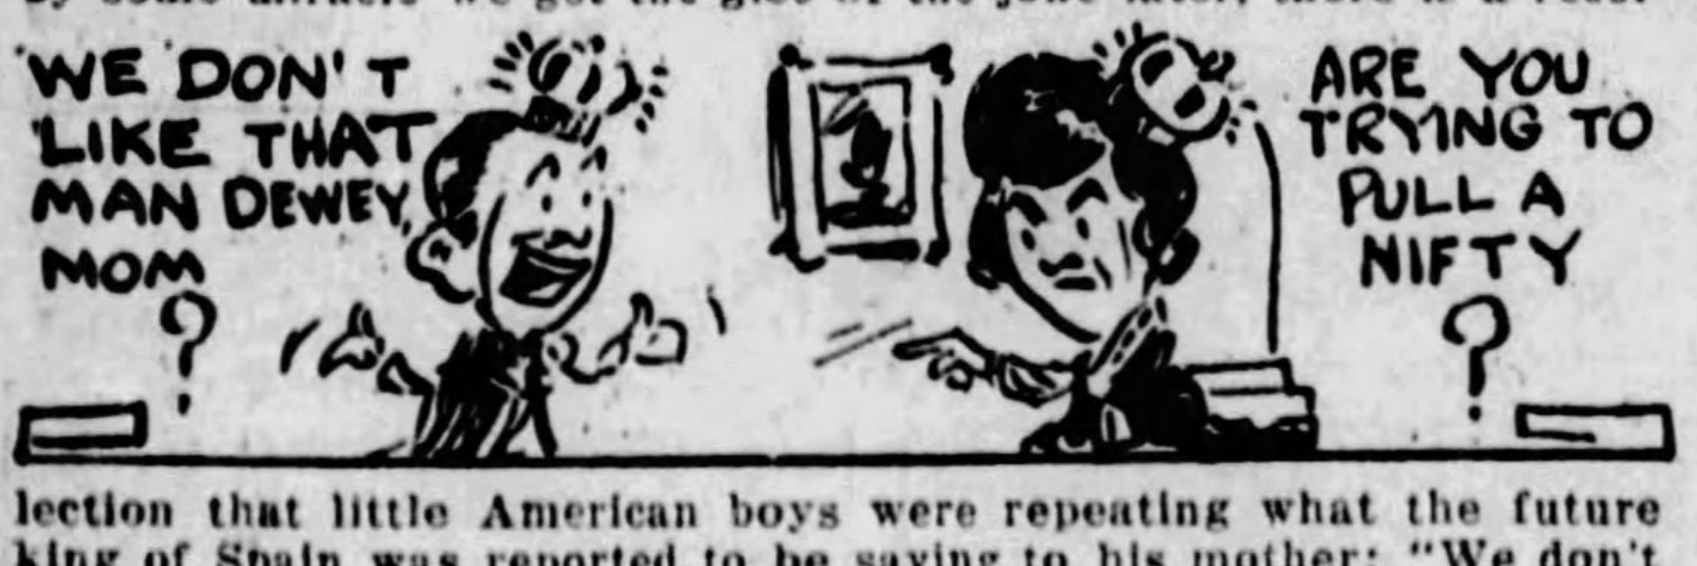
WHETHER accurate historically, we cannot say, but we associate such songs as "Just as the Sun Went Down," "Goodbye, My Blue Belle," and "Just Break the News to Mother," with the unpleasantness between Spain and this country.

And whether we heard it long after it was current or whether by some miracle we got the gist of the joke later, there is a recollection that little American boys were repeating what the future king of Spain was reported to be saying to his mother: "We don't like that man Dewey, Mom!" This being a very subtle tribute to the outstanding hero of that war and at the same time conveying the discomfiture of the Spaniards and a play on the pronunciation of the great naval hero's name.



WE DON'T LIKE THAT MAN DEWEY, MOM?
ARE YOU TRYING TO PULL A NIFTY?

With the World War intervening to bring battle on bigger scale, the war of 1898 by contrast naturally is not viewed as significant. Added to this is the historical impression that in that war the United States was a superior force, with nothing much to do but overwhelm the enemy. What is forgotten, and what veterans of that war might point out with grace, is that there were terrors and horrors quite apart from the garrisons of the Spaniards which had to be overcome. Disease was rampant in the Philippines and it occurs here that more than one Congressman thundered in the halls at Washington over the lack of supplies for the boys 'way off in Cuba.

AND for quite a time after the war store windows in Pittsburgh and private homes exhibited the picture of a gray-haired, gray-mustached admiral who had electrified the imagination of the nation by cutting the cable and rushing, with full speed ahead, to attack the Spanish fleet.

In the eyes of historians, perhaps, wars are comparative, some are big and some are small. Sherman did not so distinguish. He indicated that "all war is all hell. Spanish-American veterans knew that Sherman was no mere phrase-maker.

RED CROSS RENEWS PLEA FOR STORM VICTIM AID

With 500,000 people in Porto Rico dependent for their food, clothing and shelter upon the Red Cross, and 12,000 destitute families in Florida in a similar situation, another urgent appeal for funds was sent out today from the National Red Cross headquarters in Washington.

"Every dollar is needed and in order to save the hurricane sufferers from starvation and disease renewed efforts must be made by every chapter to reach its quota this week," the message to chairman A. K. Oliver, of the Pittsburgh chapter stated.

It was pointed out that nearly half of Pittsburgh's quota remains to be raised. Thus far Pittsburgh has raised only $83,524 of a fund of $150,000 asked for.

"The people of Allegheny county have donated only a little more than six cents per capita," an officer of the chapter said today. "With a population exceeding 1,250,000, the quota of $150,000 placed each person's assessment at slightly more than a dime. Considering that hundreds of thousands of our fellow beings are homeless, naked and on the verge of starvation it was thought that Allegheny county would meet its quota within a few days."

"If the people would stop to think and reflect what this appeal means to humanity," said chairman Oliver, "I am sure Pittsburgh's quota would be met within a few hours."

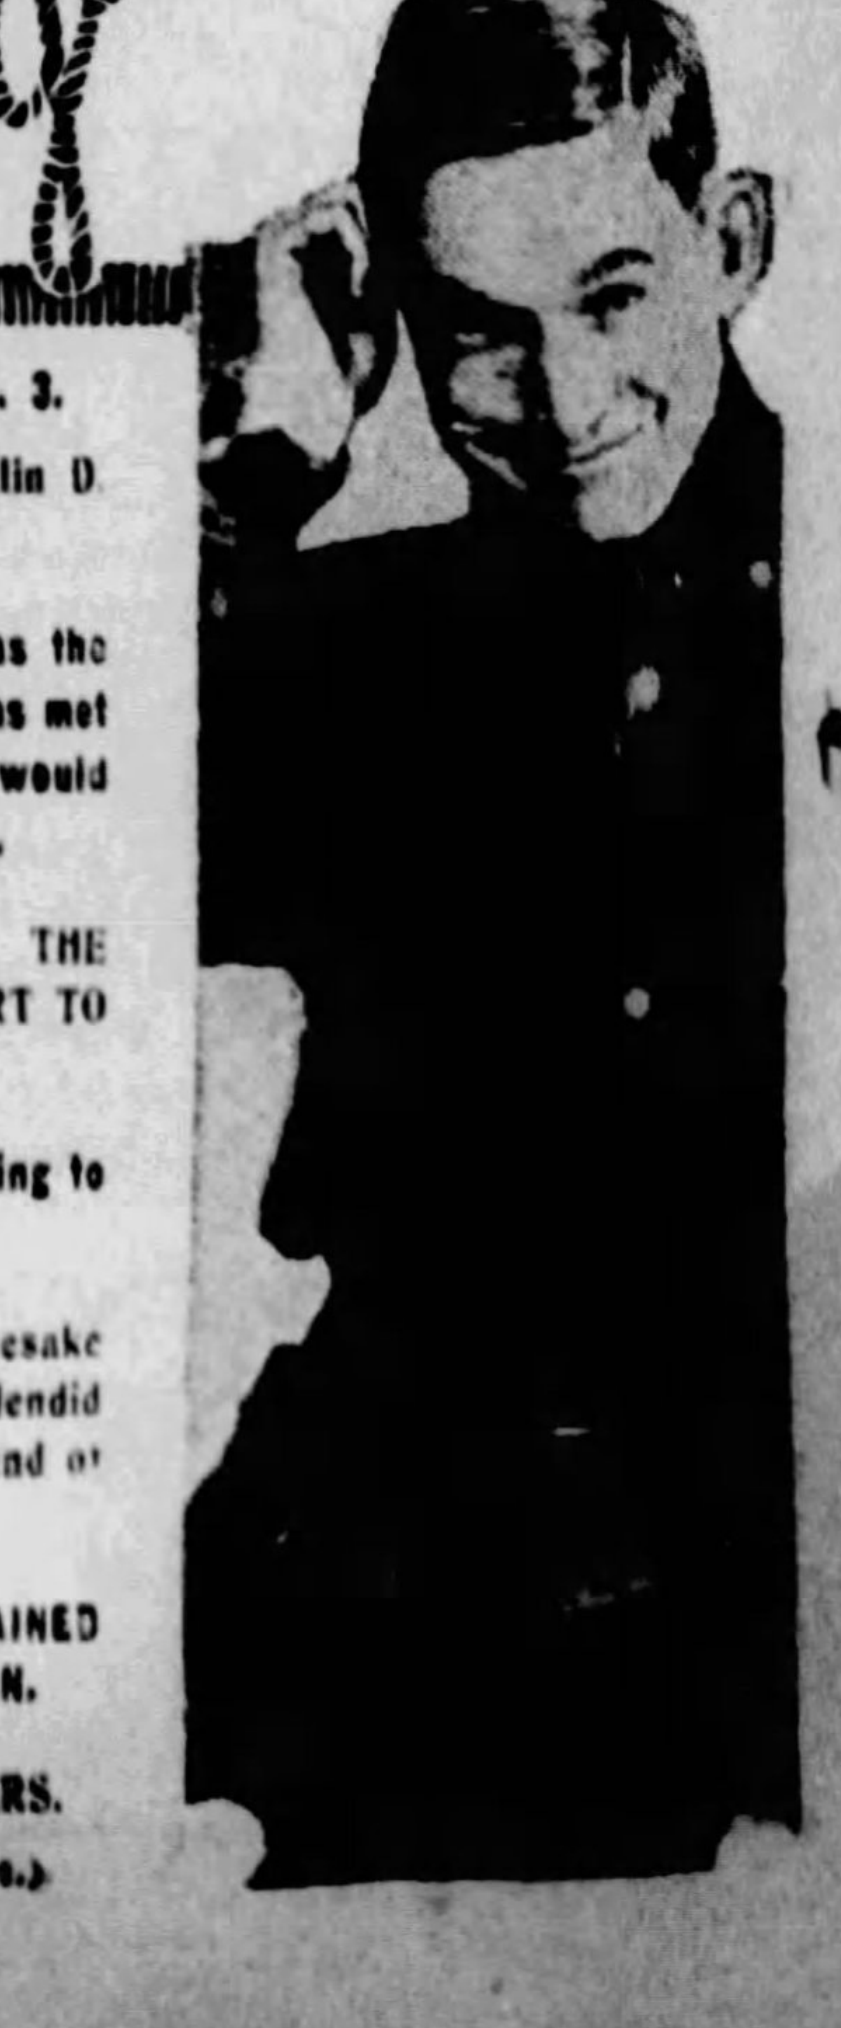
Will Rogers Says



SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 3.

Al Smith unanimously nominated Franklin D Roosevelt for governor of New York.

Roosevelt will always be remembered as the man that any time as many as three persons met either in conference or convention he would arise and nominate Al Smith for President.

YOU COULD JUST WAKE HIM IN THE MIDDLE OF NIGHT AND HE WOULD START TO NOMINATING AL.

His nominating days over, he is now going to take up politics seriously.

He is a Roosevelt by blood but a namesake politically. If he had retained his splendid qualities and stayed with the Republican end of the family he would have been President.

BUT I DOUBT IF HE COULD HAVE RETAINED THOSE QUALITIES AND BEEN REPUBLICAN.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

Diana Declares She Loves Ben After Ann Creates Scene at the Party

"GOING along, Freddiekins. Wouldn't leave lil' Ann, would you? Course not. Going marry lil' Ann—"

"Cut that bunk! And you can't come along. Bea's giving a party for Diana, and you're in no condition to show up there. Take you home first and then jog. Be a good girl now and don't start any rumpus."

But she was stubborn, and in the end he allowed the cab to put him down in the street outside the club, directing it to Ann's home and evading her reaching arms.

He made his way toward the building, all ablaze with lights, and stood for a moment under the balcony upon which Benny had established himself. Freddie did not know that Ann dismissed the cab the moment his back was turned, and his growl of surprise when she appeared, reeling along the drive, was brutal with anger.

"Thought I sent you home!" He called her a "crook," said other things, but the man on the balcony made no move . . . Oddly enough, he felt no impulse to go to the aid of his wife; she seemed no longer to belong to him. Furthermore, he was held as by iron bands; astonishment, disgust, fury, each laid a separate weight upon him, and he could neither stir nor call to the two who quarreled beneath his feet.

Ann was crying in a maudlin way. "Don't him love him Annikins, um old Freddie-boy? But 'course he does! Going marry um Annikins soon's she divorced bad old husband. Knew why she married bad old husband; pay um bills for Annikims. Loves her Freddie-boy"——

"Shut up, for the love of Mike! Here"—Freddie called a standing cab and practically lifted the girl into it. "Go on home and stay there—and try to sober up before that poor goof gets in. And cut out that divorce talk—I wouldn't marry you on a bet—you hear? Get that, now, and keep quiet!"

The cab drove away. Freddie went around to the front entrance. Benny sank back, sick with shame.

And when the cab began to roll down the street Ann leaned forward, ordered the driver to stop.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

DIANA began to send questioning glances to the mezzanine stealthily at first, then in a disturbed way. She gave aimless answers to her partner's jokes and her feet lagged. Benny—had he gone home? Left without a word to her, knowing that she was sailing tomorrow for a year's absence?

She felt crushed, shamefully neglected—forgetting that she had not so much as spoken to Benny when he stood forlornly at the edge of the crowd about the table when the toasts were drunk.

And presently she slipped out, ran up the balcony stairs, her eyes blurred by tears; crept into a lounge room. No one about here. The guests were too intent on their merrymaking to notice she had gone. Her air of gayety fell away; she moved wanly to an open window and looked out over the river—a wide grayness in the soft dark.

Music came faintly from downstairs, an old-fashioned waltz, with the violins sobbing as if over half-forgotten sweet memories. . . Memories! Things long past . . . Beauty and sadness, sunlight and shadow . . . What lay ahead? Only this—dancing, laughing, pretending to be happy when her heart always ached? Longing, longing for the touch of a hand, the sound of a voice—for the arms of another woman's husband?

She sank down on a divan, look still fixed on the gray of the night. A turning point; a moment fraught with decision. She would leave behind the madness, the revelry, find life in more stable things. She was through with a career of playing forever.

A rustle behind her; the divan creaked faintly as hands were placed on the back. Thinking Noddy or Toddy had followed her here, Diana managed a pallid smile, turned about . . .

Benny Black! White-faced and stricken, looking down at her as if he never would turn his gaze away. Loving her with his eyes—

By a tremendous effort she moved her shoulders in a little shrug, brought out lightly, "Well! Why aren't you dancing?"

But he went on staring, and her attempted blitheness vanished before what she saw in his face. "You'll be gone a year." He said this softly, in a flat, dead tone.

"Yes." Why pretend? They understood each other, and at last were meeting with no barriers up. Now, when it was too late!

"I'll miss you so!"

She kept her face down, for her lips were trembling. Yet there was bitterness in the movement of her head.

"I like to know you are near, Diana. I like to know that."

The girl laughed now—harshly. "You never let me believe it. Took pains that I shouldn't believe it—yes. Oh, yes!"

He put a hand out, laid it on her shoulder. But she glanced at his shaking fingers, and he took it away. "Diana—not this! Please—something to say—you'll listen? What's the use of telling you I'm sorry. Shouldn't a man abase himself when he has judged like an exalted fool? Condemned what he was too small to understand? Shouldn't he do that, Diana?"

She answered quietly, though her eyes were filled with a mocking light: "I see! Weighed and found wanting. . . . Yes—you did that to me. Condemned me. Thought me cheap—an unworthy person." She flung at him, "But that never made me so!"

"Diana"—

Well, she had suffered, too. Not so much as this man with the pain-filled eyes, for he suffered from his own mistakes. A wave of pity rushed over her. After all, she loved him—always would love him. She said gently: "Perhaps you didn't understand that I cared very little for what 'they say'? It seemed enough to know myself square—to like myself."

"Darling—darling"—

"No—you're forgetting—things. Well"—

Had they been less absorbed they might have noted a slight quieting of the clamor in the ballroom down stairs.

This was because Ann had come in. Ann set a zig-zag course for the stairway to the balcony. Grins, shrugs, looks of consternation were passed about as she disappeared at the end of the landing.

"Stolen Love," a new serial by Hazel Livingston, starts tomorrow in Pittsburgh-Sun Telegraph. A story of a girl who had to make a decision—risk the life of luxury offered her by not telling the man she loved of her past or letting him know the truth.

Benny and Diana turned swiftly, saw her sway toward them, still shrieking with empty mirth.

"So!" she spat out. "I thought there was somethinng you didn't want me to know! Trying to keep me at home! Keeping me out of the way so you could carry on your—your disgraceful affair—with that woman!"

CHAPTER XXIX.

ANN stood there leering at them, enjoying to the full the advantage surprise had given her. Diana regarded her with a cool contempt, but Benny started forward, protesting fiercely:

"Don't you touch me—don't you dare!" His wife pulled herself up, jerking away as if fearing the degredation of contact with him.

"But, Ann—"

"That's enough!" she cried loftily, and glared. "We'll see about this—what rights a wife has. Oh, yes—we'll see!"

He made a gesture of helplessness, turned his white face to Diana. "Please—I wish to apologize. My wife is not herself, as you can see. Sorry—so dreadfully sorry, to bring you into this . . . May I take you away?"

She arose without a word, but Ann whirled about and stood with her hands on her hips, barring the way. "Trying to escape me, are you? I should think you would, you love thief! But you'll not get away with this, breaking up my home!"

Diana paled, though it was with complete calmness she went back to the divan and sat down.

Benny, however, was beside himself. "For God's sake, Ann! You can't say such things as that! You've done mischief enough. I won't have this—do you understand?"

"Shut up, you fool!"

Diana got up then in a leisurely way and closed the door, drew the shades, while Ann sneered.

"Afraid your friends will hear, are you? Don't want them to know what I know now! Well, they'll find out soon enough, you home-wrecker!"

As if the epithet had been so much wind Diana crossed to the other girl, shaking off the man's detaining hand. "No! Benny, please. This is my business, too. I'm not afraid of her lies. Now you listen to me, Ann."

But Ann had no intention of listening. This situation, as her mean little mind grasped it, had been made to order for her purpose. She saw it as a chance to get rid of her husband, the while she would have an excuse to demand heavy alimony, and at the same time vent her spleen upon this woman she hated for being all she, herself, could not be.

But the pose broke quickly and she became herself again as new waves of hatred surged through her. "Think you can lecture me, do you? Sneaking up here to carry on your affair with my husband—I'll have justice!" she screamed.

Diana glanced at Benny, shook her head, and the action seemed to inflame Ann further. But she kept silent while the look of cunning crossed her face. Bursting into wild laughter, she scampered to the door before they knew what she was about, flung it wide, leaned across the railing of the mezzanine, calling at the top of her voice: "Come here, folks—come up here! A surprise—hurry! Come on—come on!"

"Look at them!" she shrilled. "Look them over! I found them here where they'd sneaked off together."

Benny stuttered: "Dreadful—this is outrageous!" and would have led Diana away. There was a movement in the crowd, a general shifting toward the door. Diana knew what it meant. They hated the sordid melodrama of this drunken gesture; all were her friends. But she could not let them go this way; she could not let them carry forth a doubt.

She started to her feet, held up her hand. "Don't go!" Her voice rang out clear and cool. "I've something to say." They hesitated, attention falling away from the swaying figure on the table to this other girl who stood here so proud and sure of herself. Only Ann seemed surprised, touched by apprehension.

"I wonder," Diana began, glancing towards her, "if there is a decent thought in your nasty little mind. You married him because you wanted money. You lied and cheated and made him think me what you are yourself!"

Ann's hysterical laugh interrupted. She cried: "Which means I got the man you wanted! And the way you were necking Ben when I came in shows you haven't given up, hope!" She faced the guests with brazen insolence. "Watch her cringe! She knows it's the truth!"

Benny went to his wife then, took her by the shoulders and shook her. "Stop this at once! You know it's not the truth, this evil talk. Lies! All lies!"

But she laughed again, shot a slyly malicious look at Diana—and found her eyes held by the calm dignity of the other.

"I do love Ben," Diana said quietly, almost exultantly. "I always will love him!"

Benny released his hold on his wife's shoulders, and all of them saw a light blaze in his face. But Ann looked upon Diana's honesty as her undoing; she seized the moment.

"You hear what she says? She admits it! In love with my husband—oh, she is shameless—a vile creature!"

Her triumph was short lived. The crowd was moving restlessly, pausing only to see Ann turn from Benny as he gripped her arm, beat at him with her fists, kicking, clawing like an enraged cat. He caught her hands and held them firmly until she was still. Then Beatrice went to Diana and led here away, still with her head high, outraged but triumphant.

Ann began a new tirade as the guests filed out, rather silently, full of scorn. Furious at being thus ignored, she flew at her husband, slapped him squarely across the face. "I'll make you suffer for this—and make her suffer—all my life! I hate you—hate you! Get out now! Never want to see you again—never. Go quick—go on quick!"

Benny left her there. The worst had happened; he could do nothing more. He spoke to Beatrice, apologizing miserably, and she patted his arm.

"Perhaps she'll go home with Freddie," Beatrice said. "Don't think about it, Ben. I'm sorry for you—and for Di. Folks are leaving now. I'll go right up to her.'"

Benny walked the streets for an hour—two hours—three. And this is why he did not hear, until nearly morning, what happened after all the guests had left the club.

Diana, once home, surprisingly enough fell at once into deep, refreshing sleep. Almost at dawn she set out by motor for New York and boarded the liner for France.

So it was weeks later in Paris, that she heard the news.

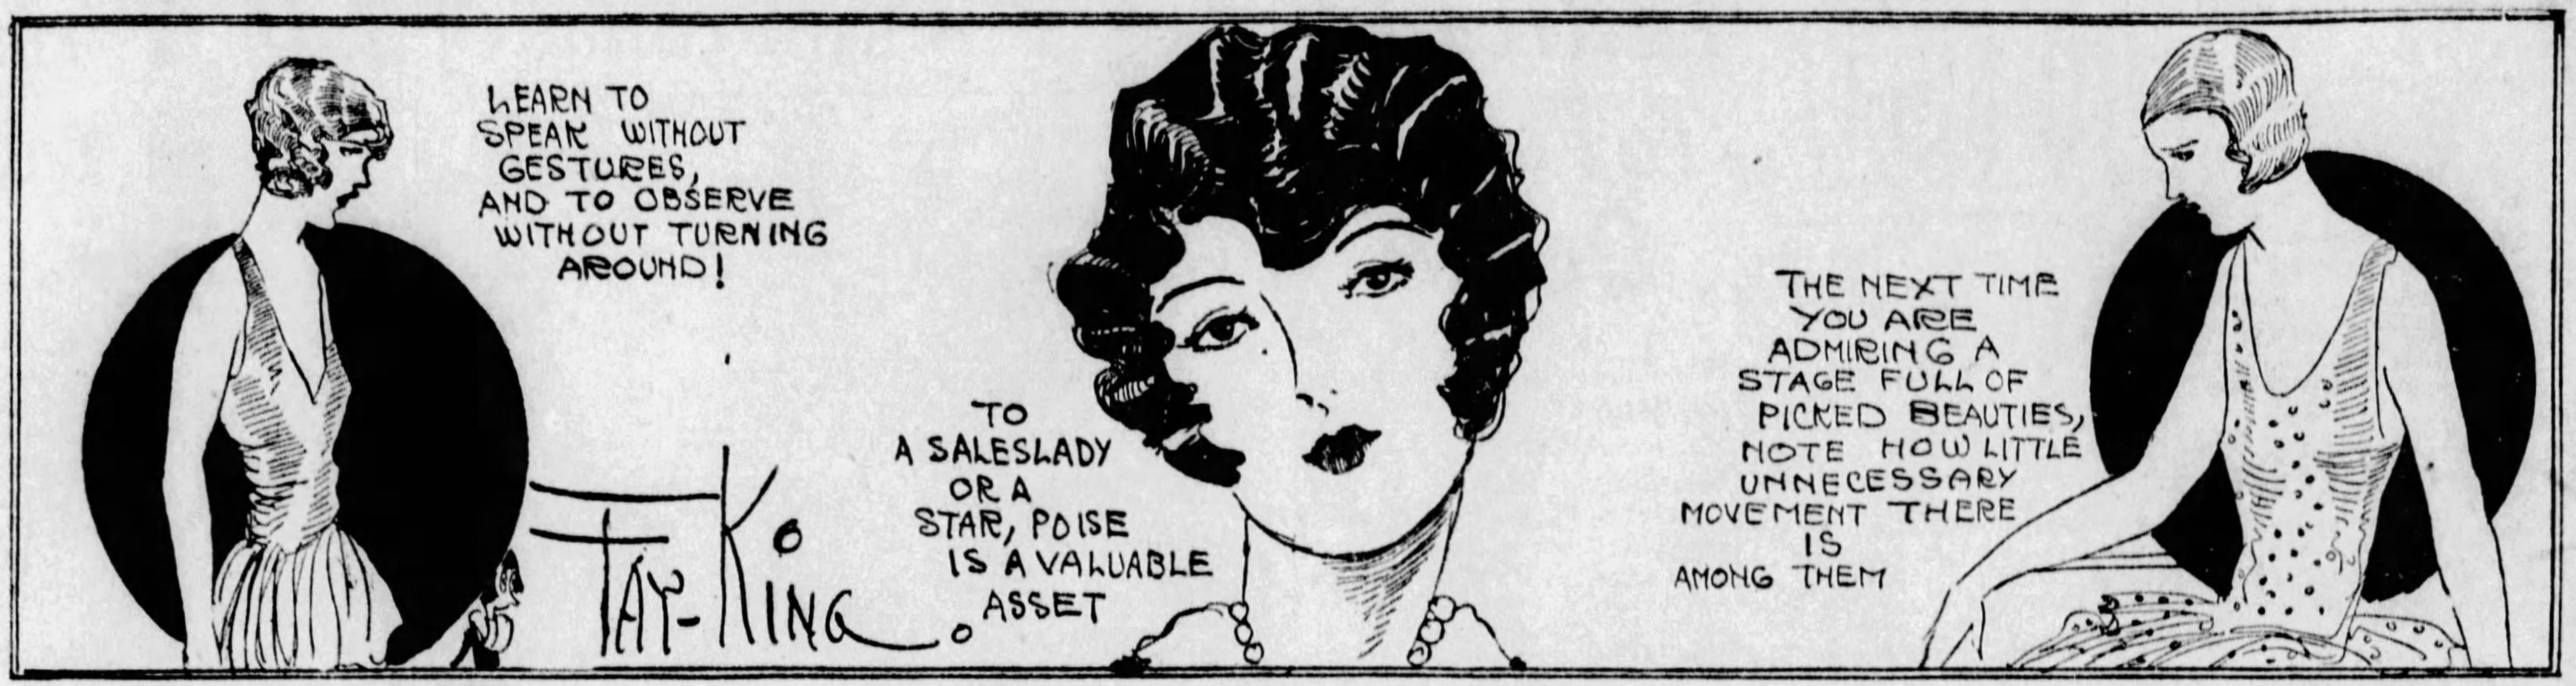
Women May Learn Lesson in Poise at Theater, Fay King Suggests



LEARN TO SPEAK WITHOUT GESTURES, AND TO OBSERVE WITHOUT TURNING AROUND!
TO A SALESLADY OR A STAR, POISE IS A VALUABLE ASSET
FAY-KING
THE NEXT TIME YOU ARE ADMIRING A STAGE FULL OF PICKED BEAUTIES, NOTE HOW LITTLE UNNECESSARY MOVEMENT THERE IS AMONG THEM

By FAY KING

A VISIT to the theater, where beauty is in its most flattering form, should not only be an entertainment to women, but an education.

One often sees in the audience women every bit as pretty as those on the stage, but as they bob about on their seats, turning this way and that, one wishes they would learn the lesson of poise and repose, which is before them on the stage.

Note how little unnecessary movement there is on the stage. No arms waving around. No heads turned this way and that every minute.

The most scathing lines are spoken without fr[illegible] lip twistings, which are unbecoming.

Many women in their effort to be vivacious, wear out not only themselves but those to whom they are talking.

To Prevent Rust.

Lock hinges and castors on furniture should be oiled on a wet day.

the great tonic

Growing Children

sometimes require a tonic as do their elders

The physical welfare of the child is being given more attention by school authorities. Failure to keep up with class work and absence from school is probably due to a nervousness and run-down condition that may be largely attributed to a deficiency in red blood cells.

GIVE your child the right chance to develop, and you will not reget it in later years.

Many children become under-nourished due to lack of appetite. Keep the appetite keen. Food nourishes the body and makes it grow.

Also watch Nature's warning for changes in the system. Skin troubles—pimples, boils and that sallow complexion—all foretell a body weakness.

In such cases, S.S.S. is the proper tonic. It improves the appetite; helps Nature build rich, red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

In building rich, red blood cells, S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years, S.S.S. has been helping children and their elders regain strength and vitality.

Children like S.S.S. It is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

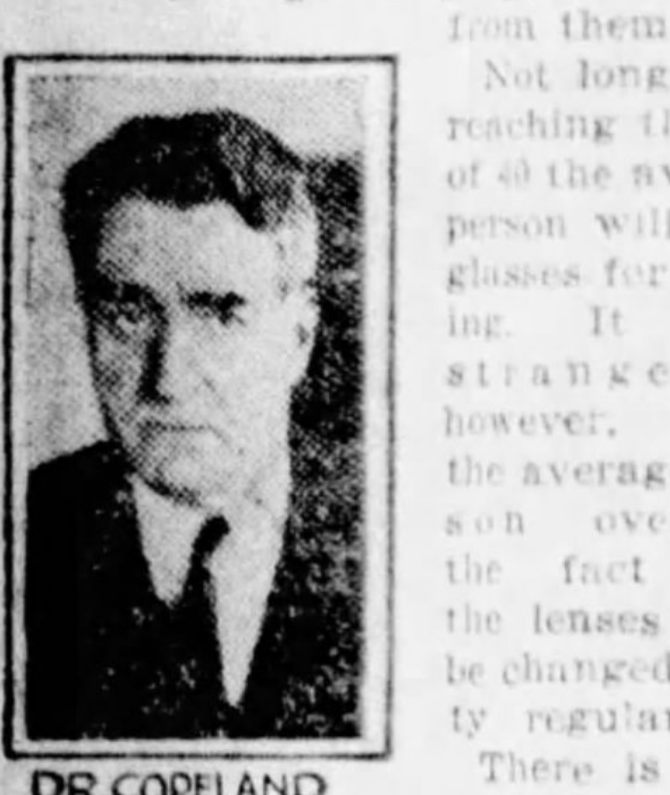
New Glasses Will Often Prove Cure



DR. COPELAND

WHAT about your eyes? Are you getting good service from them?

Not long after reaching the age of 40 the average person will need glasses for reading. It is a strange fact, however, that the average person overlooks the fact that the lenses must be changed pretty regularly.

There is a remarkable steady change in the vision. Give me certain facts as to the vison and the strength of his glasses and I can tell very accurately the age of the person. The progress of the "presbyopia"—the aging vision—runs parallel to the lines of the birthdays. Ask your oculist about this and he will confirm my story.

By the way, you better go to see the friend who fits your glasses. To consult him about this article may be used as an excuse, but while you are there suggest that he "look over" your eyes and see if your glasses are all right.

Lots of times people think they are "bilious" when really all they need is a new pair of glasses. Bear this in mind.

While headache, heavy feeling, dizziness and disinclination to work are commonly symptoms of some trouble with the digestion, it isn't always so. Eye-strain, the need of glasses, badly fitting glasses—these may account for the uncomfortable symptoms.

Here is another suggestion: Perhaps the frames of your glasses are bent, so that the lenses are not placed in front of your eyes as they should be. This puts the lenses "out of focus," changing the curve of the glasses in their relation to the eyes so that actually an artificial form of eye-strain is produced.

It is a good thing to have the spectacle frames adjusted now and then. To do so will spare you a lot of unnecessary annoyance and real discomfort.

We get tired of wearing the same frames. It is a good thing to have several pairs of glasses if you can afford it. Have a pair of spectacles or two and a pair of nose glasses, too. You will be surprised what a relief there is in changing frames.

One can have such ill feelings from the need of glasses or from wrongly fitted glasses that you can easily imagine yourself sick. It is just about as bad to think you are sick as to be sick, isn't it?

Nobody can be efficient in work or be happy if the eyes are suffering from eyestrain. It is silly to go about just half your real self when a test of the eyes may reveal the real reason. By getting the needed glasses you will be good as new.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, October 4

UNDER the adverse state of affairs presaged by the planets dominant on this day it may be difficult to make much headway, since there are several hostile and obstructing situations which may be only overcome by dogged tenacity and patience. With these resolutely confronted and a degree of wariness against loss, fraud and misrepresentation, there may be openings well worth while. These may incite to negotiations with large corporations of diplomacy, or where secret agreements are required rather than open methods.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year in which perseverance and resolution may overcome tenacious obstacles and lead to important understandings or positions, possibly with corporations, the government or secret societies. Be careful with all correspondence and writings, personal and business.

A child born on this day may have some excellent qualifications for success, but may need careful training.

WILD Youth! How often we read the phrase nowadays. What weighty tomes are prepared on the subject! Lectures, sermons, books—everything, everywhere, everybody—has something to say on the subject. Whatever are they coming to?

Well, if you ask me, I'll tell you just this! They're headed straight for the same place where their mothers and fathers and grandmothers and grandfathers and generations before them found peace and happiness and comfort.

Every generation has listened to the same song, perhaps to a different tune, but the gist of it was exactly as today. And what happened? Love came along and they forgot their seeming wildness and became as tame as nice purry little house cats. And raised families and found happiness where it was predicted they were headed straight for perdition.

And that's what Love does! The Tamer! Only another of his many disguises, but is it a disguise? Not if I know anything about life!

Madge and Lillian Draw Close to the Key of the Secret

THERE was something in Lillian's manner, as she made the grave announcement that Jim had taken a message to the red-bearded man in the shack, which told me that she had something more to say to me than the simple announcement she had just made. I pulled up a chair before speaking, and she sank into it gratefully.

My throat felt suddenly dry.

"Was it from Dicky?" I asked. "But no. How could Katie find that out?"

Lillian nodded her head, the grave, puzzled look still upon her face.

"But it was from Dicky," she said. "Let me tell you what happened."

I found my hands suddenly trembling and I interlocked the fingers tightly to keep from betraying their tremulousness. Lillian shot a keen look at me.

"Don't look like that!" she adjured me. "We know, of course, that there is some reason for Dicky's sending that message, but the way it was sent was mighty queer and shows that the Dicky-bird and the red-bearded man and Jim—though I think Jim acts only in Dicky's absence, as tonight—have a regular system of communication. It's like this—"

She stopped as if to marshal her facts, and only by heroic effort did I keep from screaming at her to hurry with her story.

"Jim made no attempt to leave the house until the friend for whom he telephoned had come and been shown where he was to sleep during the hours he was not on guard. He and Jim are to take turns patrolling the house tonight."

I reflected that Lillian must fear some unusual danger to take such elaborate precautions, but I made no comment, as I breathlessly listened to her recital.

"About nine o'clock," Lillian went on, "Jim told Katie that he was going to the barn to look after the cow. He said she'd been ailing—Jim's imagination must be waking up—and that he might be some time. He told her not to wait up for him as he'd told the other man to stay up until he came back. So Katie ostensibly went upstairs, and then came down the front way to me, and I went with her after Jim."

"I thought that's what you meant to do," I exclaimed.

"Well, I couldn't let her go alone," she replied simply.

"We followed Jim as far as the barn," she resumed, "and to our surprise he did go inside and did not come out again. Then there appeared a gleam of light, and skirting the barn we found that inside that little high window looking toward the hill there was a lantern where there was no possible reason for a light to be. Whoever thought of the plan was clever, for a light in that window cannot possibly be seen by anyone in the farmhouse or at Ticer's.

"Kate and I found a hiding place," Lillian went on, "and after about 10 minutes, we heard running feet and the red-bearded man—I am sure it was he, although it was so dark I didn't get a good look at him—dashed into the barn and spoke the single word 'Vell!' in a guttural voice which Katie said was surely his.

"'Mr. Graham told me to give you this letter,' Jim said.

"'Thanks,' the man returned and then started up the hill again as though the old boy himself were after him. It's my opinion that he doesn't want the other men to know of his correspondence with Dicky."

She rose from the chair and walked to the door.

"I told you I'd tell you what happened," she said, "and that's every word of it. But if you can make head or tail yet out of it, 'you're a better man than I am, Gunga Din!' I suppose it's too soon to ask you whether you've had any luck in your quest."

"I've found out definitely that they are Sumerian characters," I said quietly.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

INDIAN SUMMER REFLECTIONS

IT'S as hard to find a man who picks out a wife for the beauties of her character these days as it is to find one who chooses his food for the vitamin.

Autumn Reflections: In April you joyously plant a brand new garden. In May you buy a gay hat and a bright new bathing suit. In June you start a thrilling new love affair. And LOOK at the darned thing now!

HELEN ROWLAND

A man is seldom so blinded by a vamp's charms that he can't find his way back to his wife's protecting arms when the affair begins to look like an entanglement.

What the average woman can't understand about a man is his perfectly natural animal instinct to crawl away to his den when he is hurt, worried or aggrieved, to lock himself in and be left ALONE!

All that precious time that Mother used to waste in keeping her hat on straight Daughter now spends in getting her lips on straight.

* * *

Before marriage a man will stop right in the middle of his morning shave to talk for half an hour with his sweetheart over the telephone. After marriage he won't even part his lips under the lather to answer her.

The modern woman accomplishes lots more in this world than the old-fashioned woman did, chiefly because she devotes less time to trying to find a man to do it FOR her, and still less to bragging about him after she's found him.

A modern man feels that Fate is cheating him if he can't afford strawberries in January, summer weather in winter, and tender young flappers when he's in his fifties.

* * *

Her kisses, her knees and her vaccination mark are no longer any girl's personal secrets.

Are You Ready When your Children Cry for it

BABY has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is a vegetable product. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea which must be checked without delay. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea
By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

The tang of Autumn is in each taste of Cranberry Pie Pennsylvania

This week on PENNSYLVANIA TRAINS

Dark crimson berries—the very color of their cheeks tells of the coming of crisp, clear weather.

THE early Pilgrims were the first discoverers of the American cranberry. On the low marshes near the shore, on the Cape Cod Peninsula in Massachusetts, they found the berries growing wild. The good housewives picked and preserved them.

Today, the cranberry is put to a score of uses other than serving as a relish with Turkey. Yet for most of us, cranberries still call up thoughts of Thanksgiving.

You will have cause to give thanks when you eat Criss-Cross Cranberry Pie, Pennsylvania style, on Pennsylvania diners. It will introduce you to unsuspected pleasures in cranberries—and cranberry pie.

No ordinary cranberries, these. They are big and full of flavor. Fit ambassadors to tell you how fine the finest of American cranberries can be.

There's the sharp sweet tang of autumn in every bite that you take of that crisply-baked pie with its rich freight of duly sugared berries.

Ask for it this week—on all Pennsylvania trains. Criss-Cross Cranberry Pie, Pennsylvania style.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

No Outstanding Great Pitcher in This Year's World Series—Cardinals Have Edge in Slab Department—Hoyt and Pipgras Only Yankee Dependables—Sherdel May Be Hero for Cardinals.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—On the eve of baseball's Derby Day, around the prospective scene of the first two world title battles, for which the Cardinals and Yankees today will do their final tuning up, speculation as to the probable outcome of the big struggle is centering on the pitching.

Grover Alexander

Hurling is admittedly at least 65 per cent of diamond competition at any time, and in so short a test as a world series it is apt to count for even more. It is the one factor, apart from the breaks, that probably will decide the post-season argument, and for that reason it is being weighed and doped out more carefull by the gathering throng of baseball men, critics and fans than any other item that enters into the reckoning.

STRANGELY enough, neither club in this year's series presents anything extraordinary in the line of mound talent. The contenders are teams that won their respective pennants by the potency of their attacks, rather than through any uncommon defensive power in the box.

It is different from the situation that existed in many an earlier season, when one club or the other had a Mathewson, a Walsh, a Brown, a Bender, a Plank, a Wood, a Rudolph, a Coveleski, a Nehf, a Pennock, a Phillipi, a Combs, an Adams or a Johnson. This time there is no outstanding flinger on either side, unless Sherdel or Hoyt rise to unexpected heights, who shapes up as being mighty enough to sway the series by his individual brilliance.

THERE was a time when the venerable Grover Cleveland Alexander towered above the competing field in that respect. Even as late as 1926, when the same two clubs were fighting for the world honors, Alexander dominated the series. Not only did he pitch the Cards to two victories, but he saved the seventh and deciding game by relieving Haines in a ninth-inning crisis and striking out Lazzeri with the bases full.

But that was two years ago, and though that comparatively brief span might not mean a great deal in the life of a younger pitcher, it generally saps a lot from a hurler as old as Alexander, who is drawing near to his forty-second milestone.

WHATEVER advantage there may be in the slab department appears to rest on the side of the Cardinals. They may not have better pitchers than the Yankees, but they have a greater number of relatively equal merit. With Pennock and Moore unavailable, the American Leaguers will be forced to depend mainly upon Hoyt and Pipgras, backed up by such uncertainties as the youthful Henry Johnson, the ageing Zachary, the up-and-down Heimach and the unimpressive Ryan. Against this none too promising staff, the champions of the Heydler loop have Sherdel, Alexander, Haines, Mitchell, Rhem, Sylvester Johnson and Reinhart.

Billy Sherdel.

SHERDEL may be a series hero. Though he lost twice to the Yanks in 1926, both of his games were splendidly pitched. This year he has been better than ever, and with his crossfire fast ball and his tantalizing change of pace he is likely to cause the Hugmen plenty of trouble.

Alexander is a problem. With his wise head and uncanny control he may show a flash of his old form and get away with one game by outsmarting the enemy, or he may be an utter failure in the contest that he starts.

MITCHELL, like Sherdel, is apt to prove a source of trouble to the American League champions. He was considered about done when the Phillies dropped him, but he came back in fine style for the Redbirds later, and as the Yanks have never batted against a left-hand spitballer the chances are against their being overly successful in their first meeting with such a baseball rarity.

Haines was credited with two victories over the New

ESPINOSA BURNS UP COURSE AGAIN

BALTIMORE, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Long Jim Barnes got the jump on Gene Sarazen at the start of their 36-hole golfing duel today, the feature match of the eight to be played in the second round of the National Professional Golf Association championship tourney.

The pace was fast from the moment they left the first tee. On the opening hole, a 424-yard proposition with a par of four, both got down in birdie three for a half. On the next hole Barnes forged ahead with a par 4 to Gene's 5. The lanky long-trousered veteran chipped dead to the pin from just short of the green with his third, while Sarazen overchipped and took two putts.

The Barnes-Sarazen match, the day's headliner since it is certain to eliminate a former holder of the title and a leading contender for the crown now worn by Walter Hagen, attracted the lion's share of a good sized gallery. The day was the warmest of the tournament thus far.

BARNES LEADS SARAZEN

The tenacious Barnes clung doggedly to his one-hole lead and when they finished the first nine his margin was unchanged.

After halving the first and dropping the second, Sarazen had squared the match by holing a 15-foot putt on the third for a birdie three. After that Gene struck plenty of trouble and Barnes forged ahead again on the fifth as Sarazen went one over par with a five.

The remaining out holes were halved, although the little Italian was always on the defensive. He found rough on the seventh and eighth and a trap on the ninth, but his trouble clubs worked well, backed up ably by his putter. Gene had to hole a 12-footer for a half in par three on the ninth. Barnes was out in just par 35 and Sarazen took one stroke more.

Al Espinosa, the medalist, who set a dizzy pace the previous two days, again went out to burn up the course. Knocking off the first nine holes in 34, a feat which is becoming a routine occurrence for him, he led Bob McDonald, a fellow Chicago pro, by six holes in the first nine. McDonald scored a 40.

DELVECCHIO IN FRONT

At this point Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., was one up on Willie MacFarlane and John Hutchison, former titleholder, led Pat Doyle, of Linwood, N. J., by the same margin. Perry Delvecchio, of Greensburg, Pa., had a one-hole lead over Glenn Spencer, the Baltimore hope.

As for Walter Hagan, the defending champion was having by no means a difficult time. Arrayed against Julian Blanton, Toledo youngster, Hagan finished the first nine four up. He shot a 36, one above par, as compared with a 41 for Blanton, who apparently was handicapped by the mental hazard of playing the great Sir Walter.

Leo Diegel found himself one down at the turn to George Christ, of Rochester, N. J., while Fred Dudley, of Los Angeles, was all square with Al Watrous.

HEILMANN, MANUSH TO OPPOSE GRAYS HERE

Harry Heilmann, of the Detroit club, the American League's leading batsman last season, and Heinie Manush, of the St. Louis Browns, who was nosed out for the batting honors this season by Goose Goslin, of the Senators, by the narrow margin of a single point will be two of the outfielders Earl Mack will have with his American League barnstormers in the eight-game series which has been arranged with the Homestead Grays. Bing Miller, of the Athletics, will be the third outfielder.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

THEY do say that Danny Dunn, manager of Johnny Risko, the Great Eliminator of Cleveland, refers to Tex Rickard's heavyweight battles as the Lemonation series.

SPEAKING of the heavyweights, Chuck Wiggins, that nice rough baby who gave the fans an exhibition of he-man fighting against Garfield Johnson at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, was in a reminiscent mood while here. The name of the late Harry Greb was brought up and Chuck was quick to extoll the former Pittsburgher for his gameness and fighting ability.

"I fought him nine times," Wiggins said, "and let me tell you something, brother—every one of those fights was a FIGHT. None of that sissy tapping when we got together. We got so we hated each other with a deep-seated hate. We did everything we could to maim each other and neither of us ever would squawk about fouls—and there were plenty of them.

"DO YOU see that ring on my nose that makes it look as if it had been partly sliced off with a knife and then sewed back on again? Well, that's a souvenir of one of my battles with Greb. For no reason at all he took a notion in this fight to commit mayhem and sank his fangs in that nozzle of mine. say for no reason at all because all I did to him was to give him the foot as he missed a swing and help him go flying headlong through the ropes. He was boiling mad when he got back in the ring and I didn't help matters by calling him a wild Dutchman. The reason the nose is in as good shape as it is now is that the bell rang before he could complete the job of separating me from it.

"OH, WHEN I think of the fun we used to have, Greb and just little me! You know, it got so bad that just before our last fight, out in the Middle West, Greb came to me in the lobby of the hotel at which I was stop-

COMEBACKS

Pitcher Zachary was picked up by the Yankees after the Washington Senators had cut him loose as being all through and Pitcher Ryan, formerly of the Giants, was hurriedly grabbed by the Huggmen from Toledo of the American Association in the dying days of the hectic flag race. Not all of these lucky players will get full splits of the world series spoils, but all will get something out of it. First Baseman George Burns, who joined the Yankees only a few weeks ago, did so too late to become eligible to play in the series and likely will not get a "cut" of the melon.

GET IN ON SERIES CUT

How would you like to start a season with a club that didn't have a chance to get into the world series and either be traded or fired into a berth with one of the money outfits? That's what has happened to the above group of players. Pitcher Heimach was bought by the Yankees from St. Paul of the American Association; Catcher Smith was picked up by Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cardinals after he had been given his unconditional release by the Pirates; Outfielder Harper was traded by the Giants to the Cardinals for Catcher Bob O'Farrell and Jimmy Wilson went to the Cardinals from the lowly Phillies to plug the catching gap left by the departure of O'Farrell.

SOME LEAP!

Pitcher Mitchell was let go by the Phillies, being given his unconditional release. He began dickering with other clubs and was offered a job with the Pirates, which he passed up to join the Cardinals, for whom he has been a consistent winner.

Hudkins Badly Beaten

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3.—(AP.) — Ace Hudkins' middleweight championship aspirations were farther from realization today than they were last June when he essayed to lift the crown from Mickey Walker in Chicago.

The Nebraska Wildcat was decisively outpointed here last night by Joe Anderson, of Kentucky, who pummeled the Nebraskan all over the ring in a 10-round fight, Hudkins' first since Walker defeated him.

Anderson, game and brainy opponent, whipped the Wildcat at his own game—infighting—and did it decisively. When Hudkins elected to tear in and slash with both fists at close quarters, the Kentuckian accommodated him and came off victorious. Anderson was credited with six rounds, one being even.

The Kentuckian built up a good early lead which was not overcome by Hudkins' vicious tenth-round fighting. Result of the fight was a decisive upset, Hudkins having been figured to win.

The Wildcat came out of the battle with face badly slashed, the result of well placed blows to the head.

Fair, Warmer Promised for Series

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—"Fair and warmer" is the promise of the weather man for tomorrow, when some 80,000-odd baseball fans are expected to attend the first game of the 1928 world series between the New York Yankees, American League champions, and the St. Louis Cardinals, National League title holders.

"Perfect weather is in sight," said Forecaster Scarr. "Tomorrow should be warmer than any day for some time, and the sky cloudless."

M'LEAN ENTRY WINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The Capital handicap, a six-furlong dash for 3-year-olds and up, feature of the opening card of Laurel's fall meeting yesterday, went to E. S. McLean, Prince of Wales, in something of a romp.

NO RECORD CROWD IN PROSPECT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The world series excitement is scheduled to start popping in 24 hours, but you would never know it on Broadway. There is no intention here to state that the fans are entirely too apathetic to titular fights, but in the event of cold or moist weather, I venture to predict the Yankee Stadium will have more than one empty seat tomorrow and Friday while the Yanks and Cardinals are fighting it out for diamond supremacy.

ONCE—NOT NOW

In the first place the Yanks and Athletics staged a series at the stadium less than a month ago that put New Yorkers in a feverish state before and after. There is no such fever here now.

The usual hue and cry about tickets is being raised, and the Yankee management states that all reserved seats have been disposed of. The management, however, doesn't go into detail as to the method of dispensing the pasteboards.

There probably will be no word from the Yankee officials as to how the speculators got the seats, but the Specs seem to have them, as it is possible to purchase seats on Broadway today.

"SPECS" TAKE CHANCES

Speculators go to great pains to get seats for an event of this kind, and they take chances that are very risky. Inclement weather can bring them a loss very quickly, but they don't emit many moans. In this respect they reflect sportsmanship qualities.

Meantime, the coffers of the winning clubs and Judge Landis' office is enriched, but you don't hear of any philanthropic moves on the part of the powers that be.

The "war fund" of organized baseball is almost large enough to cancel the German debt to the Allies. Every world series game played in the grand old U. S. A. gives a big cut to the commissioner's chest. Nobody appears to know just what is to become o this money, but so far little of hi has been diverted for any use beneficial to the real parties of the first and second part—the players and the fans.

WHY NOT?

There has been no talk of reducing the world series tariffs and no downward scale of prices has been suggested for the regular playing season despite the losses sustained by more than one major league team during the season just past. The bulging coffers of the advisory board continue to bulge, but there is a serious shortage in the purses of more than one owner.

New York fans have gone through so much interesting baseball in the past two months that it is a question whether they can be pepped up to normal world series excitement. When the two clubs reach St. Louis the background should be ideal, but it is a fact that the eleventh hour furore is nothing to get the police excited.

Read the regular and World Series Box Score editions of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph if you want the best accounts of the battles that open in New York tomorrow. James J. Long and Charles J. (Chilly) Doyle will be in the press box in both New York and St. Louis for the series and will cover the games as they are played and follow up in later editions with interesting comment and highlights on the battles.

Long is known far and wide as a commentator on sporting events and especially for his keen analysis of baseball situations. Doyle is a baseball specialist.

The articles of Long and Doyle will be augmented by those of staff writers of the Associated Press and International News Service. Other feature stories also have been arranged for, as well as the best pictures on the games.

If you can't attend the games in New York and St. Louis come to Sun-Telegraph Square and see them re-enacted on the huge magnetic scoreboard in front of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Building. It's the next best thing to being in the grandstand at the series.

GENEVA BATTLES BUCKNELL ELEVEN SATURDAY

SOCCER NEWS

by TOM BIRKS

SUNDAY will see the playing of the first national cup tie in the district, and it will be staged at Dunlevy where the home boys will meet the undefeated Pittsburgh team. This game has all the ear marks of one of the greatest games of the season. Pittsburgh has met nothing to give it a real fight, while Dunlevy flashed its punch last Sunday when Westinghouse bit the dust by a 4-goals-to-1 score.

Clan Douglas, fresh from its victory over the Pittsburgh Celtics, will travel to Twin Boro's to meet the newly-formed outfit in its first home game. According to reports the Boro's have quite a few good players on the club that should build up a hard working aggregation.

The battle of the strip will come Saturday when Celtics and Rovers meet. It would not be a season any more without these old rivals tangling, and Saturday's session at Lawrence Park will be nothing different. Celtics got bumped at Homewood last Saturday in the final minute of the game with a penalty kick. Three kicks were awarded, but only one scored.

Dunlevy evidently has a good defense as well as a balanced attack. Whether it can stop Pittsburgh, led by Jimmy Moremen, is another matter entirely. Moremen seems to be the only center in the district able to get goals. And Sunday's game will test Dunlevy.

It seems evident that Heidelberg is not going to compete in the American League this fall, but possibly it will concentrate on the National amateur cup, and defend its West Penn championship.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Minneapolis—King Tut defeated Tod Morgan, 10 rounds; Dick Daniels knocked out Earl (Boy) Blue, 6 rounds.

At Indianapolis—Roy Wallace defeated Johnny Mason, 10 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Joe Anderson defeated Ace Hudkins, 10 rounds.

At Portland, Me.—Andy Callahan defeated Johnny Harris, 6 rounds.

At Des Moines, Ia.—Henry Falegano defeated Ollie Bartlett, 10 rounds; Hymie Wiseman defeated Dave Young, 10 rounds.

At St. Petersburg Fla.—Manuel Quintero knocked out Tommy Madden, 6 rounds.

It has been decided to hold the Pacific Coast conference track meet at the Sacramento stadium next May.

TEXAN GRIDDERS OFF

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The Southern Methodist University football squad yesterday departed for West Point, N. Y., where on Saturday the Mustangs will meet the Cadets. Twenty-five players were taken on the trip by Coach Morrison.

Bigger Tests Face Elevens

By JESS CARVER.

ONE of the important games of the coming Saturday will be the Geneva-Bucknell clash at Reeves Stadium, Beaver Falls, the home of the Covenanters. These elevens met at Lewisburg last fall in the first game of a series of home and home struggles and failed to get a decision or even a score, the game ending in a scoreless tie. Geneva went through the season undefeated, and had it not been for that draw with the Bisons, could have had a perfect record for the year.

This year's contest will afford the Genevians their first hard test. Bucknell figured it the same way prior to last Saturday's opener with Schuylkill, but the footballers representing that institution held Snavely's machine to a 7-0 score, and battered up not a few of Carl's star players.

So tough was the contest that Bucknell will be forced to enter Saturday's fray without the services of the clever Eddie Halicki, captain and halfback. The coaches are hoping to have him ready for the game the following week with Penn State, a game they are anxious to win and repeat the triumph of '27.

HANGARTNER LINE COACH

Ulhardt (Hank) Hangartner, former Pitt guard, is line coach at Lewisburg and was responsible to a great extent for the fine line that was turned loose to stop Bo McMillin's Covenanter attack a year ago. He is working on his forward wall this fall with the same idea in mind, and as Geneva is possibly not as strong as last season, may find the task a bit easier.

Geneva's 75-0 win over Adrian last week has gone a long way to establish the old Covenanter morale, and to put confidence into the team. The game should be well worth seeing.

Other district schools, including Pitt, Tech and Duquesne, the local favorite, are drilling strenuously for their contests of the week-end. The Panthers put in a long session on their practice field yesterday with a couple different backfield combinations being tried out by the coaches. The linemen were given special drill on offensive play.

Tech, prepping for the Ashland encounter, is laboring to iron out the kinks evident in the game against Westminster. No changes are anticipated in the lineup that started against the Titans, though Moorehead may be at one of the halfback positions. With a nice outlay of backfield material, Coach Waddell can work out two or three different combinations and not weaken his team to any extent.

ST. THOMAS TOUGH

The Dukes won't find St. Thomas easy at Scranton and are building a defense to cope with the dangerous style of attack employed by Harding's team. Pat Reagan, line coach, who scouted the Saints as they lost a tough ball game to Temple, came away very much impressed with the play of the Easterners.

West Virginia has another tough one, their third since the season opened, in the Haskell Indians, who are to be played in Wheeling. Westminster and Allegheny, both with designs on the tri-state minor college title, clash at New Wilmington. A victory for either will go a long way to establishing their early claim to the flag.

WORK ON AIR

The Panther second string worked its aerial repertoire on the varsity yesterday. Walinchus, Bowen, Wagner and Rooney conducted the ceremonies, which were not altogether successful. The varsity seems to be gaining some conception of defensive tactics for aerials, or at least, that is the sincere hope of Coach Jock.

Bethany will give Pitt a stiff battle Saturday. There seems to be little argument about that, for the Bisons will outweigh the locals about 25 pounds to the man. If you have a flair for statistics, that is a total of 275 pounds.

ST. VINCENT'S

LATROBE, Pa., Oct. 3.—The players on the St. Vincent College football team are in shape physically, but the coaches are trying to speed up the attack of the backfield so that a win may be registered over Indiana Saturday at Indiana. There will be scrimmage work today and that will be all of it for this week.

BETHANY

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 3.—Bethany's gridders started yesterday to prepare for the Pitt Panther to be met next Saturday in the Pitt Stadium. The 24-0 defeat at the hands of W. & J. upset what was expected to be one of the most successful seasons the Bisons could boast of in recent years. After a hard fight to a scoreless tie in the first half, Bethany seemed to lose all its punch in the second frame and the Presidents had little trouble in shoving four counters across the goal line. The Green and White was touted to be one of the best to be sent to W. & J. and the first half looked good for Bethany, but the Kerrmen came through with an attack that could not be checked. The Red and Black marked up 25 first downs against Bethany's forward wall.

Yesterday's drill was given mostly to work on the line and Coach Nuss will no doubt give the major part of the week to some changes on the forward wall. Line Coach Tinson ordered the charging machine on the field again and the linemen will see the greater part of the hard work in preparation for the Pitt game.

WASH-JEFF

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 3.—Washington and Jefferson College athletes, who face one of the most strenuous gridiron campaigns ever attempted in the history of the school, are being put through a strenuous week again by Head Coach Andy Kerr in the hope that they will show further improvement in their game with Waynesburg College here Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Coach Frank Wolf, of Waynesburg, was not able to present his full strength against Canisius, due to injuries suffered by several of his dependable players during the training period, but is expected to have them in shape for their annual meeting with the Presidents.

In contrast to former years, Waynesburg is not making any advance claims as to what will take place and that fact is not passing unnoticed, for it is believed that the Yellow Jackets this year will be a well-drilled, and formidable foe.

Wolf has a large number of the players who held W. & J. to a two-touchdown score last season available as a nucleus and in McCurdy, his fullback, has one of the strongest defensive players in the Tri-State district. He has a number of other well known performers, including Capt. Ford, Boyd, and Dick Toline.

Wash-Jeff fans were more impressed by the fine teamwork displayed by the Presidents in their second half rally against Bethany than any other one thing. The fine gains registered by the ball carriers were the result of cohesion of play and in the drills this week. Head Coach Andy Kerr is striving for better execution.

Reserve players, a number of whom flashed conspicuously against Bethany, are also receiving considerable attention. Scouts who saw Carnegie Tech in action in its first game at Youngstown predict that the Tartans are powerful, just as strong as expected.

PENN STATE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Coach Bezdek and his assistants sent three Penn State teams through a stiff scrimmage yesterday afternoon in preparation for the game Saturday with Gettysburg. The first and second varsity squads battled for nearly an hour while the third team practiced against the freshmen.

WEST VIRGINIA

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 3.—In the best scrimmage of the year, Coach Rodgers used the same line which played the entire game against Wesleyan last Saturday this afternoon. The West Virginia forward wall consisted of Lang and Vacheresse at ends, Scott and Brewster at the tackles, Gordon and Meisel at the guards and Carrico at center. The Mountaineer mentor is still experimenting with the backfield in an endeavor to perfect the interference, a woefully weak point to date. The best quartet of ball toters this afternoon and the one which furnished the best interference for the runner consisted of Little Sleepy Glenn at quarter, Cassie Ryan and Eddie Stumpp at the halves, and Bus Larue at fullback.

LEHIGH

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—That the Lehigh football squad is in fine physical condition was evident yesterday when Coach Tate called for a scrimmage and all the men who were in the opening game last Saturday entered the action.

PENN

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Dick Gentle, of Brookline, Mass., Penn backfield star, whose right knee was injured in yesterday's practice, will be out for at least three weeks. Carroll Rosenbloom, of Baltimore, is taking his place.

OHIO STATE

HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Either Harvard has a powerful varsity this year or the scrubs are extremely weak. The score of yesterday's slaughter was 48 to 6.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Radical changes in the Maroons' lineup are predicted for the game Saturday against Wyoming. Stagg's shortage of line material is the cause of the "experimenting."

12 RULES FOR SUCCESS

by GENE TUNNEY

RETIRED HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION

NO. VIII.—AMBITION IS A CHALLENGE.

TO a real, red-boloded man there is always a desire to better himself. No matter where life finds him he is not content to stay there. It is the inherent ambition of a man to climb the ladder as far as courage and skill will take him.

It is the spirit of the hired plowman who looks along the furrow and vows that some day he will own a farm. It is the spirit of a private in the ranks that some day he will command a company. It is the luring of a lad living in the foothills that some day he will stand upon the loftiest peak of yonder mountain as its conqueror. It is the dream of the schoolboy that some day he will master the difficult problems that now make him dizzy and become not a student but an instructor.

It comes as a challenge to one in a home of poverty that some day he will have plenty to eat and that his mother's anxiety will be wiped away.

Every real man wants to move out from where he is to the place where he wants to be. These are natural feelings and desires and should be nurtured and cultivated.

TRICKERY WRONG PATH

Some men in their ambition to succeed will stoop to the level of the trickster and the methods of a child, but false and artificial movements never are the sure roads to success. A man's ambition may lead into the shallow practice of minimizing and discounting his fellow man, hoping by that method to enhance or advance himself. This never pays. Time is a great leveller and revealer and the tinsel and glitter are so worn away that a man stands forth fair and forbidding.

True ambition challenges the best in a man so that he bends every effort to develop his powers and occupy the largest possible place in the world. Genius has rocked her biggest children in the cradle of adversity. Ambition called them to a higher and more advantageous positions.

It is one of the winning forces of life to be handicapped, but ambition laughs at the hindrance. Shakespeare earned a livelihood watching horses at the theater door, but ambition made him the world's intellectual marvel. John Wanamaker, the merchant prince, worked in a brickyard when he was 14, then worked for $12.50 a week in Philadelphia. Ambition kept him going until he stood in the front line of the world's most successful men.

INTEGRITY NECESSARY

Real ambition must have as its backing integrity, intelligence and industry. Dreaming of dizzy heights of power or influence or wealth will never reach the goal.

Many a young man has had ambition to be a champion. He has been fascinated by the glaring of the lights, the hurrahs of the crowd, the size of the purse and the prominence of publicity—but there he stopped.

Other men have had similar ambitions and endeavored to reach the top by trickster methods, hitting low when they thought it was safe and striking on the breaks when a referee was easy or favorable. But, I say again, ambition that is not backed by integrity, intelligence and industry always ends in collapse and failure.

You ought to have ambition that will lead you to the highest possible position in life. The best beckons you to the heights. Ambition is only worth while as you bring your real best self to the task and say "I will stand upon the summit but in the climb I will not crush or maim a fellow man."

This is a good lead for a successful life.

Cubs-White Sox Open Series

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The old Cubs-White Sox feud will flare up again today when the teams renew their battle for the city baseball championship. The first two games will be played at the White Sox park and then the scene will shift to the lair of the Cubs—Wrigley Field—where the third, fourth and fifth games will be played. If the sixth and seventh contests are necessary to decide the championship, they will be played on the Sox diamond.

The Sox are entering the fray, not only as champions by virtue of their 1926 victory, but with a record of having won 11 out of the 15 series. The Cubs won three while one was tied. No series was held last year as the Cubs failed to challenge.

Manager Lena Blackburne of the White Sox indicated today he will rely on (Red) Faber, veteran of many a campaign, to turn back the Cubs in the opener, while Joe McCarthy, pilot of the Cubs, is expected to counter with his veteran southpaw ace, Art Nehf.

Advance ticket sales indicate at least 40,000 will see the opening game.

Betting Odds Favor Cards At 5-3

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The odds on the St. Louis Cardinals to win the world series today lengthened to 5 to 3. Betting has been light, but was expected to pick up today.

The latest prices quoted by Jack Doyle, Broadway betting commissioner, follow:

3 to 5 that the Cardinals do not win the series.

6 to 5 that the Yankees do not win the series.

7 to 10 that the Cardinals do not win the first game.

11 to 10 that the Yankees do not win the first game.

12 to 5 that the Cardinals do not win the first two games.

17 to 5 that the Yankees do not win the first two games.

10 to 1 that the Cardinals do not win the first four games.

CARDS FAVORED BY A. L.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The logical outcome of the 1928 world series is a victory for the St. Louis Cardinals in five or six games.

American League baseball men, gathering in New York today for the opening of the series, shake their heads dubiously over the prospects of the New York Yankees, and pin their hopes upon the fact that Miller Huggins' club fights best with its back to the proverbial wall.

The National League champions should win, and win more easily than they did in 1926, when the same clubs met to decide the championship of the world.

LITTLE SERIES RESUMED

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Rested by two days' idleness, Rochester and Indianapolis, winners respectively of the pennants in the International League and the American Association today were cocked to go in the fifth game of the little world series here. The contest was set for 2 o'clock central standard time.

The local club had an edge on its Eastern rival, with two victories and one defeat. The other contest ended in a tie. Today's game will be the first played in Indianapolis.

Bright, hot weather was promised by game time. It looked as though Danny Boone, young righthander, would be on the slab at the start for Indianapolis. McCracken, who was credited with the only victory Rochester has scored over the Indians, was due to take another whirl at the home boys.

Today's game will be the last in which the players will get a share of the receipts. The probable lineups:

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Rabbit Maranville today regaled a few Pittsburgh supporters with some tales of the 1914 world series at which event, the Rabbit, then a lad of 21 summers, made his first real bid to fame.

It seems that the class of the Athletics and Braves of 14 years ago was something more than the play of the ball so far as the Athletics were concerned. The Braves found out that many of the Philly boys were susceptible to reaction from taunts and this weakness was harped on to no small extent. Johnny Evers, Maranville and their mates chiming in.

"Those Braves didn't miss anybody when they started to pop," said Rabbit. The players on the bench kept up a rapid fire of verbal barrage, much to the discomfiture of the Mackians, who lost four in a row to the National League champs.

"Jack Barry and Stuffy McInnis were about the only ones spared," said Rabbit, in recalling the situations.

The impending series may draw some sporadic fire, what with fellows like Jack Onslow, Maranville and Young Durocher around.

Some of the Redbirds spoke as if it might be up to Rabbit to cool Durocher off in the coming fights. The utility infielder of the Yankee band is said to be the freshest kid who has come into baseball in many years. But Rabbit may well be expected to "lay off" the recruit.

Durocher, it develops, is, like Maranville, a native of Springfield, Mass. When Rabbit broke into the big show, the present Yankee was hardly big enough to be the bat boy. But Rabbit was his idol. While the Cardinals' shortstop is not exactly a sentimentalist, he has responses that may preclude any real attempt to "ride" the lad who followed him so devotedly.

Durocher is said to be much like the Maranville of 14 years ago. The youngster says he received fine advice from Rabbit. Included in the words of caution were these, it is said: "Play high balls on the field as I did, but keep away from them off the field—as I didn't."

ping and put out his hand and said:

"'Chuck, let's cut out being sore at each other before one of us gets killed.'

"That struck me as a sensible idea and I seconded the motion. Ah, me, what a terrible fight that was that night for three rounds before Greb became worked up by the gibes of the crowd and busted the agreement wide open. And then what nice, lovely rounds the last seven were. Murder, I'm telling you. Yes, sir—MURDER.

"Perhaps it is just as well that we never fought again after that."

LOOKS very much as if Tex Rickard pulled another dead rabbit out of the hat of the gentleman on the stage when he grabbed that return battle between Joe Dundee, the welterweight champion, and Young Jack Thompson, the young Negro challenger, of California, who knocked out Joe in two rounds in Chicago recently. Joe and Jack are scheduled to repeat their act in Madison Square Garden, November 16, and last Monday night Jack went back home to San Francisco and was walloped to a fare-the-well and almost knocked out by clever Jackie Fields. Now Fields would be the card against Dundee, but Rickard is tied up with Thompson. The situation is much the same as that of last summer, when Rickard broke his neck to steal the Sammy Mandell-Jimmy McLarnin lightweight championship match from Promoter Jim Mullen of Chicago, and wound up with a beautiful full-grown, money-losing white elephant on his hands. Oh, well, we all must live and learn.

IF ANYBODY cares, it looks like the Cardinals to us in the world series against the crippled Yanks. But, then, last year we liked the Pirates against the same aggregation. The Yanks were so scared by our prediction that they went out and knocked off the Bucs four straight, and now we are picking the Cardinals in spite of a telegram from Bill McKechnie, manager of the St. Looie gang, asking us for his sake to please lay off and give him what is known as a break.

Yorkers in 1926, though he had to be rescued in the second engagement at the eleventh hour. He is a hard pitcher to beat at times, and looks a little better than any one on the Huggins staff except Hoyt or Pipgras.

George Pipgras.

RHEM, Sylvester Johnson and Reinhart are not likely to start if Alexander can go through one game unscathed, but as relief men they shape up at least as promisingly as the Yankees' second-string chuckers. Sherdel is likely to get the call in the opener and again in the second or third game in St. Louis' end of the series, taking it for granted that the debate will go beyond four games, as everything indicates it will. Only twice—in 1914 and in 1926—has the titular debate been settled in four tussles, and this fall, owing to both teams having lost considerable pep under the nerve-racking strain of the sultry pennant finishes, signs pressage more strongly a drawn-out struggle of six or possibly the full limit of seven contests than a smaller number of encounters.

GETTING back to the pitching proposition, Hoyt unquestionably looks like the best bet on the Yankee side. He is a fine pitcher under any conditions, and particularly good when there is something extra at stake—a money hurler in other words.

Hoyt won 22 games this season, and though he was rather overworked toward the close of the campaign he ought to be close to his best for the series after almost a week's rest. The starting assignment for tomorrow probably will go to him, with Pipgras as second choice.

PIPGRAS led all the Yankee pitchers this year in number of games won, and it will be recalled by Pittsburgh fans that he gave the Pirates an unpleasant afternoon last fall, but during the last few weeks of the 1928 race he did not pitch up to form. Whether he can recover his grip in the series with the Cards remains to be seen.

Henry Johnson looked like a world beater against the Athletics and beat Lefty Grove four times in five duels with him, but against other American League clubs his work was only fair—not good enough to promise victory over Bill McKechnie's sluggers.

Waite Hoyt.

ZACHARY has been listed for some time as being on the down grade, but he pitched several good games after joining the Yanks, and, like Alexander, may have one good day on which it will be no easy matter to beat him. Heimach and Ryan do not give promise of any extraordinarily brilliant service in the series. All around, the Cardinals appear to have a comfortable edge in the pitching department, the most important of all branches and this, together with the fact that their forces are practically sound, whereas some of the Yanks were still nursing injuries at the close of the regular season and may not be at their best, makes it look as if the world championship is fated to swing back to the National League this year.

WANERS TO APPEAR IN OMAHA EXHIBITION

OMAHA, Oct. 3.—Paul and Lloyd Waner, star outfielders of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will appear in an exhibition game here on October 14 as part of their month's barnstorming trip.

The brothers open their tour at Fort Dodge, Ia., on October 6, and play at Des Moines on the first Sunday, October 7. Besides Omaha, Denver and Oklahoma City are to get Sunday games. Ogallala, Grand Island and perhaps Kimball may be other Nebraska stops.

SIX CLUBS FORM INSTITUTIONAL LOOP

The Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League, first suggested by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph last season, became a reality last night when six clubs were admitted as members of the new circuit.

North Side Community House, last year's amateur champion; Heinz House, Young Men's Hebrew Association, Kingsley House, Hill Top, Y. M. C. A., and East Liberty Y. M. C. A. have been granted franchises.

The league will open its schedule early in December and will sponsor a preliminary league, bringing together the reserve teams of all institutions entered.

O. Cleghorn To Remain

PITTSBURGH will be definitely back on the hockey map this winter. This is assured by an arrangement in the course of completion whereby the local club of the National Professional Hockey League will pass to new ownership.

Benny Leonard of New York, retired undefeated world lightweight champion, will be one of the men financially interested in taking over the outfit and will be the club's treasurer. J. F. Callahan, attorney for the Townsends, who had control last year, also will be in the new organization.

Odie Cleghorn, manager last year, likely will be retained. He is due here in a few days from Canada for a conference.

Roy Schooley, veteran local hockey manager, frequently mentioned as likely to be connected with the transfer of the franchise, will not be associated in the enterprise. The rink will be leased from the Townsends for hockey nights only and the Townsends will continue to operate the ice skating sessions in the plant.

It is understood the deal involves approximately $125,000.

NOTES of the BOXERS

THE boxing show scheduled for Motor Square Garden next Monday night is off. Osk Till, of Rochester, N. Y., who was to meet Homer Robertson, Negro middleweight, of Boston, and formerly of Pittsburgh, in the main event, injured both fists in his battle with Art Weigand in Buffalo, Monday night, which he won, and will not be able to box again for a month. Rather than arrange for a substitute, the Garden will forego this show and match Robertson with Maxie Rosenbloom, of New York, for a return bout the following Monday night. Rosenbloom scored a victory over Robertson in the same ring last season.

Boxing in eight weight divisions is scheduled in the West Penn amateur championship tournament at McKeesport, beginning tonight. The preliminaries will get under way at 8 o'clock in order to clean up the field and leave only the semi-finals and finals for tomorrow night.

Joe Packo, of Toledo, and Ike McFowler, of Johnstown, have been rematched for a battle in the McKeesport ring Thursday night of next week. They recently staged one of the most sensational fights for big fellows this section has known and are receiving a record guarantee for McKeesport for their second meeting.

Andy Tomosky and Tony Norman battle in an eight-round main bout before the Elks Club at Wellsville, O., next Monday night. Frankie Porto meets Jacinto Valdez in a 10-round windup at Alliance, O., next Tuesday night, with George Tomosky boxing Jackie Powers in the six-round semi-final.

The George Godfrey-Roberto Roberti bout, postponed from tonight, likly will be staged at the Polo Grounds, October 15, Roberti is suffering from lumbago and a cold.

Dan Billick, of Wilmerding scored an easy victory over Willie Foust at New Brunswick, N. J., Monday night. He had Foust down for the count of nine in the first round.

STOGIES FIRE MANAGER

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Rumors of a house-cleaning for the Wheeling club of the Middle-Atlantic League were given basis yesterday when Secretary Charles Hodge announced tha Manager Bob Prysock would not be retained for the 1929 season and that every player on the team was on the market. This action was taken, Hodge said, because the club loses a number of valuable players through sale and recall by other outfits. He said the Stogies desired to present an entirely new front next year.

Prysock, whose home is at Martins Ferry, O., came to Wheeling two years ago from a managership at Bay City, Mich.

HORNSBY PICKS CARDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Rogers Hornsby, former manager of the 1926 world champions St. Louis Cardinals, is still sticking along with his old team in the 1928 world series. "The Cards will win because they got the gamest bunch of ball players," the manager of the Boston Braves said. "I don't care what shape the Yankees are in, the cards will win."

MANDELL'S BROKEN COLLARBONE RESET

ROCKFORD, Ill. Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Sammy Mandell, lightweight boxing champion, today began all over again his recuperation from a broken collorbone he suffered in a fight in Flint, last week. Sammy was well along the road to recovery last night when the broken bone slipped out of place and had to be reset again. It probably will be three months before the champion can enter the ring again.

Your House on the Hill

BUILDING financial independence is not unlike building a home.

First there must be a solid foundation—the determination that you will build for independence; secondly, there are plans and specifications which must be faithfully followed.

In the attractiveness of their yield, securities of the Cities Service organization offer an unusual incentive for such a program. The ease with which they may be purchased provides for you an ideal plan for a sound financial structure.

Placing a nominal amount monthly in these securities on a systematic plan of investment will set you and yours above future lowlands of uncertainty.

Bankers Differ Regarding Outcome of Stock Activity.

By B. C. FORBES

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 3. —If you could buttonhole the biggest bankers of America and get them to confide their real verdict on the stock market you would not rush in and buy, buy, buy.

That I can tell you, not from hearsay, but from first hand confessions obtained from the most influential members of the American Bankers' Association now holding their fifty-fourth annual convention here.

NOT since the fateful year of 1907, when Wall Street encountered real financial trouble, have I found such unanimity among our purse-string controlers concerning the unhealthiness of stock speculation.

Of course, when responsible heads of financial institutions talk for publication they use guarded, restrained, conservative language—very properly so, no doubt. But when you know them intimately they use, most of them, forceful expressions.

I can tell you that they are not loading up with stocks at the unprecedented high quotations now ruling for speculative favorites.

Frankly, I haven't run across one big banker who thinks the general stock market is on a sane, safe, conservative level.

OPINIONS differ as to what is likely to be the upshot of the unparalleled speculation now raging. Some are hopeful that it will quiet down gradually, undisturbing. Others—the majority—confess they look for stormy, speculative seas. All agree that it cannot go on and on as it has been going.

BEFORE quoting some of the representative bankers, let me give you this piquant piece of gossip:

"Certain high-powered, high-flying, highly successful Bulls now contemplate switching to cotton. Stocks, they reason, have been boomed. Cotton hasn't."

This rumored course sounds sensible. Certainly cotton isn't at ridiculous prices, as are many stocks.

GEORGE E. ROBERTS, vice president of America's largest bank, the National City of New York, thus summed up the situation to me:

"The stock market is taking an undue share of the available credit of the country. Its influence upon the general business situation is bad. In the long run this will not be good for stocks. It is going to bring a check—and in an undesirable way."

ARTHUR REYNOLDS, head of Chicago's billion dollar bank consolidation, after emphasizing that he did not wish to be regarded as an alarmist, said:

"Pretty large quantities of undigested securities exist. When they absorb liquid cash it will [illegible] business. Later on [illegible] tend to shake out the [illegible]tion. Commercial paper available for rediscount has been undesirably reduced and our bank is now carrying bonds to insure liquidity.

"Private corporations have increased their lending on call from a third of a billion to two billions of dollars. When conditions necessitate the taking of this money out of Wall Street—well, a lot of people will not be happy. We will witness an unpleasant situation. Let me add that there's nothing alarming in the situation at the present moment."

R. S. HECHT, prominent New Orleans bank president, characterized the presence of two billions of "outside" loans in the stock market as "extremely dangerous."

J. H. Puelicher, leading Milwaukee banker, is perturbed over the monetary and speculative conditions in Wall Street, especially the entrance of industrialists into the money-lending business. "Many of the conservative bankers are looking on with wonder—and wondering," he states significantly.

P. D. Houston, influential Nashville (Tenn.) banker, also is convinced the time has come to hoist danger signals. Marketwise.

THE Bulls now in control of the stock market call bankers old fogies who don't know what it's all about. Both can't be right.

Take your choice.

STOCKS BREAK THEN RECOVER SLIGHTLY

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The stock market broke sharply today on selling inspired by the unexpectedly large increase in stock exchange member loans, and then made irregular recovery as pool operations were resumed in a number of specialties. Trading continued to be of an extremely nervous character because of the spotlight that has been thrown upon the credit situation and securities speculation in the past few days.

Call money renewed unchanged at 8 per cent and then dropped to 7½ as the return flow of October 1 disbursements reached substantial proportions. Time money was slightly easier.

Heavy profit-taking took place on the rallies as the result of repeated commission house advices to take profits. Aggressive short selling also was in evidence against some of the high-priced industrials and specialties, Montgomery Ward, Curtiss, Wright, Commercial Solvents, Timken, DuPont and Radio were hammered down 5 to 6½ points before they met effective buying support. Scores of other popular industrials and rails dipped 2 to 4 points.

Meanwhile, pool operations were resumed on a large scale. Conde Nast was quickly bid up 9 points to a new high at 73⅞ and Ludlum Steel 7¼ to a new top at 81½. Murray Corporation converted an early loss of 4¾ into a gain of similar extent by touching a new high record at 111¼. Pierce Oil preferred and National Dairy Products also moved into new high ground on large gains.

Concurrent strength of Reo Motors, which advanced 3 points to a new high at 35¼, and Mack Trucks, which moved up 2¾, revived merger rumors, but these continued to lack official confirmation.

Weekly steel trade reviews stressed the heavy bookings and stiffening price tendency for iron and steel products. Borden's announced the purchase of the Thompson's Malted Milk Company, of Wisconsin. Several other food and chemical mergers were reported to be in the making.

Exchange Loans at New High.

New York Stock Exchange reports collateral loans to members at close of business September 29 amounted to $5,513,639,685, a new high record and an increase of $462,202,280 over August 31, when loans totaled $5,051,437,405. On September 30, 1927, loans totaled $3,914,627,570. Increase during the month compares with an increase of $289,560,000 shown by New York Federal Reserve member banks between August 29 and September 26. Previous high record for Stock Exchange loans was made on May 31, 1928, when they amounted to $5,274,046,281. Since that time loans have increased $239,593,404. High money rates of the past few weeks have played their part in swelling the total.

Bulge Shocks Street.

Wall street was prepared for a large increase in loans, but was scarcely looking for the figure that was reported. There are a number of explanations offered. In the first place the difference is largely due to the new Clearing House regulations which went into effect September 1, whereby Street loans handled by local banks for others than banks are charged a commission of one-half of 1 per cent on the proncipal amount of loan (as compared with former charge of 5 per cent on interest received), all such loans to be $100,000 or in multiples thereof. To evade this charge many corporations have been making their Street loans direct to brokers and not through the banks as formerly. For this reason the increase in Stock Exchange loans greatly exceeded its expansion in Federal Reserve figures last month.

Stocks in Weaker Hands.

A further explanation of the loan increase is the general impression that there has been liquidation on a considerable scale of holdings by investment trusts and large pools. While this created a new supply of funds, new borrowers have come in. Borrowing is now on a broader scale than it has been for some time as securities formerly owned by these groups outright have been sold to smaller purchasers who are buying with the aid of borrowed funds. This tendency is much greater than last spring.

Collins and Aikman.

Collins and Aikman Corporation reports for six months ended August 31, 1928, net profit of $927,593 after taxes and depreciation, equivalent after dividend requirements on 7 per cent preferred stock, to 87 cents a share earned on 591,833 shares of no-par common stock. For quarter ended August 31, 1928, net profit was $833,073 after taxes and depreciation, equal after preferred dividends to $1.06 a share on common stock, comparing with $94,520, or 80 cents a shareon 117,600 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock in preceding quarter.

Murray Capital Change.

Murray Corporation stockholders will vote November 15 on a proposal to increase the authorized capital stock from 300,000 to 900,000 shares. The company will issue 269,300 of the new shares to present stockholders at $15 a share on a share for share basis. Proceeds of the sale will be used to retire the $4,000,000 of preferred stock, leaving the common as the only capital liability. Rights will accrue to holders of record November 16 and will expire December 20.

Coppers Well Supported.

Copper stocks gave evidence of good support during the reaction the past few days and resisted selling in admirable fashion despite the fact they had enjoyed a wide rise in recent weeks. The Street believes the next big buying movement in copper will be followed by an increase of ¼ cent in the price of the metal to 15 cents. But producers are not anxious to have copper get much above that level. The head of one of the largest copper companies says if copper is maintained between 15 and 16 cents a pound, continued prosperity for the industry is assured.

Picking Up the Rails.

Rails are under accumulation by what some call the "astute" investors. There has been buying from such sources of Atchison, Southern Pacific, Rock Island, Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, New York Central and others. Speculative Wall Street is looking for the speculative rails to be in the van when a rail market is started and are mentioning Western Maryland, Wabash, Kansas City Southern, Missou Kansas-Texas and others as likely leader

U. S. Anti-trust Law Is Unjustly Blamed For Coal Industry Ills—Dairy Merger Financing Complete.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Sherman Anti-Trust Law frequently has been blamed for the trouble of the coal industry. Secretary of Labor James J. Davis has reiterated this belief in the current issue of the Magazine of Business.

HE points out that labor troubles, usually regarded as the wasting disease of the coal fields, gives way in importance to other factors. To a great extent this is probably true, but the anti-trust law is being unjustly blamed when the progress of attempts to bring about mergers of coal properties is considered.

A PROMINENT attorney, who is the owner of several coal properties and who was president of one of the leading coal companies in this district for over a year, has pointed out that the Federal laws would not hamper coal consolidations up to a certain point.

If mergers resulted in eliminating all but one or two companies they would be in violation of the law, but hundreds of coal properties could be joined without forming a dominant organization.

NUMEROUS attempts have been made to merge coal producers in this and other districts. None of them was hampered by the anti-trust laws. Other factors caused the failure of most of the consolidations.

DIFFICULTIES in financing and the inability of the owners to agree on prices for their properties have been the great stumbling blocks.

An ambitious attempt to merge the leading operators of the West Virginia fields into a giant coal producing organization has just been abandoned. The Sherman law offered no difficulties. The parties were simply unable to come to terms.

FOR a coal consolidation to be successful there would be no room for water in the capitalization. The margin of profit in coal, when there is a margin, is too small to pay a return on any but legitimate values.

Many properties would have to be taken into consolidations at prices far lower than the original cost. Unwillingness on the part of the owners to take a loss commensurate with existing prospects in the industry has made mergers almost impossible.

Changes in the laws will do nothing to help the coal situation.

WITH the offering of $1,000,000 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock of the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation the financing of the merger of four local dairy products has been completed. The properties themselves were purchased with common stock of the new organization. The proceeds of the sale of the preferred stock will be used to retire obligations of the various component companies.

THE Ohio and Pittsburgh Milk Company, trading as the Hermes-Groves Dairy Company, the Shadyside Milk Company, the Reinhold Ice and Ice Cream Company and the Kittanning Pure Milk Company, are the properties in the consolidation.

In the year ended April 30, 1928, the four properties showed net income of $156,804, which was 2.02 times the preferred dividend requirements and equivalent to $1.60 a share on the common stock of the new company.

AS of April 30, after giving effect to the new financing the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation had current assets of $701,600 against current liabilities of $423,457. Cash amounted to $231,429. The fact that dairies turn their inventories over daily makes it unnecessary for them to have as large a working capital as most other industries.

THE physical properties were carried at $1,111,061 after depreciation of $611,755. Good will of $582,460 does not represent a ficticious asset since it is equal to the difference between the book value of the physical properties and the appraised value.

Total assets were $2,611,285. The surplus amounted to $817,948 and the 54,072 shares of common stock were carried at $270,360. The preferred stock represents approximately half of the capital value of the company.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The raw sugar market was unchanged early today, with a sale of 21,000 bags of Cuban for October shipment to an outport refiner at 3.89c duty paid.

The raw sugar futures market opened 1 to 3 points lower under liquidation and European selling, that appeared to be promoted by the sharp decline in the London market, and the inactivity in the spot market. The decline attracted considerable covering and commission house buying, however, and prices rallied later with the list at midday about 1 point net lower. The volume of business was not particularly heavy, and the trade was inclined to limit aggressive operations and await fresh developments.

The refined market was unchanged at 5.35c to 5.40c for fine granulated. The recent buying movement had apparently supplied the more immediate equipments of the trade, and demand was less active.

HARBISON WALKER SELLS AT HIGH FOR NEW SHARES

Securities were in fair demand, with prices slightly higher, in the early trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today.

The list here did not reflect the early break in New York, where prices opened off from 1 to 4 points on the active issues. Resumption of strong buying, however, turned the market on the "big board" and initial prices were soon bettered to the extent of the overnight losses. Early selling was attributed to the big increase in borrowings of New York Stock Exchange members for the month of September. Loans of the members expanded $462,000,000 for the month, a much wider increase than had been indicated by the weekly figures of brokers' borrowings from New York Federal Reserve member banks in the corresponding period.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass was strong at the opening here with the first sale at 289½ comparing with last night's finish at 288. Subsequently the price moved forward to 290. On the last bulge in the stock a few weeks ago the top price was 300. The company will shortly split the stock on a four-for-one basis in addition to which a 10 per cent stock dividend will be distributed. Dividends on the enlarged share capital will be $2 a year. The present issue receives $8 a year.

Harbison-Walker was handled at 56, the high so far on the new shares, a price equivalent to 224 on the old stock which was split four-for-one. Fuels were dull and price changes in that section were narrow.

Pittsburgh Not Ready as "On to Cairo" Comes True

As Dream of Generations Is About to be Realized, This Community, That Benefits Most of All, Hasn't Even Adopted a Plan for Adequate Wharves.

After 50 years of effort and $100,000,000 of expenditure Pittsburgh's dream of an Ohio River navigable throughout its length the year round is about to come true. But Pittsburgh is not ready.

"On to Cairo!" has been the slogan for half a century. And now Cairo virtually has been reached. The Ohio Valley Improvement Association is holding a two-day conference here to discuss utilization of this 968-mile artery of traffic and arrange for jubilation. But Pittsburgh is unprepared to celebrate.

Since work was started on the Davis Island dam in 1878 there has been incessant agitation for completion of the improvement. "A nine-foot stage to the Mississippi!" has been dinned into the ears of Pittsburghers by the Chamber of Commerce and kindred organizations during the greater part of even the oldest inhabitants' lives. Slackwater has been established at last; but adequate wharves, from which our merchants may send forth their argosies, have not been established.

So slowly has the river work proceeded that long before the lower stream was reached Davis Island dam had become obsolete and been replaced. But Pittsburgh has been still slower. Its public wharves are just about as they were before the days of the railroads.

The Federal government has been sharply criticized in Pittsburgh for its delay in opening the great waterway to commerce. How ironical that now that the nine-foot stage is here, Pittsburgh is not in position to use it!

We have no suitable public terminals for loading and unloading water-borne merchandise in the modern way. We have no arrangements for exchange of freight between railroad and river. We have not chosen sites for the docks. We do not even have a plan.

Completion of the Ohio River project by 1929 has long been foreseen. Some of our great steel and coal companies, in anticipation, have established their own wharves, built towboats and barges, and erected depots and warehouses at down-river points.

St. Louis, Memphis and other cities have established river terminals for the handling of every sort of merchandise. More than a hundred of Pittsburgh's principal business men made a tour of down-river cities all the way to the Gulf in a special train last November to inspect the terminals, with a view to the establishment of like facilities here. Director Lang and his engineers in the Department of Public Works made a similar inspection trip, to get ideas that might be applied to Pittsburgh.

City Council gave the Department of Public Works $30,000 on September 21, 1926, to prepare a plan for the improvements, and $50,000 more for the same purpose on July 24 last. But not even the plan is ready yet. And the department offers no assurance that it will be ready before next summer.

It will be hard to convince the public that three years are necessary for the preparation of the plan. The average citizen will consider that three years ought to be long enough for the whole task—for the drawing of the designs, the making of satisfactory arrangements with the railroads, the acquisition of the property needed, the letting of contracts, and the building of the terminals.

Pittsburgh will be benefited more than any other city by the improvement of the Ohio. Bulky materials such as are produced by the mills here are the freight best adapted for water transportation. The tonnage that will go out of this city will exceed that originating at any other river point.

But even more significant to the public than the tonnage going out will be that coming in. Molasses from New Orleans, shoes from St. Louis, flour from Minneapolis, sugar from Cuba, coffee from Brazil, silks from Japan and a multitude of other commodities will be brought almost to our doors in barges at a lower rate than the railroads charge. The effect of the barge service in the Mississippi valley has been to reduce appreciably the cost of living. Pittsburgh should enjoy the same boon.

It behooves us not to let the grass grow under our feet as we prepare to take advantage of the cheap transportation for which we have so long been clamoring.

Allied Boards of Trade In Transportation Probe

The transportation situation in Pittsburgh is to be investigated by a special committee of the Allied Boards of Trade, the survey to include looking into the unfair 25-cent rate for bus rides charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, as well as other angles. Besides members of the Allied body the committee is to include one representative of each of the 48 member boards represented in the central organization. Technical aid has been engaged by the committee, which is prepared to make a thorough research covering our whole transportation system.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph congratulates the Allied Boards of Trade. It takes up an investigation which, perhaps—we can't say positively—belongs rightly to the Traction Conference Board. That body, composed of representatives of the city, territory outside the city, and the Pittsburgh Railways Company, supposedly has something to say about transportation. Charging 25-cent bus fares certainly is one of the public's transportation problems, especially as it is a charge imposed upon the people by a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Railways Company. If the Traction Conference Board has any powers at all, the public would like to see it get busy. If it has no actual powers, its members certainly could not be socially ostracized for making a suggestion. That would show it's good intentions anyway.

The work taken up by the Allied Boards of Trade embraces a wide scope, including rapid transit, one-man cars, salaries of officials and capitalization of the Pittsburgh Railways Company. Such a program involves a long examination of many facts and collateral factors that extend in many directions. The public will be behind this program with its moral support and will wish the investigators all speed in their work.

But it also will wish for more immediate attention to something that needs no more extensive investigation than that already given—relief from an overcharge of 15 cents in bus fares. Every claim made by the company to justify such a fare has been exploded by an investigator of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph who visited many of our large cities and found the motor coach service of Pittsburgh duplicated—and exceeded—for a 10-cent fare.

Perhaps the Traction Conference Board can tell the public how and why the 25-cent rate was permitted to become effective. It ought to be able to do something to justify its existence.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Celestial Motions

"You have several times stated that we do not know why the earth has its motions. Since the sun also has its motion, carrying the planets along with it, what power gives it such motion?—P. A., New York."

WHAT we do not know about these motions is their original cause. The principal motions of the earth are two, namely, its revolution around the sun and its rotation upon its own axis. Just how these were started we do not know, but how they are continued we do know very well. The force that keeps the earth traveling in an orbit is the gravitation (attraction) of the sun, which constantly curves into an elliptical path around the sun. But the attraction of the sun produces only the curvature; the onward motion preventing the earth from falling into the sun is an inertial effect of the original impulse that set it going.

The continued rotation of the earth on its axis is also an inertial effect of an original impulse which set it turning. Being unresisted by the vacant space surrounding it, the earth keeps turning of itself, just as a flywheel would do if it were set going inside of perfect vacuum and freed from every trace of friction on its axle.

The motion of the sun together with its planets through space is likewise an inertial motion. Just how it began we do not know, but once in existence, and unrestricted, it continues without any further exercise of driving force. Theoretically, it is probable that the attraction of the other stars in the universe has an effect upon the direction of the sun's motion, and such attraction may even have an accelerating influence, but we have no experimental knowledge on this point based on observation and measurement.

All that we really know is that the solar system (sun and planets) is moving toward a point in what we call the northern sky, not very far from the bright star Vega (which is almost exactly overhead in midsummer, in our latitudes), and that the velocity of this motion is in the neighborhood of 12 miles per second.

We also know from observation that all of the stars, i. e., other suns than ours, are moving in a similar manner, but with various rates of speed, and in many directions. Some observations have indicated that there may be two great, almost oppositely directed, "currents" of stars. But it is certain that there are groups, or companies of stars—our sun belonging to one that is not conspicuous—which travel together, like flights of crows, one might say, though the members of such associations are sometimes so widely separated that seen from the earth they appear in quite different parts of the sky.

Efforts have been made to discover whether there is a general rotation of the whole starry system around its potential center of gravity, but the subject is a very complicated one, and only doubtful theoretical conclusions can be drawn. But there is one great fundamental principle, or fact, which everybody should keep in mind, in thinking about these things, and that is that motion is the natural state of matter, and does not have to be explained, any more han the existence of matter itself. There is a false idea widely spread to the effect that the natural state, or condition, of things is one of rest, and that when they are found to be in motion the first duty of science is to explain why they are moving instead of standing still. The real miracle would be to banish motion. This, however, does not relieve us of the need of explaining particular forms or cases of motion (if we can), such as rotation, revolutions, accelerations, changes of direction, etc., affecting special objects.

Heartening

THE outflow of American manufactures to foreign buyers in the first half of this year was at a larger rate than ever in our history, save during the hectic war time. Which means much.

It means that foreign buying power is coming back; that American merchandising skill is better than holding its own; that the heralded intensity of foreign industrial competition is at least in part fictitious, and that efficient production will find a market wherever human wants are keen.

There is hardly a toehold left for "bears" on the U. S. A.

Learn to Say "No"

WHAT is your psychology when cornered by a super salesman?

Can you keep your head enough to turn down the proposition that you know is beyond your means?

Or are you so passive that you are an easy mark?

Don't you know that to dwell on the "yes" side of an argument when your head tells you that you should say "no" is dangerous business?

Suppose the agent has been to see you two or three times?

Suppose he does present arguments in his favor that you have not thought of before and which startle you into consideration of them?

The sooner you get hold of your own side of any question, the better.

It is learning to say "no" and sticking to it that counts in character.

Don't be a piece of putty in the hands of the one who sells goods.

If you know that you have equalled or exceeded your probable budget for the thing suggested, don't let the man or the woman talk to you if you are weak in your ability to say "no."

Cultivate a terse, polite method of refusal as efficient as the methods employed by the super salesman.

It is far better to stick to a "no" than to be troubled for months because of the effort you must make to meet payments on something you really did not need.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Magic of a Rose

MAGIC of a rose's bloom
No one can deny.
Just a rosebud in the room
Brightens earth and sky.

Roses nodding in the breeze
Waken thoughts of joy,
Lovers gathered blooms like these
Back in Rome and Troy.

Persian poets long ago
Sang in praise divine
(Words that through the ages glow)
Cypress, rose and wine.
Though men's ways of life grow strange,
Wonderful and new,
Love and roses do not change
All the long years through.

Just a rosebud laughing there
Stirs thought's joyous train,
Bringing back twin blossoms fair,
Youth and love again!

Great Passages from the Bible

"The Fool Hath Said"

(Psalm 14)

THE fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, they have done abominable works, there is none that doeth good.

The Lord looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God.

They are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy: there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

Have all the workers of iniquity no knowledge? who eat up my people as they eat bread, and call not upon the Lord.

There were they in great fear: for God is in the generation of the righteous.

Ye have shamed the counsel of the poor, because the Lord is his refuge.

Oh that the salvation of Israel were come out of Zion! when the Lord bringeth back the captivity of his people, Jacob shall rejoice, and Israel shall be glad.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THESE here dog races has got people all worked up, especially in some of these big eastern towns. They have dogs chasing electric rabbits around little tracks, and the dogs are so silly they almost run themselves to death, and never catch the rabbits. The fans bet on the dogs.

Well, there was kind of a promoter in New York, and he got a German feller interested in dog racing. The promoter come around to see him a couple of weeks after he started monkeying with it and says to the German feller, "How you coming on, Henry, with the dog racing? Have you got your dogs trained yet?"

"Well," says Henry, "you see I got lots of trouble. This here dog of mine is a dachshund. He is pretty long and low, you know. Well, I got him started running around and around the track. He lost every race, because he beat himself around, by about the length of his tail. You see, it's going to be too hard to figure out who wins, when the lead dog is passing himself once or twice going around the track."

Snappy

IT WAS a very hot day and the guide in the crowded sight-seeing bus had almost reached the end of his tether. But he had his living to earn.

Suddenly he noticed they were passing a newly-erected monument.

"On your right," he shouted, "you see a statue unveiled last week to a noble cause."

"And what does it stand for?" asked a troublesome old gentleman.

"Because it would look silly lying down," snapped the guide.

A Man of His Word

JONES looked coldly at his friend Brown.

"A short time ago I thought you never meant anything you said, Brown; but lately I have changed my mind."

"Oh! And what caused you to alter your opinion?" asked Brown.

"You remember borrowing five bucks from me?"

"Yes."

"You said that if I lent it to you, you would be indebted to me for ever."

"Yes."

"Well, you are keeping your word like a man."

Obstinate

"HE is so obstinate, he simply wouldn't see a doctor when his wife wanted him to."

"He was always like that. As boys we were out in a boat when a dispute arose and he was thrown overboard with the injunction 'Sink or swim.'"

"What did he do?"

"Neither, he lay on his back and floated.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—New York's countless pawnshops are a tribute to its profligacy and stifled dreams. It is estimated 85 per cent of the adult population pay a visit to Uncle some time or other and, of course, there is the army of constant customers.

North of Fourteenth street the pawnshop takes on privacy and dignity. These are patronized by gamblers, race track players and others who live lightly. These shops offer no jinkle-jumble window display, and the patrons enter inconspicuous side doors.

The windows are frosted or blackened so that passersby cannot see in from the street. The clerks are rather polished men who pilot you into snug reception rooms, like those in a private bank, with a flourish. They are tactful, but, of course, firm.

Their offices are salons de luxe and in no wise comparable to the dingy repositories of dead hopes on the lower East Side. Here improvident theatrical stars, suddenly at liberty, bring often ropes of pearls and other jewels.

It is along the Bowery the cheap pawnshop flourishes. Here their dinginess reflects the pathos of despairing patrons. There are some with tinkling bells constantly ringing over their gloomy portals to guide unsteady steps at night.

In their barred windows are such grotesque pledges as glass eyes, removable teeth, crutches, and in one is even an invalid's chair. The lowest type of loan office on the Bowery is called a "reliever shop." They are usually in cellars.

Here the Bowery floater may take the old suit, hat or shoes he is wearing, receive articles a little more worn and the price of a drink or so to boot. There is a theory all pawnshop keepers are Jewish. A big percentage is Irish. And two are Scotch.

The life of a private chauffeur in New York is not so sad. There is one who has been around the world twice, and for three months a year, while his employer is at his lodge in Canada, is on vacation with full pay. He also has a key to his master's cellar, if that means anything.

It pays to be considerate of New York hotel telephone girls. One in a sizzling letter to newspapers tells how she and her sisters get even with cantankerous guests. They charge them for unanswered calls and wrong numbers.

It would take an expert in psychoanalysis to explain the mysterious charm the voice of a telephone girl evokes. Sedate men who pay no attention whatever to stenographers, manicure girls, chorus ladies and such, are thrilled by a pretty voice over the telephone. Sly maidens setting blackmail traps invariably bait victims with a melodious cooing over the phone. In almost every instance the victim seeks an introduction, whereas a note or a personal contact in the initial proceedings would be ignored.

The wise man refuses to continue a phone conversation these days with a lady who says she is talking to him through a mistake in connection and seeks to continue the conversation. That is the trick of the potential gold digger and has claimed many.

The growth of croquet in the past few years is another one of those things. Its social status is defined by the fact that almost every newly planned estate on Long Island is equipped with croquet grounds.

* * *

A friend in Connecticut is in a stew because a queen bee has vamoosed from his apiary and refuses to return. His crop of honey has become a total loss. I may be old-fashioned, but I'd never feel exactly right living off a lady bee that way.

SOLITUDE

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

The world is too much with us, says Wordsworth.
We must always have something going on to divert us.
We must have newspapers, company, clubs and shows.
We are diverted to death, at least to a frazzle.

If we would only get away sometimes occasionally by ourselves and loaf and invite our souls it would do us good.

Spend an hour in thoughtful meditation alone, said Carlyle, and see how much nonsense will be cleaned out of you.

Only from the point of view of solitude can we get the right prospective, see what things are worth while and what things do not matter.

Most of the time we are too close to things. Let us retreat into the silence.

There are mighty few who know how to be alone.

And yet it is a most useful accomplishment. It would save us many a bitter hour and many a foolish deed if we understood it.

Solitude is one of the terrors of the world. Men in solitary confinement go mad. Left to ourselves we get bored, wretched, desperate. We are afraid to sleep in an empty house. Silence scares us. Even contention and disagreeable people are better than peace and quite with loneliness.

But, like most other bugaboos that frighten us with their shadows, solitude is not all bad when you go right up to it and look it in the face

Let us, therefore, get a full face view of solitude, dismiss our panic fears and see what it is made of. Solitude consists of me and myself. The only reason it alarms me is because myself is the one thing I am not familiar with—the one thing I do not study, examine and try. Hence, when we are left alone with it we want to scream and run.

The way to overcome this fear is to practice being alone. Everybody ought to have some time of the day when he is absolutely by himself. Then he should look into his heart and his mind and get used to their contents.

It is amazing what an hour of utter silence and isolation will do for us if we seek it and endeavor to use it. At first we will be overwhelmed, perhaps, by the doubts, mysteries and questionings that arise, and will be tempted to flee for relief to any kind of companionship; men, women or books. But if we persist and just let the mind and heart boil over until they get settled by and by, there will come to us a certain quiet and contentment we find in no other way.

I am the only person I cannot get away from. It stands me instead to make myself as agreeable as possible. It is a false and foolish humility that says, "I hate myself. I know I am no good," and all that. For we hate ourselves just as we hate others, because we are not acquainted. "Don't introduce me to that man," said Sidney Smith. "I feel it my duty to hate him, and you can't hate a man when you know him."

OH, THESE WOMEN

By LEOLA ALLARD.

TWO girls lunching at the Ritz. Both pretty; both smartly dressed, both young. "A man should know that these days a girl isn't satisfied with a gift like that. It just isn't being done," and the black eyes snapped as the girl grabbed for the menu and was almost too mad to decipher it.

"He knows you like nice things, too," said her blonde companion. "He knows about that bracelet you got last year. You'd think he'd have some pride in the matter."

"Well, a flower vase my dear! With roses in it! My word!"

They ordered.

"I went into the store where he bought it to find out how much it cost," said the brunette, "and, my dear, it was only $35."

"You don't tell me!"

"I do tell you, and I had hinted and hinted and hinted that it was jewelry I wanted. I didn't care much about Graham, but at least he didn't present me with flower vases. I never saw a prettier thing than the bracelet, and now that he's out of my young life, the memories of him are considerably softened every time I see the bracelet."

"Well, I'll never forget that Lauder man who used to send me yellow roses every other day just because I said once that I liked yellow roses, and I got so I could scream when I saw more yellow roses coming in. I like scrambled eggs, too, but I don't want to eat them to the exclusion of everything else."

A lady with very white hair, a slim little thing, with a lavender dress and a real lace collar was having her luncheon at the next table. She lived at the hotel and she liked the luncheon crowds, so she usually went to luncheon early and sat late. She has excellent hearing, in spite of her years. She listened attentively to the disappointed girl.

"And, do you know," she told me, "I think I can understand why men are backing away from marriage. As I listened to those girls, I remembered the thrill of my life time—when I was their age—and, do you know what it was? A great bunch of magnolia blossoms that my husband brought me the first time he came to call. He had picked them himself and he carried them in himself without the slightest cost to his dignity. And I never liked the odor of magnolias either."

The little old lady smiled. "I had a beau that same year who tried to marry me, and who came armed with the biggest diamond ring I ever saw. But, all the fire was in the diamond. And my heart didn't quicken a beat when I saw it.

"I've still got those magnolia blossoms in a little box with a glass top, all sealed in, and tucked into my handkerchief drawer. I'd like to see the diamond anybody could give me in exchange!"

Low Pay and Honesty

THE young New York bank official who is held on a charge of using $500,000 of the bank's money on personal speculation received a salary of $2,700.

It is possible to be honest on $2,700 a year. Many people are. But it is a hard strain to impose on unsteady morals.

It is just possible that higher pay in responsible positions would reduce the cost of bonding.
